Your Family Crest

Brought to you by PageWise, Inc.

Congratulations! The name Brown has a historic Coat of Arms associated with it.

According to our research, the origin of the name Brown is English and the Coat of Arms contains Blue with three gold fleur de lis. The Crest is A lion holding in the paw a gold fleur de lis. The family motto is Floreat majestas

We have written an 1800-word history on the Brown family name. A small excerpt from this history:

> Spelling variations include: Brown, Broun, Brun, and others.
> First found in in Cumberland where they were seated from very early times and were granted lands by Duke William of Normandy, their liege Lord, for their distinguished assistance at the Battle of Hastings in 1066 A.
> Some of the first settlers of this name or some of its variants were: Alexander, Andrew, Anthony, Archibald, Catherine, Charles, Christopher, David, Edward, Elizabeth, Francis, Frederick, George, Henry, Hugh, James, and so on. All of whom arrived in Pennsylvania in the early 19th century. In Newfoundland, Andrew Brown settled in Toads Cove (now Tors Cove) in 1676; John Browne settled in Petty Harbour in 1677; John Brown settled there in 1704; they also settled in Placentia, Harbour Main, Quidi Vidi; Fogo, Twillingate, Great Belle Isle; Harbour Grace and many many more between 1704 and 1870. and others.

Designated visitor handicapped parking spaces are available in the garage and on the streets. Commercial parking within walking distance is also available on Capitol Avenue in garages across from the Statehouse.

Information by Mail: The staff will answer briefly stated, specific questions about Indiana people or research. It will check one name in indexed, printed Indiana sources in reply to a letter. A legal-sized, stamped, self-addressed envelope should be enclosed with every inquiry.

Tours: Available upon request prior to visit.

Researchers: A list of local professional genealogists is available upon request.

The Book Collection

The Indiana State Library houses one of the major collections of genealogy and local history in the Midwest. It also includes the genealogy collection of the Indianapolis-Marion County Public Library. Emphasis is on Indiana and the states from which Indiana was settled: the Eastern Seaboard, Ohio, Kentucky and Tennessee. There are, however, holdings from the entire United States and several foreign countries.

The Microform Collection

The microfilm holdings include all Indiana federal census schedules through 1920, all available U.S. census schedules for all states through 1880, and the 1900, 1910, and 1920 U.S. schedules for various states; U.S. pension data for veterans of the Revolutionary, 1812, Civil and Spanish-American wars; 19th century passenger arrival lists for the major U.S. ports; Indiana courthouse and church records as well as records of other states.

Gifts

Help Us Preserve Our Past For Future Generations

Contributions of books or money are deeply appreciated and are tax deductible. Gift plates record names of donors. Donations of family histories and other genealogical materials are welcomed heartily.

Additional Sources in the Indiana State Library

- Indiana Division (2nd floor). The largest collection of Indiana history, church, military, lodge and school resources anywhere. Also a collection of more than 3 million manuscripts relating to Indiana.
- Newspaper Section. Files of 1,500 Indiana newspapers, the oldest of which begins in 1807.
- Indiana State Archives (1st floor). Files of Indiana military records, Land Office sales, agricultural and industrial censuses.
- Indiana Historical Society (3rd floor). County histories and extensive manuscript holdings.

I AM ALWAYS WITH YOU

As you hold me close in memory, even though we are apart,
my spirit will live on in the haven of your heart .
I am with you always.

When you lean on trusted friends and their caring hugs enfold you, within their loving arms
I will also hold you.
I am with you always.

In nature's consolationsa sunrise veiled in mist, with butterflies alighting on each flower to be kissed .
I am with you always.

And beyond that far horizon when we'll finally be together, where love will be eternal and life will last forever .
I am with you always.

"A Touch of Dutch" by Sara Jayne Hogue

'TOUCH OF DUTCH' IS FAVORITE OF ARTIST

The local scene, too, has its "Dutch master" when it comes to painting and this is Sara Jayne Hogue of Mooresville. Each week The Plainfield Messenger presents a work of art by a different member of the Hendricks County Art League, along with his or/her comments about the painting.

This week's artist says regarding her "Touch of Dutch":

"We all have reasons why we like various paintings. Sometimes it's because it brings back memories and sometimes the colors are pleasing and sometimes we just plain understand them.

"This picture is my favorite for all of these reasons.

"The small wooden shoes belonged to my son, Randy, when he was very small. My son, Richard, clumped around in them too.

"The large wooden shoes were my great Uncle John's; he wore them on the stage.

"With these nostalgic thoughts and a combination of colors I like, I came up with "A Touch of Dutch."

Girl Scout Leaders To Meet

The neighborhood meeting for Girl Scout leaders will be held at the home of Mrs. Robert Brandgard, 1634 Franklin Drive, Thursday, January 10 at 9:30 a.m.

Leaders will make plans for the Girl Scout Cookie Sale to be conducted in March.

Yule Mail Report Is Given

The mailing of Christmas parcels and cards held about even in volume with last year, says Plainfield Postmaster Robert Lawson.

The Plainfield Post Office handled 385 more cards in 1962 than in 1961.

Approximately 600 additional parcels were handled this year compared with last year.

For the most part the people of Plainfield did a fine job in preparing their cards and parcels for mailing, says Postmaster Lawson.

Postal Receipts showed an increase of several hundred dollars.

Subject: Rachel and Robin

Hi to all,

Last Sat. my youngest, Rachel was in an accident, hit by a drunken man. On Monday she went to the hospital and found out that her eleven week baby that she was pregnant with was dead. On Tues. she hemorrhaged and on Wed. they did a dnc.
She is doing fine.

Last night around 9:30 I got a call from Bonnie that said that Robin was in Community east with a heart attack. we went and picked up Bonnie and went and got Jenise, and went to the hospital. We had to wait until almost Midnight, to go back and see Robin. It was not a heart attack. It was a stroke, She is paralyzed on the right side and not able to speak very well. Her blood pressure went sky high and they are trying to bring it down slowly. They told her that there would be about 3 or 4 different doctors to see her to run different test. She is alert and knows everyone. They did a cat scan and said that she has had many small strokes in the past, but that there was no severe damage,because of this one. She was sitting in her van and could not move, but was able to holler out to a neighbor who called 911 for her. When they got there they had to pull her out of the van and she does have bruises on her arms. I want all of you to know that I Love You, We never know when or what may happen, and I need to let you all know now.

Love You
Donna

John & Mary Brown
3907 E. 100 N.
Danville, IN 46122

Dear John & Mary,

Hello Folks! We missed another Brown reunion as you probably know. How is everyone? We are O.K.

Our daughter, Julia flew in on 20 June and will return to Fullerton, CA on 4 July. While at home, she planned a small party for her Grandmother Couch's 80th birthday anniversary. Julia, Gary, our son, Hal, Pearl and I went out for dinner on Sunday after church. Pearl's birthday is actually the 26th June, but we celebrated a wee bit early.

There are a few family updates to pass along to family researchers. Stephen B. HENDERSON (May 1931-3 March 1995) the husband of Doris GOODEN ELLIOTT HENDERSON died after a lengthy battle with lung cancer. Dotty is the daughter of Aunt Tena BAKER GOODEN and Uncle Jim GOODEN. Lester ACTON had a severe stroke and is in the nursing home. His wife, Clara R. GRIFFIN ACTON (August 1923-10 June 1995) died recently. Lester is the son of Aunt Mary BAKER (et. al.). Joe MERSHON, the son of Walter and Bertha BAKER MERSHON, wrote that he is home-bound nursing oxygen. In addition, I have discovered that Simpson ADAMS died in January 1885 and is supposedly buried at Lanning Spur Cemetery. He was the father of Martha ADAMS BAKER HAMILTON.

Julia owns an older (1978 or 1979) Corvette and wants to visit the Corvette plant and museum. Thus, we are planning on traveling to Bowling Green, KY this week for a tour of the facilities. We are also planning to take a few other short tours while our granddaughter, Amanda is visiting. Amanda will arrive this Friday and be here for two weeks, then return to her mother's for a week before visiting here the last week of July.

Did you take your usual excursion to Florida this past winter? We have decided not to repeat our trip to San Destin, Florida this fall. We are contemplating on visiting my aunt and uncle in Arizona in early 1996.

That is about all of the news that comes to mind at this moment. Take care and enjoy your summer.

Your BAKER cousins,

Bev Weddell

Hal & Bev Weddell

Displays include a moonshine still, American Indian artifacts, early mining and lumbering tools, railway memorabilia and metal and paper scrip.

Allow 1 hour minimum. Tues.-Sat. 9-4, Sun. noon-5, mid-Apr. through Oct. 31. Hours may vary; phone ahead. Admission $2, ages 13-18 and college students with ID $1. Phone (606) 376-5730.

TOMPKINSVILLE (F-5) pop. 2,900

OLD MULKEY MEETINGHOUSE STATE HISTORIC SITE is on 60 acres 2 mi. s. on SR 1446 off SR 100. The meetinghouse is said to be the oldest of its kind in the state and the oldest church in southern Kentucky. The 12 corners of the 1804 church are reputed to represent the 12 Apostles and its three doors, the Trinity. Its construction is of half-hewn logs and chinking.

Daniel Boone's sister Hannah is buried in the churchyard, as are some pioneers and soldiers of the Revolutionary War. Picnicking is permitted. Allow 1 hour minimum. Daily 9-5. Free. Phone (502) 487-8481.

UNION (B-6) pop. 1,000, elev. 515′

BIG BONE LICK STATE PARK, off SR 338 at 3380 Beaver Road, is the site of prehistoric animal remains. The creatures came to lick the salt produced by the springs; some became mired in the mud and died. A museum displays some of the items discovered during archeological digs. Paved self-guiding trails lead to dioramas of prehistoric beasts and permit observation of a herd of buffaloes.

Park open daily dawn-dusk. Museum open daily 8-8, Memorial Day-Labor Day; Mon.-Thurs. 10-6, Fri.-Sun. 8-8, Apr. 1-day before Memorial Day and day after Labor Day-Oct. 31; Wed.-Sun. noon-5, rest of year. Park free. Museum $1, children 50c. Phone (606) 384-3522. See Recreation Chart and the AAA Southeastern CampBook.

VERSAILLES (D-6) pop. 7,300, elev. 895′

Woodford County Chamber of Commerce: 110 N. Main St., P.O. Box 442, Versailles, KY 40383; phone (606) 873-5122.

BLUEGRASS SCENIC RAILROAD AND MUSEUM, 2 mi. w. on US 62 at Woodford County Park, offers train rides on the old Louisville Southern Mainline. The 1.5-hour narrated excursions travel through the rolling Bluegrass Region, past a 240-foot-deep gorge and on to the rugged terrain of the Kentucky River bluffs. Special seasonal excursions are scheduled throughout the year. The museum is dedicated to the reconstruction, restoration and preservation of railroad arts and artifacts.

Allow 2 hours minimum. Departures Sat. at 10:30, 1:30 and 3:30, Sun. at 1:30 and 3:30, last weekend in May-third weekend in Oct.; closed holidays. Phone for information about seasonal trips. Museum open Sat. 10-3, Sun. 1-3. Fare $7; over 61, $6; ages 2-12, $4. Museum free. Phone (606) 873-2476 or (800) 755-2476.

JOUETT HOUSE, 255 Craig Creek Rd., features a tour of the 1798 home of Captain Jack Jouett. On June 3, 1781, Jouett reportedly rode horseback for 40 miles to Charlottesville, Va., to warn delegates of the British invasion. The house contains three rooms with painted fireplace mantels, two bedrooms accessed by a sharply turning stairway, and a stone-lined cellar. Also on display are paintings by Jouett's son, Matthew. Allow 1 hour minimum. Sat.-Sun. noon-5, Wed. 11-1, Apr.-Oct. Free. Phone (606) 873-7902.

NOSTALGIA STATION TOY AND TRAIN MUSEUM, 279 Depot St., is a model train museum housed in a restored 1911 railroad station. Exhibits include a reproduction of a 1926 standard gauge Lionel store display as well as children's toys and railroad memorabilia. A late 1950s Lionel store display includes accessories authentic to the original layout. Allow 1 hour minimum. Wed.-Sat. 10-5, Sun. 1-5; closed Thanksgiving and Dec. 25. Admission $3; over 60, $2.50; ages 5-18, $1.50. Phone (606) 873-2497.

WOODFORD COUNTY HISTORICAL SOCIETY MUSEUM AND GENEALOGICAL LIBRARY, 1 blk. w. of US 62 at 121 Rose Hill, houses a collection of relics pertaining to Woodford County and Kentucky history. Displays focus on African-Americans, the Civil War and photographs of Woodford County. Allow 30 minutes minimum. Tues.-Fri. 10-12:30 and 1-4, Sat. 10-1; closed holidays. Free. Phone (606) 873-6786.

WASHINGTON (C-7) pop. 800

In Washington, one of the first towns in the nation to be named for George Washington, 18th-century flagstone walks are still in use and the streets have retained their original names. A guided walking tour that leaves from the visitor center on Main Street (SR 68) includes the Albert Sidney Johnston Home, Mefford's Fort, Old Church Museum, Paxton Inn and Simon Kenton Shrine. The tour fee is $5, children $2. A guided tour of sites used during the days of the underground railroad is also offered for a fee of $4, children $2.

Old Washington Visitor Center: Main St., Washington, KY 41096; phone (606) 759-7411.

Self-guiding tours: A map detailing points of interest in the historic district, including buildings, log cabins, early churches and sites of former buildings, can be obtained from the visitor center.

WHITESBURG (E-8) pop. 1,600, elev. 1,164′

APPALSHOP, 306 Madison St., is an arts and educational center that focuses on the Appalachian culture. The center produces a variety of films, videotapes and musical recordings. A noncommercial community radio station operates daily. Educational and theatrical programs are presented throughout the year. An art gallery features revolving exhibits. Guided tours are available by reservation. Mon.-Fri. 9-5; closed holidays. Free. Phone (606) 633-0108.

WILLIAMSBURG (F-7) pop. 5,500, elev. 951′

CUMBERLAND MUSEUM, 649 S. 10th St., houses a wide variety of items including mounted animals, crosses and crucifixes, Abraham Lincoln memorabilia, animated Christmas dolls and items illustrating the culture of the region and the local coal mining industry. A photographic display illustrates the history of Cumberland College. Other exhibits include postage stamps, coins, nutcrackers and American Indian artifacts. Allow 1 hour minimum. Daily 10-5; closed major holidays. Admission $4; over 65, $3; ages 6-12, $2; ages 1-5, $1. Phone (606) 539-3100.

WICKLIFFE (E-1) pop. 900, elev. 324′

Near Wickliffe is the site of Fort Jefferson, Col. George Rogers Clark's last outpost in the "West." The confluence of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers nearby forms one of the world's largest inland bays.

WICKLIFFE MOUNDS, .5 mi. n.w. on US 51/60/62, is the site of a prehistoric Indian village of the Mississippian tradition that existed between approximately 1000 and 1300. Archeologists have unearthed a burial mound, home sites and temple mounds. Interpretive exhibits in the three open excavation areas illustrate prehistoric Indian life and explain archeological methods. Daily 9-4:30, Mar.-Nov. Admission $3.50; over 55, $3.25; ages 6-11, $2.50. Phone (502) 335-3681.

WINCHESTER (D-7) pop. 15,800, elev. 995′

Incorporated in 1793, Winchester was named after the former Virginia home of its founder, John Baker. The town was given distinction by Henry Clay, "The Great Compromiser," when he made both his first and last Kentucky speeches in the city.

Early on, Winchester became the marketing center of the agricultural inner Bluegrass Region. Industrial enterprises and manufacturing supplement the economy. Also see Bluegrass Country p. 40.

Built in 1814, Holly Rood-Clark Mansion was the home of Kentucky politician James Clark. Located at Belmont and Beckner streets, this Federal-style mansion is furnished in period. For more information phone (606) 744-6616 or 744-6623.

Winchester/Clark County Chamber of Commerce: 2 S. Maple St., Winchester, KY 40391; phone (606) 744-6420.

Self-guiding tours: Maps and brochures outlining points of interest in Winchester's downtown historic district are available at the chamber of commerce.

* Winchester was founded as a town in 1793. The site for the town came down to a tie between John Baker's Spring and Strode Station owned by John Strode. Mr. Strode had to cast the deciding vote, and he voted for John Baker's Spring, stating that he "didn't want his boys growin' up around town as they might become triflin' and no account". He also did not want to be considered selfish or acting in his own interest.

* In 1812, Winchester was the 7th largest town in size in Kentucky, and had a population of 450 inhabitants. The town spring was located at the northwest corner of Broadway called at that time "Main Cross", and Maple Street, called "Water Street" because it led to water.

* Street cars once traveled Main Street to Moundale Avenue where the car was pushed around the roundtable to make its return journey. At the end of the day, the driver would go into a store to call the electric company to turn off the street car.

* Winchester has one of only two elevated sidewalks in the state of Kentucky. The area is known as High on Main.

John A. Nelson Made National Deputy Aide-de-Camp Of D. A. V. Group

John A. Nelson, insurance salesman, living on R. R. 3 on the Heltonville road, has just received notification of his appointment as national deputy aide-de-camp of the Disabled American Veterans.

A handsome engraved certificate of appointment was sent Nelson by Lewis J. Murphy, national commander, who made the appointment.

Nelson, a past commander of the Bedford chapter No. 2, is expected to be presented Wednesday evening with the official red and white cap, insignia of his new post.

Official announcement of the appointment will be made Wednesday evening at the regular meeting of the local chapter, which is scheduled for 7:30 o'clock in the Veterans' room of the courthouse. All D.A.V. members have been cordially invited to attend the meeting.

IHSAA and opposed "any officia or legislative interference with th management of high school athletics."

The Athletic association anc Commissioner Arthur L. Treste have drawn some criticism fo their conduct of state basketbal tournaments.

The superintendents, ending a two-day meeting, adopted othe resolutions for:

(1) Creation of a state commissioner of education to be appointed by the state education board and who would serve five years or more under the elective state superintendent;

(2) Adoption by the state boar of five or more school books ir each subject, instead of just one from which local officials migh choose one for their district;

(3) Rental of textbooks by schools to pupils:

(4) Elimination of minimum salary differentials between elementary teachers and high schoo teachers of four years' training.

The association elected DeWit S. Morgan of Indianapolis, president; W. F. Loper of Shelbyville vice-president and J. M. Smith o Greenfield, secretary - treasure The retiring president is E. C Dodson of Connersville.

Police said a 1950 model sedan, owned by Robert Fleenor, 226 North Chestnut street, driven eastward on Sixth street by John David Brown, Indianapolis was halted at the intersection, along with a 1951 model sedan, driven by Elmer V. Grinstead, Cortland R1, when another eastbound auto, a 1954 model sedan, driven by Marvin Lee Moore, owned by Charles Moore, Freetown R1, collided with the rear of the Grinstead auto, causing it to collide with the auto owned by Fleenor. Moore, driver of the 1954 model sedan, told police he went to sleep as he approached the intersection and the halted vehicles.

CHRIST INSTITUTES HIS HOLY SUPPER
AND the disciples did as JESUS had appointed them; and they made ready the passover. Now when the even was come, he sat down with the twelve.
And as they were eating, Jesus took bread, and blessed it, and brake it, and gave it to the disciples, and said, Take, eat; this is my body.
And he took the cup, and gave thanks, and gave it to them, saying,
Drink ye all of it; For this is my blood of the new testament, which is shed for many for the remission of sins.

WINNING SURPRISE

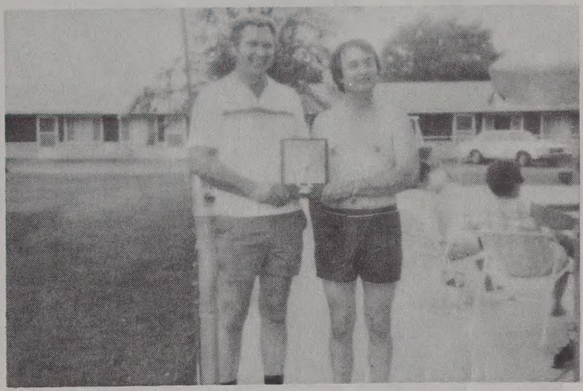
Some of the guys here at the plant decided to spring a little surprise on MELVIN HENNESSEE (retired inspector) on Saturday, August the 9th, by traveling to Manchester, Tennessee for a "SPECIAL TO DO" that Hennessee always attends.

The town has a public auction (all items donated) and the proceeds maintain a large cemetery in Manchester. There are games and contests in addition to the auction.

Mr. BROWN and Mr. DAVISON "moseyed" over to one of the four horseshoe pits and started pitching horseshoes. A couple of folks joined in and were soon disposed of by Brown and Davison. Others tried but everyone who came to challenge our two Truck and Bus Champs soon went by the wayside. After the last couple was defeated, a man walked up to Brown and Davison, announced that they were the horseshoe pitching champs, and presented them with a trophy.

While the two were busy pitching horseshoes, Mr. Hennessee paid their entrance fee and enrolled them in the horseshoe pitching contest. They became winners without even knowing they were participating!

Congratulations to JOHN BROWN 13-164 and GEORGE DAVISON 13-253. Hennessee hasn't changed a bit. He will always "GO YOU ONE BETTER".



Winners DAVISON and BROWN

GM TRUCK & BUS - GOOD WILL GROUP

The group took thirteen children, ages six to twelve, from the Marion County Guardian Home to the Indianapolis Zoo and on a picnic on the 13th of August. Everyone had a very enjoyable day. The staff from the home was very nice. One of the staff members gave up her day off from work so there would be enough adults to take the children. One of the items the staff would like to have for the guardian home is a park gym set. There is $77.00 left from the collection that was taken up Christmas, 1985. All the help everyone has given for the children is appreciated and anything else anyone can do is very much welcomed.

COMPLAINT DEPARTMENT

CORRECTION: In the last issue, we printed an article on the new D.C. Center. The center is located North West of the plant, not Northeast.

GMT 400: DOOR LINE ASSEMBLY

The new door line assembly located in Bays E and H and 61 to 73 has been worked extensively since the lines started arriving in our plant approximately June 2, 1986.

The LH door assembly is the north line. This line was cycled and produced two hundred seventy-two assemblies to meet our September requirements to our assembly plants. This was accomplished on August 26, 1986 through an all out effort and the super working relationships between all the outside contractors, RWC personnel, and our trades and production group across all the shifts.

This GMT 400 program is our future and the future of the Corporation as well as everyone associated with us. We would like to express our appreciation and say "Thank You" to all who helped make this a success.

There is a lot more work to do on both lines and everyone needs to keep up the good work through the start of production. With a joint and concentrated effort, we will make "The Start of Production" a success and all will realize the joy and satisfaction of a job well done. THANK YOU!

Life is like a piano..what you get out of it depends on how you play it.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR FILING U. S. INCOME TAX RETURN

Who Must File.—If your income in 1958 was $600 or more ($1,200 if 65 years of age or over), or your self-employment income was $400 or more, you must file an income tax return. Forms may be obtained from the District Director of Internal Revenue, your employer, bank, or post office.

A single person with income of less than $600 ($1,200 if 65 years of age or over) should file a return to get a refund if tax was withheld. A married person with income less than her(his) own personal exemption(s) should file a joint return with husband or wife to get the smaller tax or larger refund. To assure any benefit of the split-income provisions, a married couple should file a joint income tax return.

Filing on Form 1040A.—Form 1040A may be used if your gross income (or the combined income of husband and wife) was less than $5,000 and consisted entirely of wages reported on Withholding Tax Statements (Forms W–2) and not more than $100 total of other wages, dividends, and interest.

If you file Form 1040A you may either compute your tax or let the Internal Revenue Service do it for you. A tax table is provided in Form 1040A instructions for this purpose. This table allows about 10 percent of your total income for charitable contributions, interest, taxes, casualty losses, medical expenses, and miscellaneous items. If you compute your tax any balance due must be paid in full with the return. If the Service computes the tax for you and there is an underpayment, a bill will be sent to you. In any case where there is an overpayment a refund check will be sent to you.

File Form 1040 Instead of Form 1040A if—(1) you had income from sources other than wages, dividends, and interest, (2) either husband or wife itemizes deductions, (3) you claim the status of head of household or surviving husband or wife, (4) you claim dividends received credit or retirement income credit, (5) you claim credit for F.I.C.A. (Social Security) employee tax because you had two or more employers who withheld a total of more than $94.50 (See notice on Copy B), (6) if you claim "Sick Pay" exclusion for an amount included in your wages, or (7) you claim deductions for travel, transportation, or "outside salesmen" expense.

Form 1040 may be used by all taxpayers. It will generally be to your advantage to use Form 1040 if your deductions amount to more than 10 percent of your income.

HEADQUARTERS 4TH TRAINING BRIGADE
US ARMY TRAINING CENTER, ARMOR
Fort Knox, Kentucky

13 December 1962

It gives us great pleasure to know that your loved one will be able to spend the holiday season at home with you this year. The officers and men of the Fourth Training Brigade join me in wishing you and yours a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

In order to assist him in his compliance with Army Regulations regarding authorized absence from his duty station, the instructions below are sent for your information:

The date and time for his return are indicated in the paragraph of special leave orders entitled "Special Instructions." If for any reason it becomes impossible for him to report for duty on the date specified, at least one of the notification procedures outlined below should be accomplished without delay:

(1) Report to the nearest military installation for assistance.

(3) Notify the Officer of the Day, 4th Training Brigade, US Army Training Center, Armor, Fort Knox, Kentucky, Extension 4-8515, COLLECT CALLS CANNOT BE ACCEPTED.

(4) Send a telegram to the Commanding Officer of his company.

Our best wishes for a safe and joyous holiday season!

GENERAL

Personal possession of this authority for absence is mandatory at all times. When granted an authorized absence, you assume full reponsibility for arrival at destination and/or return to proper station. Round-trip tickets insure return transportation. You should have sufficient funds to defray all expenses. If you have no means to return to proper station, report to the nearest military installation. The cost of subsistence and transportation furnished will be charged against your military pay record.

The approving authority shown in sub paragraph 3, special instructions of leave orders, should be advised by the most expeditious means in case of serious accident or illness, or if for ANY reason it is impossible for you to report for duty on or before the date you are to return from leave.

If medical treatment or hospitalization is required during your absence, you should report to the nearest medical treatment facility of the Armed Forces. In the event of hospitalization in other than a facility of the Armed Forces, the approving authority shown in sub paragraph 3, special instructions of leave orders should be notified with the least practicable delay of the date and place of hospitalization, together with the nature of illness or injury. Medical treatment at other than a facility of the Armed Forces is authorized at Government expense only in emergencies when it cannot be obtained from such Government facilities (AR 40-101).

Your commanding officer will be advised as soon as possible of any medical treatment obtained from civilian hospitals of physicians.

ON LEAVE

You must report for duty not later than 2400 (Midnight) of the day following the date indicated in Special Instructions, leave orders. You may report for duty at an earlier date if you wish, in which case you will not be charged for the unused portion of your leave.

MILITARY INSTALLATIONS

Examples of Military Installations are: Military Police detachments, ROTC Detachments, any recruiting station of the uniformed services, military reservations, National Guard Armories where Active Army personnel are on duty, etc.

GENERAL MOTORS TRUCK & BUS OF INDIANAPOLIS

General Motors Truck & Bus of Indianapolis is confident the information contained in this booklet will permit you to become acquainted with our people, our facilities and our products.

In 1930 with the purchase of the Martin-Parry Carriage works, General Motors gradually replaced the original buildings with the expanded facilities in the present 2.1 million square foot metal fabricating plant. During the years we have continuously manufactured truck body components. No other automotive metal fabricator has produced the same product in the same plant for this length of time.

Also General Motors has attained an excellent reputation for active community involvement. Our people assist the efforts of local and state governments, youth and sports groups, schools and other civic and professional organizations.

The plant site occupies 98 acres.

Powering our plant required 113 million kilowatt hours of electricity last year.

Since the Fall of 1972 and with the introduction of a completely restyled truck in 1987, the Indianapolis Plant has produced the equivalent of over 1 million trucks per model year.

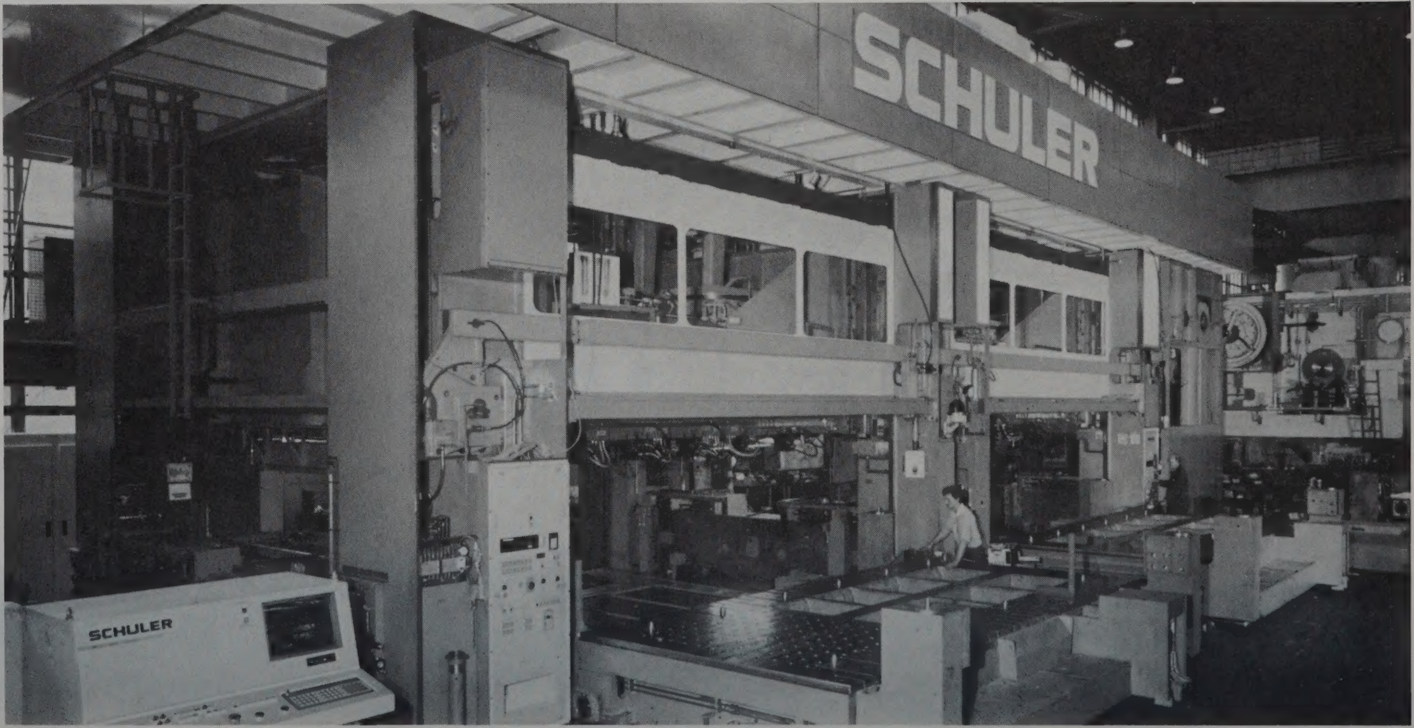
Our men and women represent a typical cross section of the Hoosier Heartland. We commute from all surrounding counties, some as far as 70 miles, while others live within a few city blocks and arrive on foot.

General Motors is an equal opportunity employer. Female and minority group employes are represented in numerous facets of our organizational structure.

Throughout the years the plant has established many safety records. We have worked extensive hours without a lost time accident. Our employes are 29 times safer on the job than any other place. Safety glasses, hearing devices, heavy duty gloves and arm guards are furnished each employe. Specialized equipment is distributed where required. Safety shoes are offered for sale.

SAFETY
is important to
EVERYONE!

This giant press, one of the largest in the automotive industry, exerts a force of 4,000 tons on a sheet of steel to form a pickup box side inner panel.



SCHULER

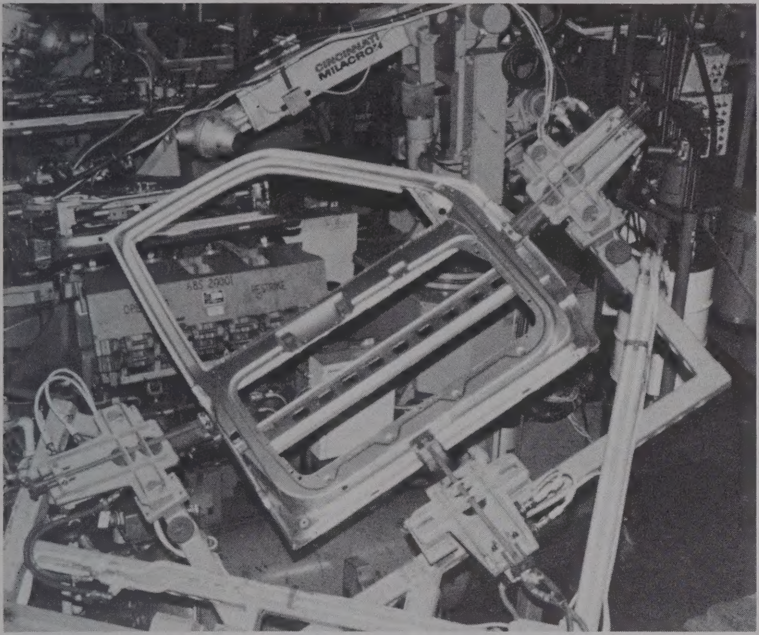
Automatic handling devices carry parts to each work station. Shown here is the process of joining doors using automated robotic equipment.

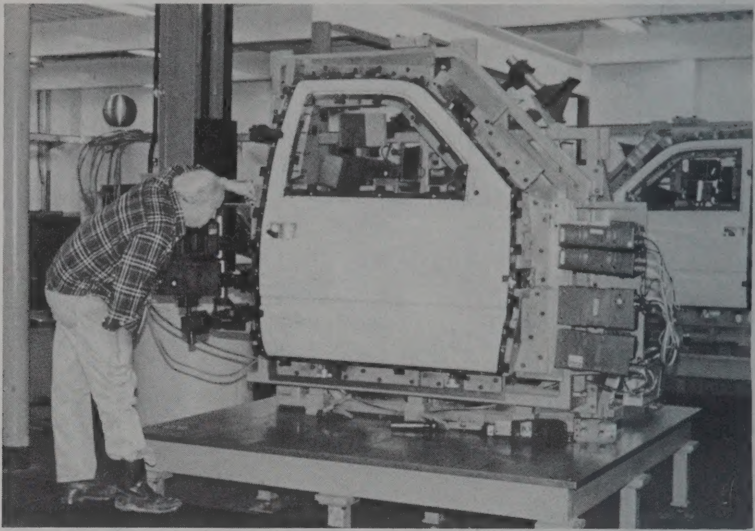


In addition to part handling, the robotic units are used to automatically apply sealants to improve rust corrosion protection.

1350 tons of steel are used daily in our stamping process.

Over 160 individual spotwelds are required to assemble a FLEETSIDE ASSEMBLY, thus insuring complete rigidity and integrity.

Control of quality is an integral and ongoing process in the manufacture of truck components. Here a door is checked by an inspector for adherence to critical dimensions.



A material handling device enables an operator to deftly handle and stack a 185 pound truck floor assembly for shipment.

85% of our annual 200,000,000 gallon water requirement comes from our own wells and much of this is recycled many times.

High-cube boxcar loads of sheet metal parts are shipped each day from our Distribution Center to various locations for assembly into finished vehicles. A nationwide computer system links all manufacturing and assembly plants so that the correct parts are available at the moment your custom ordered vehicle is being assembled.

CUBE

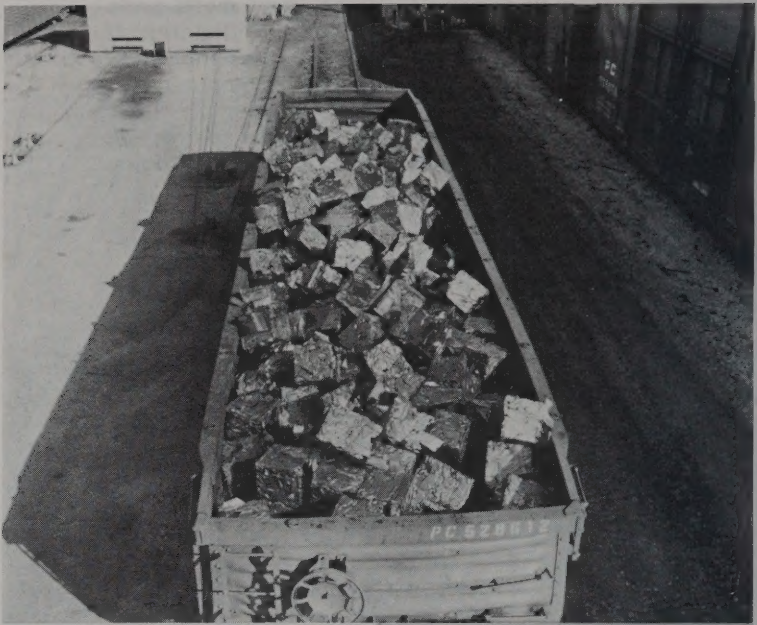
CUSHION

Sheet metal parts are conveyed from the plant to the Distribution Center on a computerized Power and Free conveyor system.

An initial charge of 32,000 gallons of reservoir water is cooled and recirculated many times. 1,285,000 gallons of water are then circulated daily to cool all of our welders.



Every day 400 tons of trimmings and scrap steel from the stamping process is compressed into 300-pound bales and shipped to foundries for recycling into automotive castings. Nearly one mile of underfloor conveyors gather this metal and carry it to the Baler Building.

The Indianapolis Plant is actively involved in the preservation of our environment. A 300,000-gallon capacity clarifyer removes pollutants from our run-off water.

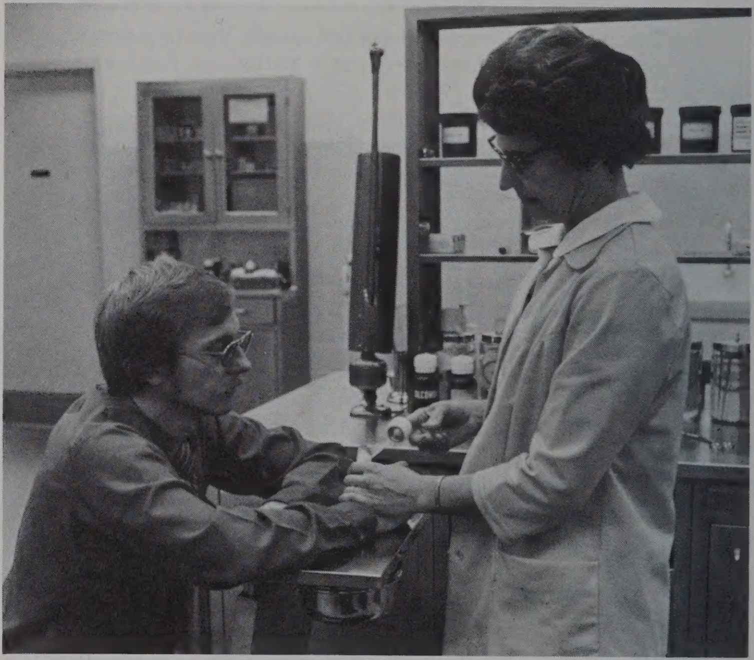
130 battery-powered forklift trucks, 67 material handling vehicles, 151 hand-operated transporters, 12 die handler trucks, and 960 batteries are required for heavy lifting and moving chores.

Our in-plant cafeterias serve hot meals. Vending areas throughout the plant provide a variety of food and beverages.

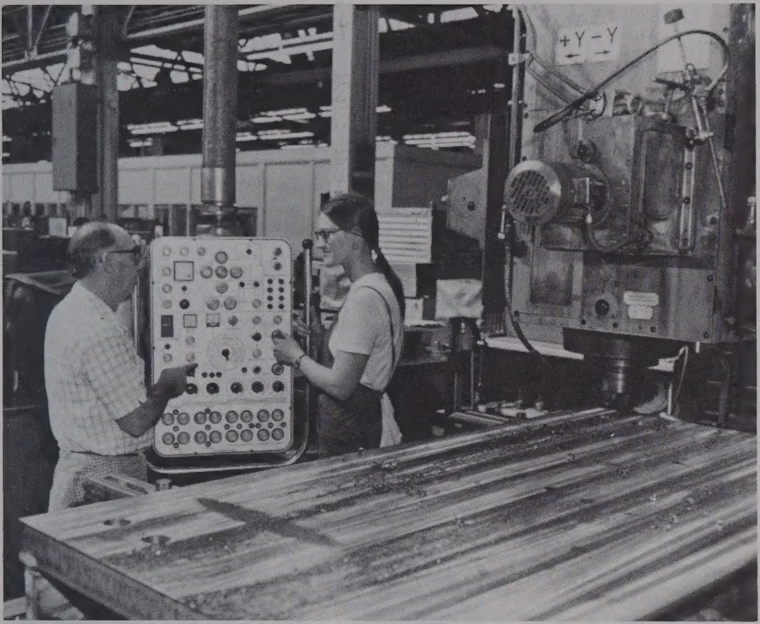
Conveniently located parking lots accommodate over 3,000 employe vehicles.

A trained Fire Brigade is ready at all times to assist our Plant Security Forces in the event of an emergency.

A modern Medical Facility including X-ray room, operating room, whirlpool baths and clinical laboratory are available at all times.



205 stamping presses and many underfloor and overhead conveyors are used throughout the plant.



Employe education and training are important functions at Truck & Bus Indianapolis. The General Motors Institute, College-Graduate-in-Training, Pre-Supervisory Training, GM Graduate Fellowship Plan, Tuition Assistance Program, Apprentice and Employe-in-Training programs are designed for employe development.

A fully equipped auditorium is used for many training programs and employe awareness meetings. The latest in audio visual aids assists program moderators in displaying agenda items and for interactive employe involvement.

Annually Truck & Bus Indianapolis spends over $77,000,000 with approximately 700 suppliers located in the Greater-Indianapolis area.

The Truck & Bus Indianapolis payroll exceeds $139,000,000 annually.

Today's IDEAS
Light
the Way
for a
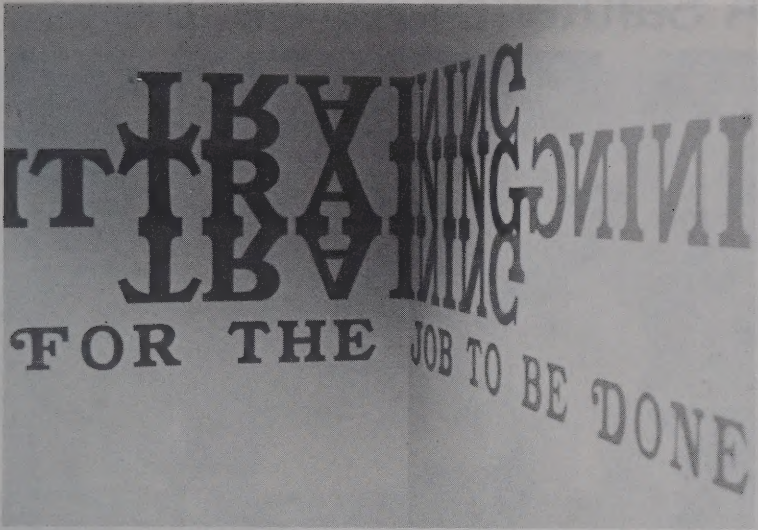
Tomorrow

Our suggestion plan, which is available to all employes, provides supplemental earnings of $25 up to $20,000 for accepted ideas.

Our plant is actively involved in community projects. Plant representatives oversee a number of programs as indicated here in an Applied Economics program at a local high school. Community involvement has always been one of our greatest assets.



As technology arrived, our plant was ready for the training of the job to be done. From robotics, to welding controls, to preventive maintenance, to positive leadership skills, the plant has involved itself in a massive educational program. The development and implementation of these necessary skills has been beneficial to our employes and is naturally reflected in the products delivered to our customers.

Nonprofits get creative aid for not much at all

Carole Stein heard the younger women who visited the NCJW Boutique saying it was kind of dull, and she wanted to do something about it.

As a nonprofit sharing space in the Julian Center's Northside Thrifty Threads shop, Stein had neither the money nor the expertise to spice up the space.

Then she heard about CreateAthon, a national program to do free advertising and marketing work for nonprofits. Vision3 has done 23 projects for 15 nonprofits worth about $200,000 since it began participating in CreateAthon two years ago.

This is the experience of just one 19-person agency holding its own during the recession, but it's indicative of the help others give to local nonprofits. It's the business community at its finest.

"When we looked at the picture boards of the work they'd done for us, it was just magic," Stein said.

Remaking the boutique, which carries higher-end second-hand goods, has doubled sales, she said. Higher sales mean more money to split with the Julian Center, which aids victims of domestic abuse. The other half of the proceeds supports programs at the local chapter of the National Council of Jewish Women.

That kind of result is what keeps Vision3 involved with CreateAthon, a 24-hour burst of creativity that reminds participants

"When we looked at the picture boards of the work they'd done for us, it was just magic," Stein said.

Remaking the boutique, which carries higher-end second-hand goods, has doubled sales, she said. Higher sales mean more money to split with the Julian Center, which aids victims of domestic abuse. The other half of the proceeds supports programs at the local chapter of the National Council of Jewish Women.

That kind of result is what keeps Vision3 involved with CreateAthon, a 24-hour burst of creativity that reminds participants of cramming in college. "It's a great way for the staff to bond," said Eric Davis, who calls himself the Multimedia Wizard. He co-founded the agency in January 2003 with Jeff Hopler, also known as the Art Czar.

"There's nothing like walking around Lockerbie at 2, 3 or 4 in the morning after you've been up 20 hours," said Jake Leeman, a so-called pixel wizard with the firm. "But it's really fun and interesting work."

Vision3, the only local agency involved with CreateAthon, is taking applications for the next burst of nonprofit creative energy. The deadline is July 20, and information is available at www.v3createathon.com.

CreateAthon began a dozen years ago at the RIGGS agency in Columbia, S.C. More than 40 agencies have participated since then, doing more than 2,000 projects for nonprofits. The total value of work done: $8.4 million.

Vision3 got involved when a former writer went to work for RIGGS. "He said we should check it out," Davis said. "We jumped in the following year."

The agency picks several nonprofits, and then the principals do the initial work to define the project. At 8 a.m. Aug. 27, the 17 other staff members get their first crack at the projects. For the next 24 frantic hours, they work up proposals.

The clients arrive at 8 a.m. Aug. 28 to see the results. "It's a great way for us to do pro bono work because it's very focused," Leeman said. "It's the kind of work that could get pushed aside otherwise, so we like this."

With the plan in hand, NCJW Boutique was able to solicit donations from other professionals, essentially doubling the boutique's revenue for nothing.

Now that's creative.

GM SITE'S FUTURE IS A BIG UNKNOWN

100-acre operation set to close in 2011 could continue centurylong industrial legacy or face redevelopment

It sprawls over 100 acres fronting the White River, a high-roofed factory that has pressed metal parts for General Motors vehicles for seven decades.

Now the massive Indianapolis stamping plant faces a planned closing within two years, and the city could confront one of its most daunting redevelopment challenges yet:

What to do with an old-line industrial site that's full of environmental unknowns and unlikely ever to be reused for the heavy manufacturing that GM has done there for three generations.

The plant's closing was confirmed by GM earlier this month, as it filed for a reorganization bankruptcy.

The city's first move will be to create a study group to review the possible future uses for the plant and surrounding land, which yield $3 million a year in property taxes, said Deputy Mayor Nick Weber.

"The bottom line is the city certainly understands the importance of the site," Weber said from his City-County Building office. "I can see it right now – the water tower with the GM logo on the side."

If no one has a clear vision yet for what the levee-protected site can be without GM, that's probably because few wanted to consider the thought of the once-mighty automaker ever vacating one of the largest factories in the state.

The 2.1 million-square-foot plant is 50 percent larger than the new Honda car assembly plant at Greensburg. Its presses

High-speed digital divide narrows

Some groups that have lagged in signing up for high-speed Internet service have started to gain, according to a new survey. Broadband usage among those 65 or older grew from 19 percent in May 2008 to 30 percent this April, the Pew Internet & American Life Project said Wednesday. Among households with annual incomes of less than $20,000, 35 percent subscribed, compared with 25 percent last year. By contrast, broadband penetration for $75,000-plus earners was unchanged at 85 percent. In rural America, a target for broadband stimulus money, broadband penetration grew to 46 percent from 38 percent.

» DUTIES: Corcella oversees all aspects of the general litigation firm, which offers legal services in the areas of business, employment, civil rights and family law.

» EXPERIENCE: Corcella previously was a grand jury supervisor for the Marion County prosecutor's office. Prior to that, she was chief deputy prosecutor for St. Joseph County. She was also chief of the investigations bureau and a special narcotics prosecutor for the city of New York. In addition, Corcella was chief of the general crimes unit, a U.S. attorney for the Eastern District of New York and an assistant district attorney for the district attorney's office in Manhattan, N.Y.

» EDUCATION: Bachelor's degree from George Washington University and law degree from Georgetown University Law Center.

» PERSONAL: She has a daughter. Her hobbies include photography, gardening, writing and spending time with family. She is a member of the national training faculty for the National Association of Attorneys General in Washington.

In September of 2005, I left the security of full employment to open my own law practice. I often look back and ask, "What was I thinking? No paycheck, no benefits, no paid vacation and no support?" It is an understatement to say that opening my own business was a risky proposition. Despite my aversion to change, I assumed the risk.

My big break came in February of 2000, when I boarded a plane for China. On the other side of the world waited a little girl who would soon be my daughter.

After a lengthy plane ride, I arrived in Guangdong Province and met Kathleen. In that instant, she became my daughter and my responsibility. We flew back home, my baby alternately sleeping and crying, to begin our life together as a family. At that time, I had no idea that adopting Kathleen, now a vibrant 10 -year-old, would change the course of my life and career.

Prior to adopting Kathleen, I worked many years in New York City, prosecuting the vilest criminals — robbers, murderers, loansharks, drug traffickers and the Mob (as in "The Sopranos").

While my legal career was exciting and challenging, I took few chances outside the courthouse. I lived in Brooklyn and stuck close to home. With the addition of Kathleen, I realized that I had to change the way I lived and worked. My apartment was too small to raise a child, and child-care costs were breaking the bank.

After months of trying to find a solution, a friend suggested I move to Indiana. Instinctively, I said, "No way, no how, just another crazy risk." Then I visited Indiana and realized this was a great place to raise a child. Once again, Kathleen and I boarded a plane for an unknown destiny.

I was fortunate to obtain employment in the St. Joseph County prosecutor's office, and later the Marion County prosecutor's office. There were child-care centers filled with warmth and love. We have a house with plenty of space and a neighborhood where the sounds of children at play fill the summer air. But my career continued to limit my time and energy for Kathleen.

I decided to open my own law firm. As every business owner knows, it is great to work for yourself, but extremely challenging to run the business. My experiences have taught me that it does take three to five years to establish a business. This is year four, and I am still standing.

I knew how to practice law. I did not know how to run a business. What legal services would the firm provide? Where was I going to find clients? What would I charge for my services? Like every small business owner, I had to find office space, set up a corporation, advertise, open bank accounts and develop the legal services to be provided.

I stumbled and fell more times than I can count. To paraphrase an old saying, it is not whether we fall, but whether we get up and keep going. I keep going because there is no risk in the business world as radical as adopting Kathleen.

Every night as I turn out the office lights, I marvel at the fact that I have my own business and have a life with my family. I know that the rewards have been far greater than the risks.

Economy, job loss got you down? Psychologist offers words of support

Michelle Singletary
COLOR OF MONEY

As the recession continues to roll along, it is taking an emotional toll on a lot of folks. So I asked Celeste Owens, a licensed psychologist and former faculty member at the University of Maryland, to help answer questions from people struggling to survive in this economy. Following is a transcript of that washingtonpost.com chat:

Question: I am stressed by the fragile economy, my job security, tremendous loss in my 401(k) and the fact that I am nearly 60. How can I weather this turbulent environment without jeopardizing my sanity?

Owens: Open your eyes and find what is good about this moment. Push past the fear. Concentrate on what really matters. What a waste of time to worry about something that may never be. There is a season for everything. This may feel like winter, but what follows winter? Spring — a time for new beginnings.

Q: It's getting more and more difficult to listen to my significant other talk about being unemployed (since October 2008). It burdens and pains my heart to see him struggle. We plan to marry. This situation hasn't affected our relationship, but I fear that it may.

Owens: I have discovered (through my own life challenges) that we learn the most about ourselves and the strength of our character from adversity. Although you are feeling burdened by his struggle, it's not yours to fix. Your words of encouragement are all that you can give, and that is enough.

Michelle Singletary: Also watch how he handles this financial crisis. Too few couples pay attention to how the other handles money issues that come up.

Q: My husband has been unemployed for a year. It's so hard to stay positive and to keep encouraging him (he's trying to find work, but our profession got hit hard). My husband gets depressed frequently so I feel like I need to lift him up. But his lack of contribution is really wearing on me. Every time I bring it up he just lowers his head, says I'm right and acts defeated. Help!

Owens: This just might be the time to re-evaluate, and consider a career move. I know, I know, what will he do? Ask him. Has he had a dream that he put on the back burner because he had to bring home the bacon? Well, this just might be the time to dust if off and move forward. What does he stand to lose?

On another note, if his depressive episodes are frequent he might consider seeing a therapist, psychiatrist or other trained professional. Those who are depressed often feel unmotivated.

Q: I'm at a place where I'm trying to figure out how to make do with less. I live alone so I don't have anyone to share bills with. I find myself angry whenever I write a check to pay a bill. I guess I'm just searching for a way to "feel" OK while cutting things out.

Owens: The key, gratitude. It's that simple. Your sacrifices now will make for a remarkable reward later. And what do you have to be grateful for? You live alone (at least you can do what you like, when you like). You are writing checks for bills (at least you have the money to pay the bills). You have bills (that means you have a roof over your head, electricity, etc.). I think you get the picture.

How often should I rebalance my investment portfolio?

Every Sunday, The Star asks local financial experts to respond to readers' questions on consumer and investor issues. If you have a question, please e-mail it to dwight.adams@indystar.com or mail it to: Personal Finance, The Star, P.O. Box 145, Indianapolis, IN 46206-0145.

Following asset-allocation principles is a popular way of investing. However, market conditions can, over time, leave a portfolio too heavily weighted in one sector or another. That's why financial experts advise rebalancing your portfolio at least once a year to return to your initial investment target or adjust for changing conditions. Members of the Financial Planning Association of Greater Indiana can help you make a decision. You can visit the group's Web site at www.fpagrindiana.org.

Ed Snyder

OAKTREE FINANCIAL ADVISORS

I recommend rebalancing as necessary.

For example, if the target allocation of the portfolio is 70 percent stocks and 30 percent bonds, it is time to rebalance when the allocation strays too far from that target.

How far is too far? We set rebalancing parameters by dividing asset classes into major asset classes and subclasses.

Major asset classes are stocks and bonds, and subclasses are investment divisions such as large-cap value and large-cap growth. A portfolio must be overweight or underweight by 7 percent in the ratio of stocks to bonds for us to consider rebalancing. This stock-to-bond allocation is the priority. As for the subclasses, a 2 or 3 percent change in allocation would make us consider rebalancing.

However, we don't want to micromanage investments and make minute changes too frequently. You have to factor in the impact of trading costs, including any trading fees and taxes.

On taxable accounts, you can rebalance when you add new money without having to sell your winners and create taxable gains.

You can also have dividend and capital gains distributions paid into a money market account and use that cash for rebalancing.

Securities and investment advisory services are offered through InterSecurities, a member FINRA, SIPC and a registered investment adviser.

Nancy Cooper Pitt

MILLER CUNNING & PITT

So you've established an asset-allocation strategy that is right for you, but at the end of the year, you find that the weighting of asset classes in your portfolio has changed.

What happened?

Although some securities maintain steady values over long periods of time, most securities increase or decrease in value annually. As those values change, so does the weighting of each asset and each asset class.

Portfolio rebalancing is like a tuneup. It is accomplished by buying and selling portions of the portfolio to return the weight of each asset class to its initial state.

Or if your investment strategy or tolerance for risk has changed, you can use rebalancing to readjust the weightings of each security and asset class in your portfolio to satisfy your new asset-allocation goals.

The frequency with which you should rebalance depends on your transaction costs, personal preferences and tax considerations.

For most people, once a year is appropriate. To help you remember when to do it, select an annual date you won't forget. And do it at a time when you are not going to be influenced by emotions or market timing.

A word of caution: the process of rebalancing an account other than a qualified retirement plan could generate capital gains and losses. You should consult with your tax adviser to avoid any undesired tax consequences.

STRATEGIC PLANNING GROUP

How often should I rebalance my portfolio?

First, let's take a look at why you would rebalance your portfolio in the first place.

Rebalancing is done to keep your portfolio in line with an asset-allocation target. A diversified portfolio takes into consideration many factors, including risk tolerance and time horizon, to create an asset-allocation model.

An example of this is the ABC portfolio, comprised of blue-chip stocks, international stocks, technology stocks, and bonds with 25 percent invested in each.

Let's assume technology stocks outperformed other areas of the portfolio, and tech stocks make up over 50 percent of the portfolio.

Now it's the year 2000, and the technology bubble has burst, creating a dramatic decline in the ABC portfolio. If the portfolio had been rebalanced, at least annually, the overall loss may have been reduced, since all sectors did not see the same decline.

Let's assume you decided to rebalance your portfolio, how often should it be done, and how do you achieve it?

To rebalance, you can shift assets from the top-performing sectors, you can shift assets from the underperformers or you can add new money to bring the percentages back in line with the target.

You also should determine the frequency of the rebalancing.

One maxim is to rebalance your portfolio annually, but sometimes doing so semiannually or even quarterly may be warranted.

You should discuss this with your investment adviser to determine the best rebalancing method.

Lower student loan rates: time to lock in?

Federal subsidized loan rates to drop July 1; fees on Staffords also falling

By Sandra Block
USA Today

Starting next month, the cost of borrowing from the federal government using Stafford loans will drop for thousands of college students.

On July 1, the interest rate for new subsidized Stafford loans for undergraduate students will drop to 5.6 percent from the current rate of 6 percent. This rate, which applies to loans issued between July 1 and June 30, 2010, will remain in effect for the life of the loan. Subsidized Stafford loans are available for borrowers who demonstrate financial need.

The reduction is part of a series of rate cuts embedded in a $20 billion college aid bill signed into law in 2007. The lower rate won't affect loans issued before July 1, said Bob Murray, spokesman for USA Funds, the nation's largest student loan guarantor. "If you're an undergraduate with a subsidized loan and got it last year, the rate is 6 percent and will stay 6 percent for the life of the loan," he said.

Rates for new unsubsidized Stafford loans, which are available for all students, will remain at 6.8 percent. However, all Stafford borrowers will get a break on upfront borrower fees, Murray said. On July 1, the maximum fee that lenders will be permitted to charge on Stafford loans disbursed between July 1 and June 30, 2010, will drop to 1.5 percent from 2 percent. Upfront fees are deducted from the loan amount when the loan is disbursed.

Lower rate for old loans

If you have federal student loans issued before July 1, 2006, there's even better news. On July 1, the repayment rate on those loans will drop to 2.48 percent from the current rate of 4.21 percent. Interest rates on federal PLUS loans — Parent Loan for Undergraduate Students — issued before July 1, 2006, will drop to 3.28 percent from 5.01 percent.

Borrowers who consolidate these loans after July 1 will lock in a rate of 2.5 percent for the life of the loan. Borrowers who are in their grace period, the six-month interval between graduation and the start of repayments, can lock in a rate of 2 percent. PLUS loan borrowers who consolidate can lock in a rate of 3.38 percent.

Rates on student loans issued before July 2006 are based on the rate for Treasury bills at the last auction in May. This year, the T-bill rate was 0.18 percent — "as close to zero as you can get," said Mark Kantrowitz, publisher of FinAid.org, a financial aid Web site. Since it's unlikely rates will go lower, locking in current rates is a smart move.

You only get one chance to consolidate your student loans. If you've already consolidated, you can't reconsolidate and lower your rate.

You can still consolidate your loans through the Federal Direct Loan Program.

There are two types of student loans: Federal Family Education Loans, which are offered by private lenders and guaranteed by the government, and Federal Direct student loans, which are offered directly to students at schools that participate in the direct lending program. You can consolidate FFEL loans through the Federal Direct Loan Program. You can find more information at www.loanconsolidation.ed.gov.

Federal vs. private

Even if you don't qualify for a subsidized student loan, a 6.8 percent fixed interest rate is probably better than you'll find in the private student loan market. Federal student loans also offer more flexible repayment terms than private loans.

Yet, every year, thousands of students who are eligible for federal student loans borrow using more costly private loans. One reason may be that private loans are easier to get, Kantrowitz said. To qualify for a federal student loans, you must fill out the Free Application for Federal Student Aid.

The Obama administration has pledged to make the FAFSA more accessible. But in the meantime, if you plan to borrow, completing the FAFSA is worth the trouble, Kantrowitz said. You can find more information about the FAFSA at www.fafsa.ed.gov.

MY BIG BREAK

A baby from China led way to Indiana

Who: Ellen Corcella, founder and owner of Corcella Law.

In September of 2005, I left the security of full employment to open my own law practice. I often look back and ask, "What was I thinking? No paycheck, no benefits, no paid vacation and no support?" It is an understatement to say that opening my own business was a risky proposition. Despite my aversion to change, I assumed the risk.

My big break came in February of 2000, when I boarded a plane for China. On the other side of the world waited a little girl who would soon be my daughter.

After a lengthy plane ride, I arrived in Guangdong Province and met Kathleen. In that instant, she became my daughter and my responsibility. We flew back home, my baby alternately sleeping and crying, to begin our life together as a family. At that time, I had no idea that adopting Kathleen, now a vibrant 10 -year-old, would change the course of my life and career.

Prior to adopting Kathleen, I worked many years in New York City, prosecuting the vilest criminals — robbers, murderers, loansharks, drug traffickers and the Mob (as in "The Sopranos").

While my legal career was exciting and challenging, I took few chances outside the courthouse. I lived in Brooklyn and stuck close to home. With the addition of Kathleen, I realized that I had to change the way I lived and worked. My apartment was too small to raise a child, and child-care costs were breaking the bank.

After months of trying to find a solution, a friend suggested I move to Indiana. Instinctively, I said, "No way, no how, just another crazy risk." Then I visited Indiana and realized this was a great place to raise a child. Once again, Kathleen and I boarded a plane for an unknown destiny.

I was fortunate to obtain employment in the St. Joseph County prosecutor's office, and later the Marion County prosecutor's office. There were child-care centers filled with warmth and love. We have a house with plenty of space and a neighborhood where the sounds of children at play fill the summer air. But my career continued to limit my time and energy for Kathleen.

I decided to open my own law firm. As every business owner knows, it is great to work for yourself, but extremely challenging to run the business. My experiences have taught me that it does take three to five years to establish a business. This is year four, and I am still standing.

I knew how to practice law. I did not know how to run a business. What legal services would the firm provide? Where was I going to find clients? What would I charge for my services? Like every small business owner, I had to find office space, set up a corporation, advertise, open bank accounts and develop the legal services to be provided.

I stumbled and fell more times than I can count. To paraphrase an old saying, it is not whether we fall, but whether we get up and keep going. I keep going because there is no risk in the business world as radical as adopting Kathleen.

Every night as I turn out the office lights, I marvel at the fact that I have my own business and have a life with my family. I know that the rewards have been far greater than the risks.

Economy, job loss got you down? Psychologist offers words of support

Michelle Singletary
COLOR OF MONEY

As the recession continues to roll along, it is taking an emotional toll on a lot of folks. So I asked Celeste Owens, a licensed psychologist and former faculty member at the University of Maryland, to help answer questions from people struggling to survive in this economy. Following is a transcript of that washingtonpost.com chat:

Question: I am stressed by the fragile economy, my job security, tremendous loss in my 401(k) and the fact that I am nearly 60. How can I weather this turbulent environment without jeopardizing my sanity?

Owens: Open your eyes and find what is good about this moment. Push past the fear. Concentrate on what really matters. What a waste of time to worry about something that may never be. There is a season for everything. This may feel like winter, but what follows winter? Spring — a time for new beginnings.

Q: It's getting more and more difficult to listen to my significant other talk about being unemployed (since October 2008). It burdens and pains my heart to see him struggle. We plan to marry. This situation hasn't affected our relationship, but I fear that it may.

Owens: I have discovered (through my own life challenges) that we learn the most about ourselves and the strength of our character from adversity. Although you are feeling burdened by his struggle, it's not yours to fix. Your words of encouragement are all that you can give, and that is enough.

Michelle Singletary: Also watch how he handles this financial crisis. Too few couples pay attention to how the other handles money issues that come up.

Q: My husband has been unemployed for a year. It's so hard to stay positive and to keep encouraging him (he's trying to find work, but our profession got hit hard). My husband gets depressed frequently so I feel like I need to lift him up. But his lack of contribution is really wearing on me. Every time I bring it up he just lowers his head, says I'm right and acts defeated. Help!

Owens: This just might be the time to re-evaluate, and consider a career move. I know, I know, what will he do? Ask him. Has he had a dream that he put on the back burner because he had to bring home the bacon? Well, this just might be the time to dust if off and move forward. What does he stand to lose?

On another note, if his depressive episodes are frequent he might consider seeing a therapist, psychiatrist or other trained professional. Those who are depressed often feel unmotivated.

Q: I'm at a place where I'm trying to figure out how to make do with less. I live alone so I don't have anyone to share bills with. I find myself angry whenever I write a check to pay a bill. I guess I'm just searching for a way to "feel" OK while cutting things out.

Owens: The key, gratitude. It's that simple. Your sacrifices now will make for a remarkable reward later. And what do you have to be grateful for? You live alone (at least you can do what you like, when you like). You are writing checks for bills (at least you have the money to pay the bills). You have bills (that means you have a roof over your head, electricity, etc.). I think you get the picture.

How often should I rebalance my investment portfolio?

Every Sunday, The Star asks local financial experts to respond to readers' questions on consumer and investor issues. If you have a question, please e-mail it to dwight.adams@indystar.com or mail it to: Personal Finance, The Star, P.O. Box 145, Indianapolis, IN 46206-0145.

Following asset-allocation principles is a popular way of investing. However, market conditions can, over time, leave a portfolio too heavily weighted in one sector or another. That's why financial experts advise rebalancing your portfolio at least once a year to return to your initial investment target or adjust for changing conditions. Members of the Financial Planning Association of Greater Indiana can help you make a decision. You can visit the group's Web site at www.fpagrindiana.org.

Ed Snyder

OAKTREE FINANCIAL ADVISORS

I recommend rebalancing as necessary.

For example, if the target allocation of the portfolio is 70 percent stocks and 30 percent bonds, it is time to rebalance when the allocation strays too far from that target.

How far is too far? We set rebalancing parameters by dividing asset classes into major asset classes and subclasses.

Major asset classes are stocks and bonds, and subclasses are investment divisions such as large-cap value and large-cap growth. A portfolio must be overweight or underweight by 7 percent in the ratio of stocks to bonds for us to consider rebalancing. This stock-to-bond allocation is the priority. As for the subclasses, a 2 or 3 percent change in allocation would make us consider rebalancing.

However, we don't want to micromanage investments and make minute changes too frequently. You have to factor in the impact of trading costs, including any trading fees and taxes.

On taxable accounts, you can rebalance when you add new money without having to sell your winners and create taxable gains.

You can also have dividend and capital gains distributions paid into a money market account and use that cash for rebalancing.

Nancy Cooper Pitt

MILLER CUNNING & PITT

So you've established an asset-allocation strategy that is right for you, but at the end of the year, you find that the weighting of asset classes in your portfolio has changed.

What happened?

Although some securities maintain steady values over long periods of time, most securities increase or decrease in value annually. As those values change, so does the weighting of each asset and each asset class.

Portfolio rebalancing is like a tuneup. It is accomplished by buying and selling portions of the portfolio to return the weight of each asset class to its initial state.

Or if your investment strategy or tolerance for risk has changed, you can use rebalancing to readjust the weightings of each security and asset class in your portfolio to satisfy your new asset-allocation goals.

The frequency with which you should rebalance depends on your transaction costs, personal preferences and tax considerations.

For most people, once a year is appropriate. To help you remember when to do it, select an annual date you won't forget. And do it at a time when you are not going to be influenced by emotions or market timing.

A word of caution: the process of rebalancing an account other than a qualified retirement plan could generate capital gains and losses. You should consult with your tax adviser to avoid any undesired tax consequences.

Marie S. Marks

STRATEGIC PLANNING GROUP

How often should I rebalance my portfolio?

First, let's take a look at why you would rebalance your portfolio in the first place.

Rebalancing is done to keep your portfolio in line with an asset-allocation target. A diversified portfolio takes into consideration many factors, including risk tolerance and time horizon, to create an asset-allocation model.

An example of this is the ABC portfolio, comprised of blue-chip stocks, international stocks, technology stocks, and bonds with 25 percent invested in each.

Let's assume technology stocks outperformed other areas of the portfolio, and tech stocks make up over 50 percent of the portfolio.

Now it's the year 2000, and the technology bubble has burst, creating a dramatic decline in the ABC portfolio. If the portfolio had been rebalanced, at least annually, the overall loss may have been reduced, since all sectors did not see the same decline.

Let's assume you decided to rebalance your portfolio, how often should it be done, and how do you achieve it?

To rebalance, you can shift assets from the top-performing sectors, you can shift assets from the underperformers or you can add new money to bring the percentages back in line with the target.

You also should determine the frequency of the rebalancing.

One maxim is to rebalance your portfolio annually, but sometimes doing so semiannually or even quarterly may be warranted.

You should discuss this with your investment adviser to determine the best rebalancing method.

Lower student loan rates: time to lock in?

USA Today

Starting next month, the cost of borrowing from the federal government using Stafford loans will drop for thousands of college students.

On July 1, the interest rate for new subsidized Stafford loans for undergraduate students will drop to 5.6 percent from the current rate of 6 percent. This rate, which applies to loans issued between July 1 and June 30, 2010, will remain in effect for the life of the loan. Subsidized Stafford loans are available for borrowers who demonstrate financial need.

The reduction is part of a series of rate cuts embedded in a $20 billion college aid bill signed into law in 2007. The lower rate won't affect loans issued before July 1, said Bob Murray, spokesman for USA Funds, the nation's largest student loan guarantor. "If you're an undergraduate with a subsidized loan and got it last year, the rate is 6 percent and will stay 6 percent for the life of the loan," he said.

Rates for new unsubsidized Stafford loans, which are available for all students, will remain at 6.8 percent. However, all Stafford borrowers will get a break on upfront borrower fees, Murray said. On July 1, the maximum fee that lenders will be permitted to charge on Stafford loans disbursed between July 1 and June 30, 2010, will drop to 1.5 percent from 2 percent. Upfront fees are deducted from the loan amount when the loan is disbursed.

Lower rate for old loans

If you have federal student loans issued before July 1, 2006, there's even better news. On July 1, the repayment rate on those loans will drop to 2.48 percent from the current rate of 4.21 percent. Interest rates on federal PLUS loans — Parent Loan for Undergraduate Students — issued before July 1, 2006, will drop to 3.28 percent from 5.01 percent.

Borrowers who consolidate these loans after July 1 will lock in a rate of 2.5 percent for the life of the loan. Borrowers who are in their grace period, the six-month interval between graduation and the start of repayments, can lock in a rate of 2 percent. PLUS loan borrowers who consolidate can lock in a rate of 3.38 percent.

Rates on student loans issued before July 2006 are based on the rate for Treasury bills at the last auction in May. This year, the T-bill rate was 0.18 percent — "as close to zero as you can get," said Mark Kantrowitz, publisher of FinAid.org, a financial aid Web site. Since it's unlikely rates will go lower, locking in current rates is a smart move.

You only get one chance to consolidate your student loans. If you've already consolidated, you can't reconsolidate and lower your rate.

You can still consolidate your loans through the Federal Direct Loan Program.

There are two types of student loans: Federal Family Education Loans, which are offered by private lenders and guaranteed by the government, and Federal Direct student loans, which are offered directly to students at schools that participate in the direct lending program. You can consolidate FFEL loans through the Federal Direct Loan Program. You can find more information at www.loanconsolidation.ed.gov.

Federal vs. private

Even if you don't qualify for a subsidized student loan, a 6.8 percent fixed interest rate is probably better than you'll find in the private student loan market. Federal student loans also offer more flexible repayment terms than private loans.

Yet, every year, thousands of students who are eligible for federal student loans borrow using more costly private loans. One reason may be that private loans are easier to get, Kantrowitz said. To qualify for a federal student loans, you must fill out the Free Application for Federal Student Aid.

The Obama administration has pledged to make the FAFSA more accessible. But in the meantime, if you plan to borrow, completing the FAFSA is worth the trouble, Kantrowitz said. You can find more information about the FAFSA at www.fafsa.ed.gov.

A potential deal to sell the General Motors stamping plant could save one of Indianapolis' last huge automotive factories.

General Motors is in the early phases of negotiating the sale of the massive Near-Westside plant to JD Norman Industries, a small manufacturer founded six years ago in Addison, Ill.

Officials at the United Auto Workers union, the city and GM confirmed sale talks are under way for a plant scheduled to close in fall 2011.

The possibility of keeping a multibillion-dollar factory in the tax base brings a fresh glimmer to Indianapolis and Marion County, a city hit by plummeting tax revenues and a 10.1 percent unemployment rate.

The Illinois company is angling for orders from GM as well as other automakers and suggests it might hire an additional 1,900 workers over the next few years in Indianapolis if car sales take off nationwide.

"It's early in the negotiating process, but we're excited about it. It could be a great fit," said Michael Huber, director of enterprise development in Mayor Greg Ballard's administration.

DVD rival has Netflix seeing red

Sales growth surging for kiosk operator Redbox

Associated Press

BELLEVUE, Wash. — With more subscribers than ever flocking to its DVD-by-mail service, Netflix is one of the few companies to prosper during the worst U.S. recession in 70 years. Yet Netflix CEO Reed Hastings still has something to worry about: an even cheaper DVD rental service run by one of his former lieutenants.

Once just an incongruous experiment amid the burgers and fries at McDonald's restaurants, Redbox has emerged as the largest operator of DVD-rental kiosks, with more than 15,400 vending machines set up to dispense $1-per-day discs in supermarkets and discount stores.

With Redbox opening an average of one kiosk per hour to lure budget-conscious consumers, Hastings is concerned that this upstart might upstage Netflix, whose cheapest mail-order plan costs $5 for two movie rentals in a month.

"By the end of the year, kiosks will likely be our number one competitor," Hastings said in a recent conference call. "There are already more kiosks in America than video stores."

More frugal consumer

The fight for DVD-rental loyalties figures to intensify as Netflix, Redbox, Blockbuster and others vie for the attention of frugal consumers looking for inexpensive home entertainment. According to research from PricewaterhouseCoopers, Americans last year spent less money buying DVDs and more on rentals from stores, kiosks and online services such as Netflix. The trend is expected to continue this year.

Redbox began in 2002 as a way for McDonald's Corp. to expand beyond the burger business. A strategy group inside the company tested a few "automated retail" ideas, as it called them.

"Vending sounded so last-century," said Gregg Kaplan, who led Redbox from its inception until April, when he became chief operating officer of its parent company, Coinstar.

The group running Redbox grew from operating 12 of the DVD machines to about 900 in three years. By the middle of 2005, Redbox was itching to expand beyond burger joints, and McDonald's agreed to let it seek out another partner.

Passing to Coinstar

Coinstar already had a national sales team placing machines that converted loose change into bills in supermarkets, drugstores and other retailers — relationships it could use to pave the way for Redbox kiosks, too. In 2005 and 2006, Bellevue, Wash.-based Coinstar invested $37 million in Redbox and took majority ownership, and this year Coinstar bought out McDonald's and other investors for up to $25 million.

Redbox, still based near McDonald's in Oakbrook Terrace, Ill., said in May 2008 that it planned to go public, but the economy deteriorated and an IPO never materialized. Now DVD kiosks account for more than half of Coinstar's sales and profit. That profit more than doubled in the last quarter on sales that rose even more swiftly to $154 million. (An undisclosed portion of that came from DVDXpress, a much smaller kiosk chain Coinstar also owns.)

Meanwhile, Netflix grew at a slower pace, with first-quarter revenue rising 21 percent to $394 million.

Mitch Lowe, Redbox's president, came to the company after six years with Netflix, where he was vice president of business development. While at Netflix, he managed one of the company's competitive advantages: a popular system that recommends lesser-known movies to subscribers based on ratings for films they've already watched. That helps Netflix's 10.3 million customers sift through 100,000 movie titles.

In contrast, Redbox machines carry about 700 discs with 200 titles, mainly recent releases, and rely instead on the $1 nightly rate to encourage people to experiment. Four million people have swiped a card at one of the kiosks in the past month.

Another difference: Because Netflix pays postage twice for every DVD it rents out, it does best when customers choose ambitious subscription plans but are slow to watch and return movies. By comparison, Redbox's profits depend on it renting out each disc as many times as possible before demand for the movie peters out.

stand two stories high. Its work force topped 5,000 in the 1980s, though it's now dwindled to 1,000.

Some hold out hope the plant can be sold, and GM might sweeten the deal by contracting stamping work to the plant.

"If they load this plant up with service work, it would be attractive for a buyer. I just hope somebody out there can put a business plan in place to make the thing work," said James Kendall, president of United Auto Workers Local 23, which represents workers at the plant.

But Kendall concedes his statement is based on hope, not any definite plan by GM. "The picture's ugly. It's kind of somber around here," he said. GM's already been looking for buyers for the plant and has no takers.

The scheduled December 2011 shutdown could happen even earlier if demand dries up for the plant's products, said GM spokesman Dan Flores.

"We are staring at the harsh reality we have too much manufacturing capacity. These are difficult things we have to do to reinvent the company," he said. "We know that closing this plant is difficult for the community. We've enjoyed doing business in Indianapolis."

GM's normal "decommissioning process" for a plant calls for doing an environmental assessment and a real estate study to determine how marketable the site is. Those studies haven't yet started for the stamping plant, Flores said.

Much of the once-bustling plant already is in shutdown mode. The sprawling parking lots to the south are barely half-full at peak work times. The west gate is locked and no longer in use, though a sign still orders arriving truck drivers to "contact gate guard Ironman" on CB radio to be put into a staging line for unloading.

Almost half of the plant's two dozen stamping lines have been removed in the past decade, with some ending up in China, Kendall said. GM uses much of the vacant space where the presses once stood to stack the forming dies for the many parts the plant has stamped over the years.

In recent years, the plant has stamped hoods, fenders, floor pans and other replacement parts for older GM cars, not new models. Taking away the more lucrative new-car business over the past 10 years was a sign GM was looking to phase the plant out.

It's been years since the plant teemed with so many workers that they had to park on residential side streets, said Lloyd Hicks, a retired Indianapolis Power & Light employee who lives with his wife, Donna, in a frame house a block south of the plant.

"I hate to see it go," he said. But Hicks said a bigger worry for him is the growing number of vacant homes on his street.

In the past, several GM plant workers lived around them, said Donna Hicks, but now she doesn't know of any GM workers living nearby.

As for the plant's post-GM future, it's probably too large to be bought by an independent company that produces small lots of stamped parts for numerous users, said Laurie Harbour, president of Harbour-Felax Group, a Detroit automotive consultant.

She thinks the plant might be useful to a large stamping company that would sell large numbers of new parts to the big U.S. automakers at a cost less than the automakers would have producing the parts with their unionized work forces.

But the plant's closing comes at a time when the market is flush with unneeded metal stamping presses, as automakers cut capacity to adjust to softening demand for cars, pickups, vans and SUVs.

"It's a buyer's market" for stamping presses, said Ginny Bryant, owner of Choice Presses, a Charlevoix, Mich., machinery reseller. Closings of auto supply plants "are going to be flooding the market" with presses, driving down resale prices to $150,000 to $495,000 for older presses that cost over $2 million new, she said.

The land where the GM plant stands has been home to industrial uses since the late 1800s, when horse-drawn wagons were made at the site. GM will be one of the last big manufacturers to pull out of the area.

AM General closed its stamping and assembly plant adjacent to the GM plant in 1997. It's now used by a metal salvage operation and a rubber recycler.

"I'd like to see somebody else get in there" if GM pulls out. "But I think the day of large factories like that may be over," said Randy Routier, president of Hoosier Machine & Welding, a heavy equipment repair company that operates near the GM plant's west gate.

Environmental issues, like possible soil contamination, pose a big question mark to redeveloping the site when GM pulls out.

If the site is redeveloped, contamination could dictate what goes there. State law requires more intense and costly cleanups of land used for apartments or houses, while industrial land doesn't need the same amount of remediation, said Chris Harrell, redevelopment coordinator for Indianapolis' "brownfield" program. It deals with 600 "brownfield" sites in the city whose sale is hindered because of actual or perceived environmental issues.

The head of West Indianapolis Community Development Corp., Jeff Gearhart, said the GM site should be attractive to developers because it fronts the White River and a planned extension of the city's hiking-biking greenway system. It's also a five-minute drive over the Oliver Avenue Bridge to major Downtown attractions, such as Lucas Oil Stadium and Circle Centre mall.

A study the neighborhood group did last year with students from Indiana University-Purdue University Indianapolis suggested the 100-acre site lends itself to residential development on the east and light industrial uses to the west.

If GM follows through on its plan and vacates the factory, the hope among businesses and residents of the Near Westside is to find a new user quickly. The area already is pockmarked with empty commercial buildings along Oliver Avenue, which borders the GM plant to the south. Among the latest casualties is Hoffa's Silver Cafe, where a hand-written sign on the front door says "Closed by owner."

"No one wants to see a vacant industrial site sitting empty," Gearhart said. He hopes the city can find a worthy successor to GM when the day comes that its name disappears from the water tower that has long represented industrial might on the Near Westside.

A potential deal to sell the General Motors stamping plant could save one of Indianapolis' last huge automotive factories.

General Motors is in the early phases of negotiating the sale of the massive Near-Westside plant to JD Norman Industries, a small manufacturer founded six years ago in Addison, Ill.

Officials at the United Auto Workers union, the city and GM confirmed sale talks are under way for a plant scheduled to close in fall 2011.

The possibility of keeping a multibillion-dollar factory in the tax base brings a fresh glimmer to Indianapolis and Marion County, a city hit by plummeting tax revenues and a 10.1 percent unemployment rate.

The Illinois company is angling for orders from GM as well as other automakers and suggests it might hire an additional 1,900 workers over the next few years in Indianapolis if car sales take off nationwide.

"It's early in the negotiating process, but we're excited about it. It could be a great fit," said Michael Huber, director of enterprise development in Mayor Greg Ballard's administration.

Other possible buyers also have stepped up, but GM singled

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — Florida Gov. Charlie Crist, headed for defeat in the Republican Senate primary, intends to bolt the party and run as an independent, three confidants said Wednesday, setting up an unpredictable three-way race for a seat that once seemed his to lose.

Crist's expected announcement would clear the way for conservative Marco Rubio, once a long shot, to claim the GOP nomination in the state's Aug. 24 primary. Democratic Rep. Kendrick Meek is all but certain to win his party's nomination.

Crist will announce his plans at 5 p.m. today in his hometown of St. Petersburg. The confidants who conveyed word of his decision spoke on condition of anonymity, but they said they had spoken directly with Crist. One cautioned, however, that the governor can be unpredictable.

Cape Cod prompts concern

DAVID BEBBER / Associated Press

COMING SOON? Developers of the Cape Wind project, set to be built off the Massachusetts coast, hope to begin construction this year and start generating power by late 2012 — provided the venture isn't stopped by further lawsuits.

BOSTON — A whole new way of generating electricity in the U.S. drew a big step closer to reality Wednesday, and it could look like this: 130 windmills, 440 feet tall, rising from the ocean a few miles off Cape Cod.

After more than eight years of lawsuits and government reviews, the Obama administration cleared the way for the nation's first offshore wind farm.

out the aggressive interest of the Illinois company during a meeting Tuesday with workers in the factory.

"JD Norman surfaced in GM's search process as probably the best potential buyer for the plant," said Maurice "Mo" Davison, UAW Region 3 director. "The biggest thing is, it is going to keep jobs in Indianapolis."

After the old industrial core was hollowed out by more than 40,000 job losses in recent decades, Indianapolis rebounded as a services-dominated city in the 1990s.

Despite the new economy, analysts say many city residents still long for the higher wages of manufacturing instead of the lower-pay service work. In 2008, industrial wages and benefits averaged $105,000 per year in the city, more than double the $47,700 average wage paid by all industries, reports the Indiana Business Research Center.

But if the Illinois company can pull off a deal, it doesn't necessarily mean an income boom for blue-collar Indianapolis.

Employment in the plant could surge to 2,500 workers, Davison said. But the new hires are likely to be in their 20s and 30s and willing to start at lower wages.

Although the new owner most likely would inherit a UAW contract, two-tier pay scales put in place last year to help stabilize the ailing Detroit automakers would bring in new workers at the lower level. This means about $15 an hour for new employees, compared with the prevailing $29-per-hour wage in the UAW contract.

"What we were facing — nobody likes the second-tier idea — but we were looking at work leaving us because of the competitive situation," Davison said. "It made sense to support a two-tier wage scale."

That's bound to help Norman Industries or another buyer for the Indianapolis plant. Lower payroll could help bring down prices and secure business with foreign automakers, which operate almost entirely in non-union environments.

Just how much of Indianapolis stamping might be put into production remains an open question. GM has operated the plant since 1930. Back then, the company was scaled to dominate half the market on its way to becoming the world's largest corporation.

In 2007, GM said the plant would close or change hands by September 2011, when the four-year labor contract expires.

Now, GM is selling off unwanted assets, a process that goes back two decades and accelerated last summer as its bankruptcy ended.

It is cutting production capacity to handle about 20 percent of the U.S. vehicle market. One of its biggest cutbacks is in stamping. It recently closed its metal plant in Grand Rapids, Mich., and moved the massive transfer presses to its stamping plant in Marion, Ind.

GM surprised workers and union officials by revealing the Indianapolis factory was up for sale to Norman Industries. It was taken as a sign that negotiations are firmly under way.

"The city has met with the principals in the company," Huber said. "The state has also met with the principals. We understand that things are preliminary. There's just a letter of intent."

Taking over the Indianapolis plant would hand Norman Industries a massive boost in production capacity. The plant is one of the largest factories in the state. The Illinois company is now studying the plant and its financial books, looking for potential pitfalls.

The company has acquired a number of companies in recent years, but none has the sheer capacity of the old GM plant.

Its ranking executive, Justin D. Norman, 34, founded the venture in 2004. He did not return calls seeking comment. In its news releases, the company describes itself as a diversified company, saying it is "a leader in the manufacturing of metal stampings, four-slide/multislide metal components, CNC wire forms, coiled springs and value-added assemblies."

The company said it markets products and services to global customers in aerospace and defense, vehicle manufacturing, building technologies, and the electronics and medical sectors.

In 2005, Norman Industries took control of John Amann & Sons, a metal stamper founded in Illinois in 1904. Since then, the company has acquired HSM Industries in Mexico as well as KL Industries in Illinois and the Brooklyn, Ohio, stamping plant of Plastech Engineered Products, a Michigan auto-parts maker.

In the talks with GM, Norman Industries came along in the final year of life for Indianapolis stamping.

In 2007, GM negotiated a four-year master labor contract with the UAW and said the measure contained no new work for the Indianapolis plant. At that time, GM said the plant would close or change hands by September 2011, when the labor contract expires.

Since then, a plant that had more than 1,000 workers in the 1990s steadily reduced its work force and output, raising fears that it would go the way of the old automotive behemoths that once underpinned the city's tax base.

Ford's steering gear plant has already wound down, and Chrysler's foundry was razed in 2005. Allison Transmission, a former GM complex, is operating in the hands of investors, while Navistar International's foundry is closing July 16, following the shutdown last year of the diesel engine plant next door on Brookville Road.

In forms filed with the state Tuesday, Navistar described July 16 as the "anticipated" closing date for the foundry, officially called Indianapolis Casting Corp.

Navistar and GM stamping are part of an industrial district that once included Western Electric telephones, Jenn-Air appliances, RCA televisions and Chrysler electrical parts. All those plants have closed.

GM stamping — the plant's white water tower is the prominent landmark visible from Downtown and the zoo — has been an industrial site since 1884, when Martin-Parry Manufacturing opened one of the world's largest wooden wagon factories.

In 1930, GM acquired Martin-Parry's successor, which had made truck bodies on the site for GM since 1916.

After 100-acre automotive site shuts, team to weigh redevelopment options

> It's going to be a sad day when it closes. I kind of grew up in this place. . . . I'm just glad I have someplace to go.
> GM autoworker Bob Speece, 59, from the Center Grove area in Johnson County

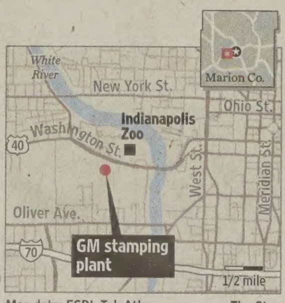
By Ted Evanoff
ted.evanoff@indystar.com

Indianapolis' last industrial behemoth left from its century as an automotive manufacturing hub is about to shut down after shrinking for years.

On June 30, the long-planned closing of General Motors' massive stamping plant near Downtown will finally come, leaving an environmental trust armed with $3.7 million to clean a milelong site where auto parts have been made for nearly 100 years.

Closing the Near-Westside landmark is a legacy of a shrunken Detroit auto industry scaling back citywide: Ford just pulled out of the Eastside steering gear plant, Chrysler razed the Near-Southside foundry, Navistar shut the Eastside diesel plant.

"It's going to be a sad day when it closes. I kind of grew up in this place," said GM autoworker Bob Speece, 59, from the Center Grove area in Johnson County.



Map data: ESRI, TeleAtlas The Star

"But I've got to do what I have to do. I'm just glad I have someplace to go."

While city officials try to figure out what might come next for the 100-acre site — parks, condos and small factories have been mentioned — many of the 650 workers already can see their future. General Motors' surprising rebound in the car market this year has opened up jobs in distant plants.

"Just about everyone who wanted to go somewhere has transferred," said Gregory Clark, the now-retired bargaining chairman of UAW Local 23.

Speece and about 300 co-workers are transferring or already have gone to GM plants in places that include suburban Detroit; Marion, Ind.; and Parma, Ohio, according to the United Auto Workers union's Region 3 office in Indianapolis.

Last week, GM idled about 140 workers, leaving about 150 in the plant for final tasks, such as packing machinery or preparing it for auction. Most of the remainder have retired.

"We're a big empty warehouse, pretty much," Speece said last week. "There's nothing running in here. I'd say GM has moved out 99 percent of the dyes."

How 'green' are your electronics? It depends

Edward C. Baig
TECHNOLOGY

Ask most people buying electronics gear if they'd like to be more environmentally responsible when making such purchases, and they will almost certainly say yes.

But if you ask how they plan to go green, many won't have a clear answer.

It's no wonder. Products take on different shades of green, of course, relating to the materials contained within them, energy use, packaging, product longevity and other factors.

And while certain products have more obvious eco-friendly bonfires, others aren't quite as evident.

In the former camp is the Samsung Evergreen from AT&T, which was unveiled last fall. The $30 messaging phone is built with 70 percent recycled post-consumer plastics and packaging that utilizes 80 percent recycled post-consumer paper.

Or the $50 Samsung Replenish, an Android phone sold by Sprint that's made partly of recyclable materials and that is available with a solar charging accessory.

But most consumer electronics products and PCs don't hit you over the head with a green message.

"Our philosophy is we don't

Giving 'shoe tax' the boot

Proposed legislation would cut the duties levied on imported footwear, lowering prices for consumers

By Rob Hotakainen
McClatchy Newspapers

WASHINGTON — U.S. consumers would see a sharp drop in the price of imported shoes — and that's nearly all shoes sold in the United States — if a bipartisan group of senators is successful in stamping out the nation's "shoe tax."

"It is kind of a hidden tax, and getting rid of it would be nice to do," Democratic Sen. Maria Cantwell of Washington state, a member of the Senate Finance Committee, said Wednesday.

Cantwell has teamed up with Democratic Sen. Patty Murray of Washington state and Republican Sens. Roy Blunt of Missouri and Pat Roberts of Kansas to promote the Affordable Footwear Act, which would eliminate roughly half the duties on imported shoes.

Cantwell, the measure's chief sponsor, said consumers were paying a tax of up to 40 percent in some cases. Backers said the legislation would lead to more sales for retailers and more savings for consumers.

While the bill has yet to arouse any opposition, it's a hit with the shoe industry. Last year, it would have eliminated about $800 million of the $2 billion collected on imported children's and low-cost shoes.

"It would be fantastic. . . . It would allow (consumers) to buy a second pair or buy a pair that they normally would have to put

After 100-acre automotive site shuts, team to weigh redevelopment options

It's going to be a sad day when it closes. I kind of grew up in this place. . . . I'm just glad I have someplace to go.

Indianapolis' last industrial behemoth left from its century as an automotive manufacturing hub is about to shut down after shrinking for years.

On June 30, the long-planned closing of General Motors' massive stamping plant near Downtown will finally come, leaving an environmental trust armed with $3.7 million to clean a milelong site where auto parts have been made for nearly 100 years.

Closing the Near-Westside landmark is a legacy of a shrunken Detroit auto industry scaling back citywide: Ford just pulled out of the Eastside steering gear plant, Chrysler razed the Near-Southside

From E1

Long before the skyscrapers and hotels rose Downtown, and the economy keyed up more than 100,000 office jobs, GM, Ford, Chrysler and International Harvester, the predecessor to Navistar, together employed as many as 12,000 workers.

Their high wages were regarded as the Cadillac standard of industrial Indianapolis. The jobs sustained another 40,000 or so other people such as butchers, dentists and bus drivers reliant on autoworker spending.

Allison Transmission remains open from that era on the Westside, although it is geared to heavy work trucks rather than the market for sedans and pickup trucks that supported the four behemoths.

The stamping plant was the eldest of the old pack. GM grew up buying its suppliers. In Indianapolis, the automaker acquired metal stamper Martin-Parry in 1930, although the small houses near the Martin site speak of a much-earlier origin.

Opening in 1884, Martin soon employed 2,800 workers, according to early reports. Ornate ads of the time called it the world's largest wooden wagon maker, turning out buggies, surreys, spring wagons and carts.

Within a generation, those skills were repurposed into producing metal body parts for GM, which had overtaken Ford as the No. 1 automaker in 1927 and hungered for industrial capacity.

Cheap freight rates helped the stamping plant rail its products to vehicle assembly plants in distant cities. But as GM lost market share and contracted in the 1990s, the Indianapolis stamping plant turned out to be a geographic island.

No vehicle assembly line was close by. And shipping costs were rising as energy prices climbed. By 2007, GM decided to shut it down, along with a pair of other stand-alone stamping plants, at Pittsburgh and Grand Rapids, Mich.

Dialing down

Although the sign has said GM for 81 years, no special closing ceremonies are planned for the stamping plant, other than the quiet internal ceremony in April.

Like an old piece of furniture, its best days are in the past, when it was part of a much-larger company. GM says it employs 49,000 autoworkers today in the United States, compared with about 126,000 a decade ago and nearly twice that number in the 1970s.

Although GM has been running the plant, it hasn't owned the property for two years. During its 2009 bankruptcy, General Motors emerged as a new legal entity guided by the U.S. government and let go of the stamping plant and a vast swath of industrial capacity.

The discarded facilities remained part of the pre-bankruptcy GM, which was renamed Motors Liquidation Co. and given the mission of selling off the old properties.

GM announced in 2007 that the plant would close this year. Briefly, the company tried to sell the facility, but that plan fell apart when union workers voted to resist wage cuts, sealing the plant's fate.

In March, Motors Liquidation handed ownership of the stamping plant to Racer Trust of Washington, D.C.

Racer was created under the auspices of the bankruptcy court to clean up and dispose of 89 facilities discarded by GM in 14 states. Its official name is Revitalizing Auto Communities Environmental Response Trust. The trust is headed by former Texaco environmental executive Elliott Laws, senior counsel at the Washington law firm Crowell & Moring.

Cleanup time

Provided with $600 million by Motors Liquidation to take care of contaminated soil and water on the properties, Racer hired a Dutch firm, Arcadis, to do the work. In Indianapolis, several soil borings were taken recently. The results are being analyzed.

"We expect the data to come back in the next week or so," said Robert Hare, Racer Trust cleanup manager in Indiana and five other states. "We don't know if we'll find things. There hasn't been a whole lot of (environmental) investigation done on it over the years."

Racer allocated $3.7 million for the cleanup, Hare said, based on data gathered earlier at the Grand Rapids and Pittsburgh stamping plants. The Grand Rapids plant also received $3.7 million for remediation. That site was soiled by spills of chemicals such as tricholorethylene.

"Whatever we find and whatever is there, our objective is to plan a remediation around the development of this site," Hare said. "We don't want to hold up its development."

Spills may have run off into the nearby White River, but if the chemical remains in the soil, Hare said Racer might bury it under a few inches of topsoil. Remediation requires preparing the site for industrial use at Racer's expense.

A contingency fund covers cleanup costs that exceed $3.7 million, but Racer does not have to pay for getting the site ready for housing, Hare said. Cleaning an old property for dwellings often costs more than preparing it for industrial use.

A future developer that aims for housing might have to pay on its own for a further cleanup, such as carting the contaminated soil to a secure landfill.

Rebirth?

Just what happens on the site could be shaped by a team affiliated with the Urban Land Institute. It will arrive June 19 for a four-day study.

Mayor Greg Ballard invited the team, which is headed by Bill Hudnut, a Georgetown University real estate professor. Hudnut helped preside over Downtown's renaissance as mayor for two terms in the 1980s.

No one is quite sure what to do with the old site. Nearby residents hope someone builds condos, brings in light industry and links the area to Downtown with a new bridge over the White River. Hudnut's team will make a recommendation on redeveloping the site and attracting financing, but he said he isn't sure yet what to do.

"I came out in the middle of May and looked at the site and toured it. It's a monstrous building," Hudnut said recently. "We want to come up with a plan with a good tie-in to Downtown. We'll have to figure out a good way to connect the property to Downtown. It's awkward now."

Whatever happens requires Racer's consent. The Washington trust owns the property.

Racer won't pitch in cash for developing the property. It can sell the site to a suitable developer for a fair market price, said Patricia Spitzley, Racer's deputy redevelopment manager.

No deals are in the works, but even if one was imminent, Spitzley said city officials must like the project before Racer will approve the sale.

Spitzley won't join the Hudnut team but said she will confer with its members.

"Our charge is to help those communities impacted by the closure," Spitzley said.

"We should be in lockstep with what the community feels is a good deal."

From E1

want to have green products and brown products," says Mary Jacques, senior engineer for global environmental affairs at computer maker Lenovo. "All of our products have to meet the same requirements."

Environmental worthiness

Certainly, the top names in the business are paying homage to green tech, including Apple and Google.

Google is getting behind home automation with the Android @Home initiative. It recently teamed with Lighting Sciences to develop a prototypical energy-efficient 60-watt-equivalent LED light bulb that can be remotely controlled by an Android smartphone or tablet. It is expected out by year's end.

Apple has been selling green for a while. The company's website provides exhaustive details on each of its products, down to power consumption, materials used and greenhouse gas emissions.

Of course, different organizations rank companies' environmental soundness based on different criteria. In its latest guide to green electronics, Greenpeace ranks Apple in the middle of the 18 companies included on its list. Nokia and Sony Ericsson are Nos. 1 and 2. Microsoft and Nintendo are at the bottom.

Greenpeace rates companies according to its policies on toxic chemicals, recycling and climate change. Underwriters Laboratories also validates environmental claims. Just this past week, the Samsung Replenish became the first phone to receive a UL Environment certification.

Targeting "vampire draw"

Some products are meant to tame energy usage in other devices. The ThinkEco modlet, or modern electrical outlet, automatically turns off power to your appliances when they're not needed. You plug the modlet into a regular outlet and plug appliances in. You can monitor your power consumption via the Web. Cost is $335 for a starter kit that includes five modlets, a USB receiver and software.

The $30 AT&T Zero universal charger kit works with cellphones, digital cameras and other USB-capable devices. The idea is that it can eliminate what's called "vampire draw," in which a plugged-in charger continues to draw electricity even when it's not connected to a device. A battery-operated sensor inside the Zero charger does the trick.

AT&T claims that if all its 80 million customers switched to the charger, they could save $6.9 million in electricity and 79 million pounds in carbon dioxide emissions each year. That's enough electricity saved, the company says, to power 5,137 houses for a year.

Accessory maker Belkin's green offerings include the $40 Conserve Switch surge protector. It comes with a remote that with one click lets you shut off power from 60 feet away, including standby power, to all computer system components. The remote controls six outlets (for such things as monitors, printers and external hard drives). But two of the outlets are "always-on," for devices, such as a wireless router, that you don't want to turn off.

Meanwhile, at $140, the Joos Orange solar charger from Solar Components isn't particularly cheap, small or light. (It is tablet size and weighs about a pound and a half.) But the company says the waterproof mobile charger operates up to 20 times longer than rival solar chargers which, in many instances, haven't proved to be all that reliable. And Solar Components promises it will work even when there isn't much sun.

Shoe tax

off another month," said Bill Snowden, a shoe distributor from Bellevue, Wash., and the senior vice president of Topline Corp., which employs 100 people.

The shoe tax, which dates to the 1930s, originally was aimed at protecting a manufacturing sector that's all but disappeared in the United States, according to the American Apparel & Footwear Association, a national trade organization. Over the past two decades, nearly all shoe production has moved outside the U.S.

The group said that 99 percent of the shoes bought in the United States last year were produced internationally, making it virtually impossible for Americans to avoid the tax.

Shoe industry officials say their business has hard-nosed competition that's kept retail prices from rising much since 1999, but inflationary pressures are mounting.

Kevin Burke, the president and chief executive officer of the American Apparel & Footwear Association, said Americans "are about to face the first increase" in footwear prices in more than a decade.

Supporters of the legislation say it has the potential to save American consumers billions of dollars. They say the tax particularly hurts the poor, who spend a larger share of their income on basic necessities such as shoes and clothing.

Cantwell said the bill would cut shoe costs for families "at a time when they most need it."

While tariffs on different shoes vary, they might result in a $15 pair of shoes selling for as much as $25, Snowden said.

In past years, Snowden said, it's been difficult to get members of Congress to focus on shoes, given their preoccupation with war, the economy and other big issues of the day.

Even though the legislation has stalled, Snowden said it had won support from many Democrats and Republicans in both houses of Congress.

"There have been so many other major, major pressing issues that it gets bypassed, unfortunately," he said.

Cantwell said that could happen again this year.

"It's hard to say right now, with everything going on. . . . We're in these big budget discussions, and I could see where it would get squeezed out," she said.

DEADLINE SET FOR OLD GM SITE

PHOTOS BY MYKAL MCELDOWNEY/INDYSTAR

The old General Motors stamping plant, 340 S. White River Parkway W. Drive, is among those to be redeveloped. RACER Trust was created in March 2011 by the U.S. Bankruptcy Court.

Developers' offers to be accepted until March 15 through RACER Trust

JAMES BRIGGS
JAMES.BRIGGS@INDYSTAR.COM

RACER is now accepting bids for the old GM site, shown above on Monday. Invitation-only bids will be accepted until March 15.

The owner of the mostly vacant General Motors stamping plant site in Indianapolis has given prospective buyers until next month to submit their offers.

RACER (Revitalizing Auto Communities Environmental Response) Trust, a group formed in 2011 to clean up and sell 89 former GM plant locations, has invited more than 70 developers to bid on the Indianapolis site on an invitation-only basis. The deadline is March 15.

The former GM site includes 102 acres on the White River, south of Washington Street and the Indianapolis Zoo. Most of the factory was demolished in 2013, leaving a massive blank slate for redevelopment just outside Downtown.

RACER will evaluate bids based on offer price as well as several other criteria, including how well the proposed development fits the neighborhood's wishes. The Valley, the neighborhood surrounding the site, has asked for a project that would include park space along the White River. Neighbors also have expressed interest in housing, retail and other businesses that would bring jobs to the area.

There is no timeline for completing a sale. RACER has not yet decided whether it will publicly name finalists for the site before selecting a buyer, said Bruce Rasher, redevelopment manager for the trust.

"I don't know how the offers will be structured and whether buyers will require certain commitments prior to executing the contract or being selected," Rasher said. "So it may be that some buyers want public affirmation of their proposal, in which case the city would involve the public."

RACER and the city recently completed a six-month process in which they sought public input on the site. Based on that feedback, Rasher said he's confident that RACER can select a proposal that matches the community's desire.

"The public has already spoken about what it wants there," Rasher said.

Plans for the site have changed dramatically in recent years. It was once slated for an amphitheater, as well as a new criminal justice center for Marion County.

Carmel developer REI Investments' plan for a 15,000-seat concert venue fell through in 2015. Indianapolis Mayor Joe Hogsett last month shifted plans for a new jail to the former Citizens Energy coke factory at 2950 Prospect St.

The Valley has ambitious hopes for the former GM site, said Jeff Bennett, the city's deputy mayor of community development.

"What we discovered is that many residents in the Valley worked (at the GM stamping plant) and what they wanted to see were jobs brought back to the site as well as an overall reconnection with the site to the neighborhood and to downtown," Bennett said in January. "What was also neat that came out of those conversations was a strong desire to leverage the river as an asset."

RACER plans to disclose the number of bids it receives once the March 15 deadline passes, Rasher said. The trust hopes to complete a sale this year, but it could take until 2018.

MYKAL MCELDOWNEY/INDYSTAR

The RACER Trust is accepting bids for the old GM stamping plant at 340 S. White River Parkway West Drive. The site is valued at up to $1 billion.

Proposals

"All of the offers involved intensive, transformative mixed-use development with connectivity to the surrounding neighborhood and Downtown, as per the city's vision, and to varying extents taking advantage of the White River as an amenity," Rasher said. "We're very pleased by the response."

Rasher declined to name the prospective developers or provide details on their offers, citing confidentiality agreements. RACER's deadline for offers was Wednesday.

Assuming RACER accepts one of the offers it received, the winning bidder would become the second developer to get a shot at the site. RACER in 2014 agreed to sell it to Carmel developer REI Investments, which planned to build a 15,000-seat amphitheater. Former Mayor Greg Ballard also wanted the city to acquire a portion of the land for a new criminal justice center. Both plans fell through in 2015.

The former GM stamping plant site sits on the White River, south of Washington Street and the Indianapolis Zoo. Most of the factory was demolished in 2013.

RACER and the city recently completed a six-month process in which they sought input from the surrounding neighborhood, called the Valley, to guide prospective developers. Likely developments include office, residential, hospitality and light industrial. Rasher declined to say whether the proposals included any common elements aside from river access.

RACER will review the four proposals and select a developer based on several criteria, including offer price, potential job creation at the site, how well the proposal matches neighborhood wishes and the reputation of the developer. RACER won't necessarily choose the highest bidder.

"It's more important for us to pick the right concept and to pick a developer that has a capacity to actually undertake a development of this size," Rasher said.

RACER is not a typical property owner. The group was formed in 2011 to clean up and sell 89 former GM plant locations, including the Indianapolis factory. It has a fiduciary duty to act in the best interest of the community.

While RACER has been preparing to sell the site, Indianapolis also has been taking action to ease development. The city in October added the former factory site to the Downtown tax-increment financing district. TIF is a process in which the city issues bonds to pay for infrastructure, such as streetwork and utilities, and repays the money with rising property taxes.

Indianapolis could use TIF money to pay for work on South and Division streets, White River Parkway and Oliver Avenue that would improve access to the site and incorporate it into the Valley. Although the city does not control the site, it has an interest in accommodating redevelopment.

"Where we see the city's role right away is fulfilling those infrastructure and connection roles that the neighborhood has brought up and the site will require no matter what," Jeff Bennett, the city's deputy mayor for community development, said in a recent interview. "We wanted to be proactive there."

While RACER hopes to move as quickly as possible, Rasher said the group's selection process could last into 2018. There's no guarantee that any of the four bidders will acquire the site.

"This is a very complex development," Rasher said. "I can say that RACER and the city has done everything possible and within its control for a positive outcome at the property. But there's a lot of work to be done before we get to the finish line."

GM stamping plant site fetches four proposals

JAMES BRIGGS
JAMES.BRIGGS@INDYSTAR.COM

The former General Motors stamping plant site in Indianapolis likely will become a mixed-use development with public access to the White River, based on several proposals that have been submitted to the site's owner.

Four Indianapolis developers have offered to buy the 102-acre site and build projects ranging in cost from $500 million to $1 billion, said Bruce Rasher, redevelopment manager for RACER (Revitalizing Auto Communities Environmental Response) Trust. RACER, which owns the site, is reviewing the proposals and hopes to complete a sale by the end of the year.

Afterglow

I'd like the memory of me
To be a happy one,
I'd like to leave an afterglow
Of smiles when day is gone.

I'd like to leave an echo
Whispering softly down the ways,
Of happy times, and laughing times,
And bright and sunny days.

I'd like the tears of those who grieve
To dry before the sun,
Of happy memories that I leave
When life is done.

GENERAL

Personal possession of this authority for absence is mandatory at all times. When granted an authorized absence, you assume full reponsibility for arrival at destination and/or return to proper station. Round-trip tickets insure return transportation. You should have sufficient funds to defray all expenses. If you have no means to return to proper station, report to the nearest military installation. The cost of subsistence and transportation furnished will be charged against your military pay record.

The approving authority shown in sub paragraph 3, special instructions of leave orders, should be advised by the most expeditious means in case of serious accident or illness, or if for ANY reason it is impossible for you to report for duty on or before the date you are to return from leave.

If medical treatment or hospitalization is required during your absence, you should report to the nearest medical treatment facility of the Armed Forces. In the event of hospitalization in other than a facility of the Armed Forces, the approving authority shown in sub paragraph 3, special instructions of leave orders should be notified with the least practicable delay of the date and place of hospitalization, together with the nature of illness or injury. Medical treatment at other than a facility of the Armed Forces is authorized at Government expense only in emergencies when it cannot be obtained from such Government facilities (AR 40-101).

Your commanding officer will be advised as soon as possible of any medical treatment obtained from civilian hospitals of physicians.

ON LEAVE

You must report for duty not later than 2400 (Midnight) of the day following the date indicated in Special Instructionx, leave orders. You may report for duty at an earlier date if you wish, in which case you will not be charged for the unused portion of your leave.

MILITARY INSTALLATIONS

Examples of Military Installations are: Military Police detachments, ROTC Detachments, any recruiting station of the uniformed services, military reservations, National Guard Armories where Active Army personnel are on duty, etc.

A husband and his wife were sitting in the living room after dinner. He was reading the paper; she was reading a fashion magazine.

"Hm-hh," murmured he. "Here it says the paint brush industry requires more then a thousand camels annually to make paint brushes."

"My,my," exclaimed his wife, "isn't it just simply amazing what animals can ge trained to do!"

Short dresses make men more polite. You seldom see a man get on a street car ahead of one.

Women's clothes should be like an editorial—long enough to cover the subject, and short enough to sustain the interest.

A drunk was sitting at a bar right beside a man and his wife. Suddenly he let go a resounding belch.

"How dare you? What do you mean belching before my wife?" demanded the man.

At that the drunk got off the stool, made a bow and said, "Pardon me, sir. I had no idea it was the lady's turn.'

Bulletin for Students:

1962 Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test

To be administered on:
Tuesday, October 16, 1962
Saturday, October 20, 1962

Mary Stigall

College Entrance Examination Board

The Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test is offered by the College Entrance Examination Board, a nonprofit organization whose school and college members cooperate in developing services to help high school students plan for college. These services are offered in all parts of the United States and in foreign countries to all students, schools, and colleges that wish to use them.

Copyright 1962 by College Entrance Examination Board

The purpose of this Bulletin is to tell you about the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test—what it is and how it can help you. The following pages explain how PSAT scores can be useful to you in planning for college, and what you should know about preparing for the PSAT. On pages 4 to 6 there are some important things to remember when you take the test. The last part of the Bulletin contains sample questions that will give you a first-hand impression of what the test is like.

How the PSAT can help you

Your PSAT scores and an interpretive leaflet will be sent to your school in December. These scores represent a measure of two kinds of scholastic ability—verbal and mathematical. Studies conducted in several hundred colleges throughout the country have shown that these abilities are essential to successful college work. If you are thinking about going to college, you can use your PSAT scores to compare your verbal and mathematical abilities with those of other students in the same grade across the country. This information, considered with your record of secondary school achievement, can help you decide whether or not to go to college. If you do plan to go, knowing how high your scores are and whether you did better on the verbal or on the mathematical section of the test will be helpful as you consider various colleges and courses of study.

An especially useful feature of the PSAT is its planned similarity to the College Board's Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) which is required for admission to many colleges. Because the PSAT and the SAT ask the same kinds of questions and measure the same kinds of abilities, your scores on the PSAT give an early indication of how you will probably perform on the SAT if you take it later. Many colleges are now reporting to school counselors information on their admissions standards including the SAT scores of the students they have admitted and of those who have enrolled. Thus, by comparing your predicted SAT scores with the actual scores of students who were offered admission by a particular college, you and your counselor may be better able to judge your chances of being admitted to that college. Similarly, since colleges are reporting this information for their recently enrolled freshman classes, you may also be able to determine how you would compare in ability with those freshmen if you were enrolled there.

In addition to helping students in college planning, the PSAT may be of service to some students in another way. A number of scholarship sponsors use PSAT scores in the consideration of applicants for awards. If you are applying to one of these scholarship programs, you can fulfill one of the qualification requirements by taking the PSAT.

Preparing for the test

The PSAT tests your ability to reason with facts rather than to recite them. As you will see from the sample questions in this Bulletin, you are not going to be tested on your ability to recall this chemistry formula or that historical date. You will be given information and asked to reason with it. Because the test measures abilities that have been developing over a lifetime, last-minute cramming is a waste of time and effort. The most sensible way to prepare for the PSAT is to familiarize yourself with the instructions for using the answer sheet and look over the sample questions beginning on page 7.

Taking the PSAT

Here are some things for you to keep in mind on the day of the test:

- Bring with you several sharpened No. 2 pencils or a mechanical pencil with a No. 2 lead and a good eraser.
- No books, slide rules, or papers of any kind may be used during the test.
- Students will not be allowed to assist each other during the test.
- Do not worry if you are unable to finish the test or if there are some questions you cannot answer. Many students leave questions unanswered and no one is expected to get everything right. You should work as rapidly as you can without sacrificing accuracy. Do not waste time puzzling over a question that seems too difficult for you.
- Many students wonder whether or not to guess the answers to questions about which they are uncertain. In this test a percentage of the wrong answers will be subtracted from the number of right answers as a correction for haphazard guessing. It is improbable, therefore, that mere guessing will improve your scores significantly; in fact it may even lower your scores. If, however, you are not sure of the correct answer but have some knowledge of the question and are able to eliminate one or more of the answer choices as wrong, your chance of getting the right answer is improved, and it will be to your advantage to answer such a question.

Using the answer sheet

As you will see from the sample questions, each is followed by five possible answers lettered (A), (B), (C), (D), and (E). When you have decided which of the five possible answers you want to select for a question, blacken the correspondingly lettered box on the answer sheet. Make sure to blacken the box completely. If you erase, be sure to do a thorough job.

Before you begin the test you will be asked to fill in certain sections of the answer sheet. In one section you will blacken the appropriate box to indicate the scholarship programs for which you are eligible and for which you would like to be considered. In another section you will print your name and blacken the appropriate box under each letter of your first and last name.

An illustration of this section of the answer sheet is shown on the following page. It has been filled out by an imaginary student, Alexander G. Fielding. Note how he first printed the letters of his last name in the large boxes at the top. (If his last name had contained more than 13 letters he would have filled in only the first 13 of them.) Then he printed the first six letters of his first name: ALEXAN. He omitted the last three letters because he used the last large box to print his middle initial G. He then blackened the small lettered box in each column that corresponded to the letter in his name at the top of that column.

You should be sure that you understand this procedure so that your paper can be correctly identified and your scores properly reported. It might be a good idea, therefore, to fill in your own name on this sample section of the answer sheet and blacken the appropriate box in each column. Then look over the sample questions on the pages that follow.

A sample of the name section of the answer sheet as filled out by Alexander G. Fielding:

What PSAT questions are like

The sample questions that follow illustrate the kinds of questions you will meet in the PSAT. Those in the verbal section test your ability to understand word relationships and to comprehend what you read. Those in the mathematical section test your ability to understand and solve problems. These sample questions should not be considered as a miniature test; they merely illustrate the types of questions that will appear in the PSAT.

Verbal section

The verbal section of the PSAT has four kinds of questions: opposites, sentence completions, analogies, and reading comprehension. Each type is described and illustrated in the following sections:

Opposites. These questions are designed to test the extent of your vocabulary. In each question a word is given and you are to select from the five choices that follow it the one most nearly opposite in meaning to it. The vocabulary used in this section includes words most high school students should have met in their general reading, although they may not be the kind you use in everyday speech.

Directions: Each question below consists of a word printed in capital letters, followed by five words or phrases lettered A through E. Choose the lettered word or phrase that is most nearly _opposite_ in meaning to the word in capital letters. Since some of the questions require you to distinguish fine shades of meaning, consider all the choices before making your decision.

1. AGILE: (A) humble (B) clumsy (C) useless (D) timid (E) ugly

Since agile means quick, dexterous, and easy in movement, the best answer is "clumsy" (B), which means slow, awkward, and ungainly in movement. If you know the meaning of this word, answers (A), (C), (D), and (E) are obviously incorrect. This is a relatively easy question.

2. ALLEVIATE: (A) lower (B) aggravate (C) finish (D) control (E) amuse

This is a relatively difficult question. "Alleviate" means to lighten or lessen (usually physical or mental troubles). The meaning most nearly opposite is "aggravate" (B). To one who understands the meaning of "alleviate," (C) and (E) are obviously incorrect. "Control" (D) can be thought of in relation to physical or mental troubles, but the act of controlling would not provide the opposite of "lightening or lessening"; the correct answer must imply increasing or magnifying. "Lower" (A) in a sense carries the same meaning as alleviate, but is much more general and is certainly not the opposite of alleviate.

Sentence completions. These questions require you to complete a sentence in which one or two words are missing. They provide a measure of one aspect of reading comprehension: your ability to select those choices that are consistent in logic and style with other elements in the sentence. If you understand the implications of the sentence, you will be able to select the one answer that best fulfills its meaning. The sentences deal with a wide variety of topics familiar to the secondary school student who has read widely and studied seriously. Understanding the sentences does not depend on specialized knowledge in science, literature, music, philosophy, social studies, or other such fields. On the other hand, a broad general knowledge of a wide range of topics should be helpful.

Directions: Each of the sentences below has one or more blank spaces, each blank indicating that a word has been omitted. Beneath the sentence are five lettered words or sets of words. You are to choose the one word or set of words that, when inserted in the sentence, best fits in with the meaning of the sentence as a whole.

3. Where the world is going is of no particular concern to him; that it .... is sufficient.

(A) flourishes (B) acts (C) moves (D) grows (E) triumphs

The problem here is to comprehend not only the individual words in the sentence but also the logic of the sentence—to decide what idea provides a proper balance for the "where the world is going" of the first part. A careful analysis will reveal that only "moves" (C) provides this balance. To a person with no concern for where the world is going, knowledge that the world "flourishes," "acts," "grows," or "triumphs" would be of no concern since all of these imply direction or destination. That it moves is sufficient.

4. .... makes it possible for us to profit by the experience of past generations as if this experience were our own.

   (A) Language (B) Democracy (C) Progress
   (D) Truth (E) Economy

This relatively difficult sentence completion requires some understanding of one important function of language, namely, that it enables us to profit by the experience of past generations. Notice that if (B), (C), (D), or (E) were to be fitted into the blank space, they would fit no better than their opposites. We can profit from the experience of past dictatorships as well as from past democracies. Falsehood has its lessons as well as Truth. Thus there is nothing particularly fitting about any of the choices except "Language" (A). Lacking a language, it would be almost impossible for one generation to communicate with another. Given a language, the experiences of Democracy, Progress, Truth, or Economy —or their opposites—of one generation can be used by a succeeding one.

Analogies. These questions test your understanding of relationships between words and ideas. You are asked to analyze relationships and to recognize those that are similar to each other. Some of the questions will involve cause and effect relationships; in others you will be asked to carry an analogy from a concrete, tangible relationship to an abstract, less tangible one. Explore each relationship thoroughly and select as your answer the choice that comes closest to satisfying all of the demands.

Directions: In each of the following questions, a related pair of words or phrases is followed by five lettered pairs of words or phrases. Select the lettered pair which best expresses a relationship similar to that expressed in the original pair.

5. FOOTBALL:SPORT::

   (A) frame:picture (B) clock:time (C) gourmet:food
   (D) cherry:fruit (E) intelligence:personality

This is a relatively easy analogy. Since football is one of a number of sports, the correct answer must involve some object that is included in a larger group described by the second part of the answer. The choice that best fits this description is (D), "cherry:fruit."

6. ILLEGIBLE:WRITING::
(A) obnoxious:odor (B) iridescent:glass (C) soundproof:wall
(D) illusory:sight (E) garbled:speech

This is an analogy of medium difficulty. Since writing that is illegible cannot be read, the correct answer must involve terms that result in an inability to comprehend something. Option (E) is the only option that expresses a similar relationship: garbled speech cannot be understood.

Reading comprehension. Approximately half of the time on the verbal section of the PSAT is devoted to measures of reading comprehension, because it is important that college students be able to read with understanding, insight, and discrimination. The selections come from a variety of fields, such as history, social science, physical science, biological science, music, art, literature, and philosophy.

Reading comprehension is tested at several levels. Some of the questions depend simply on an understanding of the plain sense of what has been directly stated. To answer other questions, you must be able to interpret and analyze what you have read. Still other questions are designed to test your ability to recognize reasonable applications of the principles or opinions expressed by the author. And some of the questions require you to judge what you have read —to observe good and bad points in the presentation, to recognize how far the author has supported his statements by evidence, and to recognize and evaluate the means used by the author to get his points across.

Directions: Each passage in this group is followed by questions based on its content. After reading a passage, choose the best answer to each question. Answer all questions following a passage on the basis of what is stated or implied in that passage.

(The passages for this test have been adapted from published materials to provide the candidate with significant problems for analysis and evaluation. The ideas contained in the passages are those of the original author and do not necessarily represent the opinions of the College Entrance Examination Board or Educational Testing Service.)

Talking with a young man about success and a career, Doctor Samuel Johnson advised the youth "to know something about everything and everything about something." The advice was good—in Doctor Johnson's day, when London was like an isolated village and it took a week to get the news from Paris, Rome, or Berlin. Today, if a man were to take all knowledge for his province and try to know something about everything, the allotment of time would give one minute to each subject, and soon the youth would flit from topic to topic as a butterfly from flower to flower; life would be as evanescent as the butterfly that lives for the present honey and moment. Today commercial, literary, or inventive success means concentration.

7. The author implies that a modern scientist

(A) makes discoveries by accident
(B) must bend his mind in a specific direction
(C) is able to contribute only if he has a background of general knowledge
(D) must be well versed in the arts
(E) must be successful, whatever the cost

This is a "plain-sense" question. The author gives Dr. Johnson's view, which he says was good in Dr. Johnson's day, and then gives his own view of what is true today. He says that success in a particular field—science, as well as any other—today demands concentration within that field. The answer, then, is (B). Some students answer (C); but (C) is true of Dr. Johnson's view and is directly contrary to the author's.

Question 8 is harder, but still requires only an understanding of the plain sense of the selection.

8. According to the passage, if we tried now to follow Doctor Johnson's advice, we would

(A) lead a more worthwhile life
(B) have a slower-paced, more peaceful, and more productive life
(C) fail in our attempts
(D) hasten the progress of civilization
(E) perceive a deeper reality

The author has tried to show that it is impossible today to follow Dr. Johnson's advice; in one minute per topic, no one could learn much of anything. So the answer to question 8 is (C). Some students answer (B) and some answer (D); however, the author nowhere implies that we could or should turn the clock back. These may be the students' own views, but the question is not asking for them.

9. Why does the author compare the youth to a butterfly (next-to-last sentence)?

   (A) Butterflies symbolize a life of luxury and ease.
   (B) The butterfly, like the youth, exhausts a present source of energy.
   (C) The butterfly, like the youth, has no clear single objective.
   (D) The butterfly, like the youth, is unaware of the future.
   (E) The butterfly lives but a short time and thus retains the innocence of youth.

To answer this question, you should understand why it suits the author's purpose to compare the youth to a butterfly. All five of the choices state comparisons that could reasonably be made. But only one of the comparisons, (C), deals with "concentration," or the "single objective," which the author is driving at.

Mathematical section

Some questions in the mathematical section require you to apply graphical, spatial, numerical, symbolical, and logical techniques to situations already familiar to you; these may be similar to exercises in your textbooks. In other questions you are presented with novel situations and are called upon to do original thinking and problem-solving. You will not be expected to use mathematical knowledge beyond elementary algebra or the geometry implied by the formulas printed for your reference at the beginning of each mathematical section of the test. Although no specific knowledge of subject matter beyond that just described is required, well-taught courses in mathematics preceding and following the ninth grade will probably improve your performance on the PSAT and will provide a stronger foundation for your college-level work.

The following sample questions illustrate both the types of problems and the range of difficulty to be expected in the PSAT.

Directions: In this section solve each problem, using any blank space in the booklet for figuring. Then select the one correct answer.

Circle:

area $= \pi r^2$ circumference $= 2\pi r$ degrees of arc in a circle $= 360°$

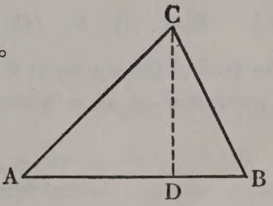
Straight angle $= 180°$

Triangle:



sum of the angles of a triangle $= 180°$
If CD is perpendicular to AB, then

(1) area of $\triangle ABC = \dfrac{AB \times CD}{2}$

(2) $\overline{AC}^2 = \overline{AD}^2 + \overline{DC}^2$

Definitions of symbols:

$<$ means "is less than"; $>$ means "is greater than";
$\leqq$ means "is less than or equal to"; $\geqq$ means "is greater than or equal to";
$\perp$ means "is perpendicular to"; $\|$ means "is parallel to."

Note: Figures accompanying problems are not necessarily drawn to scale and are assumed to lie in the plane unless otherwise stated.

10. If there are P girls and R boys in a class, what is the ratio of the number of girls to the total number of boys and girls in the class?

This question requires the construction of a ratio. One might first think of the answer in this form: $\dfrac{\text{girls}}{\text{class}}$ and then in this form: $\dfrac{\text{girls}}{\text{girls} + \text{boys}}$. Direct letter substitution gives us: $\dfrac{P}{P + R}$

11. City R is 200 miles directly east of city T, and city H is 150 miles directly north of T. Assuming the cities lie in a plane, what is the shortest distance in miles between H and R?

(A) $50\sqrt{7}$ (B) 175 (C) 250 (D) 300 (E) 350

This question involves the Pythagorean Theorem and the recognition of a right triangle. It is easiest if one sees that the ratio $\dfrac{150}{200}$ is the same as $\frac{3}{4}$, thus making this a 3-4-5 type of right triangle. This immediately gives one a 150-200-250 right triangle.

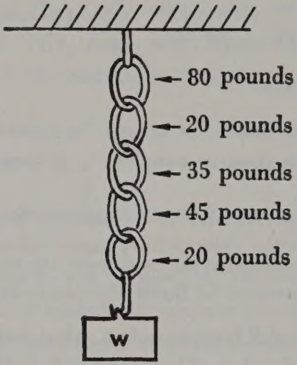
12. A square and an equilateral triangle have equal perimeters. What is the length of a side of the triangle if the area of the square is 9?

(A) 3 (B) 4 (C) 6 (D) 9 (E) 12

If the area of the square is 9, its side is 3 and its perimeter is 12. If the perimeter of an equilateral triangle is also 12, its side is 4.



13. The chain in the figure above has 5 links. The maximum weight that each link can hold is shown. What is the maximum weight W, in pounds, that the chain can hold, ignoring the weight of the links?

(A) 20 (B) 35 (C) 45 (D) 80 (E) 200

Since "a chain is no stronger than its weakest link," this chain can hold no more than 20 pounds.

14. If the area of a certain triangle is equal to one-half the product of two of its sides, what kind of triangle is it?

(A) Equilateral (B) Acute (C) Right (D) Obtuse
(E) It cannot be determined from the information given.

If the area of a triangle is one-half the product of two sides, one side must serve as the base and the other side as the altitude. This occurs only in the case of the two legs of a right triangle.

15. If an arrow ($\rightarrow$) between two expressions indicates that the expression on the right exceeds the expression on the left by 1, then which of the following is (are) true?

I. $x^2 \rightarrow (x + 1)^2$

II. $\frac{x}{y} \rightarrow \frac{x + 1}{y + 1}$

III. $x(x + 2) \rightarrow (x + 1)^2$

(A) None (B) I only (C) II only (D) III only (E) I and II

In this question, you must work with a new symbol that has been defined. In cases I and III the right expressions must be expanded before comparison. In I, the right member exceeds the left by $2x + 1$. In II, the right member exceeds the left by $\frac{y - x}{y(y + 1)}$. In III, the right member exceeds the left by 1, making (D) the correct answer.

16. If rain is falling at the rate of 2 inches per hour, how many inches of rain will fall in x minutes?

(A) $\frac{1}{30x}$ (B) $\frac{x}{30}$ (C) $\frac{30}{x}$ (D) $\frac{60}{x}$ (E) $30x$

In this question, it is essential to realize that either the rate must be changed to inches per minute or the time to hours. Thus, rate in inches per minute $\left(\frac{2}{60}\right)$ times x, the time in minutes, or rate in inches per hour (2) times $\frac{x}{60}$, the time in hours, yield the same result of $\frac{2x}{60} = \frac{x}{30}$ inches of rain.

17. If the radius of circle X is 40% of the radius of circle Y, the area of circle X is what per cent of the area of circle Y?

(A) 16 (B) 20 (C) 40 (D) 80 (E) 160

If the radius of circle Y is R, that of circle X is .4R. Therefore, the area of circle Y is πR^2 and of circle X is $.16\pi R^2$. The per cent is $\frac{.16\pi R^2}{\pi R^2} \times 100 = 16$.

Alpine retreat at issue

U.S. says take it; Germans reluctant

The Associated Press

FRANKFURT, Germany — After 50 years, the U.S. military is giving some prime Bavarian real estate back to Germany. Not just any old piece of land.

The property was once Adolph Hitler's Alpine Redoubt, and the German government wanted the Americans to keep it.

Since May 1945, when the U.S. Army's 101st Airborne confiscated Nazi property in Berchtesgaden and on nearby Obersalzberg mountain, countless American troops and their families have enjoyed the hotels, villas and ski slope once used by the Third Reich's elite.

With the reduction of American forces in Europe from 300,000 in the late 1980s to 100,000 this year, the U.S. military decided to close one of its three vacation centers in southern Germany.

Col. Richard Bridges of U.S. Army Headquarters in Heidelberg said the Obersalzberg and Berchtesgaden facilities weren't needed because they needed extensive renovations.

But Bavaria state officials wanted the Americans to keep the property for at least 10 more years to prevent neo-Nazis from visiting it.

Aeal fell through, Bridges said, because "it would not have been prudent of us to guarantee staying 10 years." So the Army went back to its original plan of abandoning the resort.

However, the Chiemsee resort east of Munich and U.S. military hotels in Garmisch-Partenkirchen south of Munich will be kept open indefinitely, he said.

FOR AMERICANS: A sign in front of the American-run Gen. Walker Hotel in Bavaria reads: "Parking for U.S hotel guests only." The building has bunkers under it that were intended to serve as part of Adolph Hitler's Alpine fortress.

"Garmisch is the centerpiece of the armed forces recreation centers and we had invested roughly $14 million between 1987 and 1990 in some major upgrades at Chiemsee," Bridges said.

The Obersalzberg resort includes a 270-bed hotel and two villas on the ski slopes of the 3,300-foot mountain above Berchtesgaden. The buildings are connected by tunnels and bunkers that were designed as Hitler's Alpine fortress, but were never completed.

Nearby is Kehlstein peak, with a restaurant known as "Eagle's Nest," also used by Hitler. It's open to tourists from from May to October.

In the town of Berchtesgaden, population 12,000, the U.S. military is turning over a 90-room hotel, two barracks, 12 family apartments, a post office, shopping center, and a garage.

The turnover should be completed by September, Bridges said.

Meanwhile, the U.S. resort at Chiemsee will be reopened and 130 employees rehired for the summer season.

Bernau administrator Helmut Schuhbeck said town of 6,000 had counted on $660,000 a year in tourism revenues from the Chiemsee properties.

"It's too bad," he said. "They're not mad at the Americans because they see them as friends, but a lot of people are really upset by the finance ministry."

Under the Status of Forces Agreement, the U.S. military returns confiscated German property to the federal government.

The Finance Ministry then decides whether to hold the property or return it to states and communities.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION FOR YOU

- TRAVEL IN DISTURBED AREAS

  If you travel in disturbed areas, you should keep in touch with the nearest American diplomatic or consular office.

- PROLONGED RESIDENCE ABROAD

  If you make your home or reside for a prolonged period abroad, you should register at the nearest American consulate.

- LOSS OF NATIONALITY

  You may lose your United States nationality by being naturalized in, or by voting in the elections of a foreign state; by taking an oath or making a declaration of allegiance to a foreign state; or by serving in the armed forces or accepting employment under the government of a foreign state. If you are a naturalized citizen of the United States, you may lose citizenship by residing for 3 years in the country of your birth or former nationality, or by residing for 5 years in any other foreign state or states. For detailed information consult the nearest American diplomatic or consular office.

- VIOLATION OF CONDITIONS OR RESTRICTIONS

  If you use or attempt to use this passport in violation of the conditions or restrictions contained in it, you may lose the protection of the United States while you continue to reside abroad, and you may be liable for prosecution (Section 1544, Title 18, U. S. Code).

- LOSS OR DESTRUCTION OF PASSPORT

  If this passport is lost, stolen or destroyed, report full details immediately to the United States Passport Service, Department of State, Washington 25, D. C., or to the nearest American consulate. In an outlying possession of the United States, report to the chief executive, and to the local police authorities. In loss or destruction cases, new passports are issued only after exhaustive investigation.

- ALTERATION OR MUTILATION OF PASSPORT

  This passport must not be altered or mutilated in any way. You must not alter any dates; nor make any changes in your description, on the photograph, or on any other page of this passport. Alteration may make it INVALID. Only authorized officials of the United States or of foreign countries, in connection with official matters, may place stamps or make statements, notations or other additions in this passport.

INSTRUCTIONS TO PHYSICIANS

1. Information requested on each certificate must be complete for the certificate to be valid.
2. The space for primary vaccination against smallpox is to be used only when a person receives his vaccination for the first time. If unsuccessful a new certificate must be used for a repeat primary vaccination.
3. The dates on each certificate are to be written with the day in arabic numerals, followed by the month in letters and the year in arabic numerals. Example: October 1, 1959, should be written 1/Oct./59.
4. Vaccinations may be performed by a nurse or medical technician if under a physician's direct supervision. The physician's written signature must appear on the certificate; signature stamp is not acceptable.
5. If vaccination is contraindicated the physician should provide the person with a written opinion, which port health authorities may take into account.
6. Official immunization requirements for international travel and the list of designated yellow fever vaccination centers in the United States are contained in the booklet "Immunization Information for International Travel," PHS No. 384, on sale at the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D.C. Changes in requirements may be obtained from local or State health departments.
7. Additional information concerning certificates and immunization requirements may be obtained from the Epidemiology and Domestic Operations Branch, Division of Foreign Quarantine, U.S. Public Health Service, Washington 25, D.C.

1. Properly complete the cover sheet of this booklet before presenting it to your physician.

2. It is the responsibility of the traveler tc have the "approved stamp" applied to the smallpox vaccination certificate or the cholera vaccination certificate. The certificate is not valid without the stamp and may not be accepted when required in international travel.

   In the United States the stamp is that of the local or State Health Officer of the area in which the immunizing physician practices. The certificate may be mailed to the Health Officer for this service if time permits its return. If mailed enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope to ensure return.

   Other "approved stamps" are (1) the stamp of the Department of Defense; (2) the stamp assigned to official Yellow Fever Vaccination Centers; (3) the seal of the Public Health Service; (4) the special "S-C" stamp approved by the Public Health Service for Smallpox and Cholera Vaccination Certificates.

3. When yellow fever vaccination is needed for international travel it must be received at a designated center. The list of designated centers in the United States is contained in the booklet "Immunization Information for International Travel," PHS No. 384.

4. The yellow fever vaccination certificate when required by India, Pakistan, or Ceylon may not become valid in some instances until the 12th day after vaccination.

5. Immunization requirements—see items 6 and 7, page 10.

6. Travelers revaccinated against cholera or yellow fever during the period of validity of a current vaccination certificate should retain the old certificate for a period of 6 days in the case of cholera and 12 days for yellow fever.

II. The information which follows is a record of other immunizations which the traveler has obtained as an additional health protection for international travel. These immunizations are not usually required for entrance by any country. Space is also provided for a personal health record in case of illness or accident while traveling abroad.

CONGRATULATIONS

PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES WAS DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER.

NOV. 8, 1960

JOHN F. KENNEDY was elected 35TH. President by defeating Richard Nixon by a little more than 100,000 votes.

MATTHEW E. WELSH was elected Governor of Indiana to replace Harold W. Handley.

THE ECONOMY

ECONOMIC OUTLOOK was good with continued concern for inflation and 5.9% unemployment.

HOME PRICES were up! The value of the average home bought with F.H.A. insured mortgages was $14,329.00. The average house payment was $98.08.

You could MAIL A LETTER 1ST. Class for .05¢

AUTO WORKERS were averaging near $2.50 an hour.

MEDICINE

Surgeons in Birmingham, England developed a "PACEMAKER" to control the rhythmical beating of the human heart.

Program to provide MEDICAL COVERAGE FOR PERSONS OVER AGE 65 first proposed in House Ways and Means Committee. We know the program as "MEDICARE".

U-2

Remember GARY POWERS? The USSR shot him down in a U-2 Reconnaissance Plane over Russia. This incident later caused collapse of summit meeting on May 16, 1960.

SPORTS

JIM RATHMANN won the INDIANAPOLIS "500" MILE RACE with an average speed of 138.757. ROGER WARD was second. Two persons were killed and seventy injured when a 32 foot makeshift aluminum scaffold collapsed with 100 spectators just prior to the race.

EAST CHICAGO WASHINGTON upset MUNCIE CENTRAL 75-59 to win the Indiana High Basketball title. RON BONHAM from Muncie Central was named Indiana's Mr. Basketball.

OHIO STATE won the NCAA Basketball Title 75-55 over California (I.U.'s Coach Knight was a member of that Ohio State Squad as was John "Hondo" Havlicek).

ARNOLD PALMER won the Masters and U.S. Open Golf Tournaments.

FLOYD PATTERSON regained Heavyweight Title from Ingemar Johanson of Sweden.

VENETIAN WAY with Bill Hartack up....won the KENTUCKY DERBY.

The Film, "BEN HUR" won 11 Oscars, including Best Film and Best Actor with CHARLETON HESTON. Simone Signoret won Best Actress for her role in "ROOM AT THE TOP".

COMIC STRIPS

BLONDIE, BEETLE BAILEY - Remember--Steven Canyon? Kerry Drake? or Rex Morgan, M.D.?

TELEVISION

Favorites in 1960 were JACK PAAR, STEVE ALLEN, Cheyenne, Wells Fargo, Peter Gunn and Ted Mack

FROM THE INDIANAPOLIS STAR

ROUND STEAK - .69¢ lb.; BACON - 3 lb. for .89¢; CHICKEN - .25¢ a lb.; EGGS - .39¢ a doz.; COFFEE - .49¢ a lb.

Playing at the CIRCLE THEATER was "THE GLENN MILLER STORY" with James Stewart and June Allyson. At the KEITH THEATER, "IMAGINE" with Bridgett Bardot.

HEADQURTERS
U. S. ARMY 1st FIELD ARTILLERY MISSILE BRIGADE
ARTILLERY BOWL CHAPEL
FORT SILL, OKLAHOMA

28 January 1963

Mrs. Mary Brown
R. R. 2, Box 329
Plainfield, Indiana

Dear Mrs. Brown:

Your husband has recently arrived to receive training with Ntry C of the Field Artillery Missile Command. We are happy to have him with us to serve in a Command and Brigade unique in the world and, we are confident, one of the finest organizations in the Army.

We would like to assure you that we will strive to help your husband further his religious and spiritual life. We have acquainted him with the religious program of this Brigade and have urged him to participate in the religious activities that are listed on the enclosed sheet.

Our training is especially rigorous due to the nature of the weapons with which weare armed and their tremendous power. However, there is an equally serious problem that will face your son: the problem of loneliness. Therefore, may we urge you to write to him often, encouraging him in his service and reminding him of your love and devotion.

I hope that you will also, through your letters, urge your husband to be active in the Chapel program. Nothing can be of greater help to a person than his faith in Almighty God, and nothing can keep that faith alive better than regular worship and study of God's word.

Please be assured of our continuing interest in your husband's religious welfare. We will be happy to assist him in every way possible and should you wish to contact us, your letter will be welcme.

Sincerely yours,

Ernest L. Stevens, Jr.

VETERANS DAY MEMORIAL

Certificate of Appreciation

Today as Americans, we can celebrate and enjoy freedom because our great Nation has sustained the challenges of time by remaining the longest surviving Republic in the world today. This strength and endurance could not be possible without the sacrifices made by those who have served our country in the Armed Forces by going on land, sea and air to defend our principles for freedom around the world. This certificate is presented to you in honor and appreciation for your service to our country while in uniform. We are very grateful for your service. As a Veteran, you are America! We thank you and may God richly bless you for your duty and honor to our country.

"ALL GAVE SOME, SOME GAVE ALL"

SOLDIER

I was that which others did not want to be.
I went where others feared to go, and did what others failed to do.
I asked nothing from those who gave nothing and reluctantly accepted the thought of eternal loneliness . . . should I fail.
I have seen the face of terror; felt the stinging cold of fear; and enjoyed the sweet taste of a moment's love.
I have cried, pained, and hoped . . . but most of all, I have lived times others would say were best forgotten.
At least someday I will be able to say that I was proud of what I was . . . a soldier.

PERSHING . . . TAKE TWO — Fort Sill's Pershing is now a movie star. Filmed for the Ordnance Guided Missile School at Redstone Arnsenal, the movie is the first of several to star the new Pershing system. The camera crew and technicians are from the Army Pictorial Center, Long Island City, N.Y., and the director of this project is Herman E. Klappert. See Story on Page One.

EVERYBODY'S IN ON AN IG — When the Inspector General hits the 2d Howitzer Battalion, 2d Arillery even their mascot, "Big Deuce" will be ready for his prying eyes. The mule's caretaker, Sfc scar D. Shirley, sheared the braying mascot's shaggy winter coat recently with an assist from Big euce who seemed to enjoy the process.

Movie Makers Focus On Pershing Missile

For five days now, the Pershing missile system has been rumbling through the brush of Fort Sill's east range.

The four-vehicle system and the men who operate it perform their various functions before the objective eye of the movie camera and the demanding eye of the director.

A crew of cameramen and technicians from the Army Pictorial Center, Long Island, City. N.Y. are grinding out a Pershing training film with men and equipment from the Artillery and Missile School, the 2nd Missile Battalion, 44th Artillery, and the Field Artillery Misslie Training Command.

From the time Pershing roars impressively onto the scene, through countdown—director Herman E. Klappert makes certain the cameras grab the angles and action he wants.

The film is being shot for the Ordnance Guided Missile School at Redstone Arsenal, Huntsville, Ala. Technical director is CWO Paul H. Barclift, a Huntsville ordnance specialist.

He is being assisted by Capt. Alfred L. Paul, School project officer and assistant technical director.

Twenty-eight persons from the Pershing Division, Guided Missile Department are involved in the project. Eight men from the 2d of the 44th and 16 from the Field Artillery Missile Training Command are assisting.

Capt. Paul said that virtually all action shots and some classroom scenes are being taken at Fort Sill. In all, about 65 to 70 scenes will be filmed on Sill's ranges and the School's classrooms.

Thank you for being our Heroes!

Please join us in recognizing the individuals that have contributed to making this a great nation by singing the 1st verse of "America The Beautiful"

O beautiful
for spacious skies,
For amber waves of grain.
For purple mountain majesties
America! America!
God shed his Grace on thee, and crown thy good with brotherhood,
from sea to shining sea.

O Beautiful for spacious skies,

GEORGE WASHINGTON HIGH SCHOOL HYMN

Where passed the sturdy pioneer, With face set to the West
There stands a school to us most dear, With many virtues blest,
The broad and glorious fields he found, And conquered with his might
Are mirrored in her spacious ground, And halls so broad and light

Oh, Washington thou gift to us, So pure and free from stain,
We'll cherish thee and keep thee thus, And pass thee on again
For we must go, but thou wilt stay, And lead in paths of light
The youth and hope that pass this way, And seek to know the right.

To thee who with thine outstretch'd hand, Dost offer us thy truth;
We pledge ourselves a loyal band, With all the love of youth;
We own thy right to our full trust, To faith and love and all;
Thy will shall be to us "thou must", Thy need, our service call.

CHERYL REIGNS

Our Homecoming Queen of 1962-63 was crowned Friday night February 8, 1963, at our Homecoming game against New Winchester.

We're sure the students had a hard time deciding who to vote for, and it must have been a close race, but their choice was highly commendable.

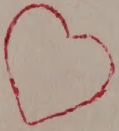
Miss Cheryl Goodman, a senior, was crowned by last year's queen, Phoebe Everling. Cheryl wore a light-blue taffeta dress with a white lace bodice. Her shoes were dyed to match. Cheryl's escort was Kenny Herriman.

Cheryl's court was made up of three beautiful girls representing the underclassmen. Miss Barbara Morgason, in a white organdy dress, escorted by Norman Poole, was Junior candidate; Miss Carolyn Price, a sophomore, wore a light green chiffon dress with matching shoes, and was escorted by Chuck Marshall. The Freshman candidate, Gwen Boyles, wore a pink flowered taffeta dress and matching shoes and was escorted by Bill Neal.

Cheryl was presented with a dozen yellow roses and kissed by the basketball Captain, John Hilton, a Senior.

Friday night was our night of nights. Our team won over New Winchester by a 71-56 victory.

POST SCRIPT FOR A VALENTINE



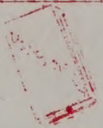
I would give you a gay heart,
A never-clad-in-gray heart.
I would stitch its every seam
With the golden thread of dream.
I would have its courage high.
Never would I let it sigh
For an emerald or for mink
Never would I let it think
On things we planned and did not do.
I would have it arrow true,
Quick to meet your every glance,
Always ready for romance,
Or to sit beside the fire
Waiting for your least desire.
Maybe some one else will get
This perfect heart; but I regret
you, my love, must be content
With this wayward, slightly bent,
Slightly willful heart of mine
Stretched upon a valentine,
That through all time and tears endures.
And love has labeled mine---and yours.

Hannon Placed 2nd

Marcia Hannon, a member of the senior class, was chosen by her classmates as the representative of Avon to take the County D. A. R. test. The test was given December 6, 1962, and concerned current events and government. It lasted three hours, and Marcy took hers in the high school office. The results were sent to the Wa-Pa-Ke-Way Chapter of the Hendricks County Daughters of the American Revolution. The results were judged accordingto content, correctness, and neatness.

Marcy placed second inthe county. The winner was Nancy Nye, an Amo senior.

In speaking ofthe award, Marcy said, "I really appreciated the award. The test wasn't too hard because most of it covered what we have studied in government."



Webster SAYS:

Love--To feel affection; to show love for.

Love Knot--A bow as a token of love.

Lovelorn--Forsaken by a person whom one has loved.

Sweetheart--a loved person a lover.

Valentine--A card or gift sent as a Saint Valentines' Day greeting; a sweetheart.

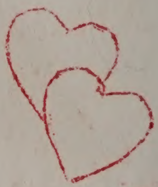
St. Valentine's

Valentines

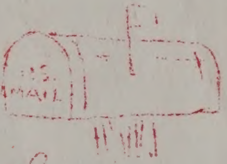
On an old fashioned valentine
Hearts, lace, and ribbons all entwine;
Sly cupid sends a piercing dart
Through every lovers' heart.

Out from behind a heart, there pops
Just one short phrase to say "You're tops!"
Gone the lace and gone the ribbons gay,
On valentines today.



Dainty forget-me-nots so blue
Through golden lace are peeking through.
Found in the attic tucked away
Not like the ones today.

Under two hearts that intertwine
This message says, "You suit me fine."
Valentines have changed a lot, its true,
But they still mean, "I Love You."



We get LOVE LETTERS

Dear Jerry,
I love you. You owe me 10 cents forthis valentine.
Love Carol

Dear Eric,
You can be my valentine because you live next door and I don't have to go so far.
Gladys

Dear Betty,
You are my favorite valentine after Sally, Joan, Diana, Anna, and Gloria.
Love Billy

Dear Margaret,
You can be my valentine--but no kissing.
Mike

SENIORS Sponsor the SOCK HOP

The Homecoming Sock Hop was sponsored by the senior class. It was held in the old gym, which was decorated in blue and white, the senior class colors.

Dave Jessup, junior, and Jerry Crawford, sophomore, acted as emcees for the evenings.

Cheryl Goodman, Homecoming Queen, and her escort reigned over the dance. They led off a dance with the members of her court and their escorts joining in.

Four records were given away to people holding lucky tickets.

There was a very good attendance at the Hop, and the seniors cleared nearly $75.00.

Mary Stigall Weds

On Saturday, December 28, 1962, at 7:30 p. m., Mary Catherine Stigall became Mrs. John David Brown. The wedding was held in the First Baptist Church at Plainfield, with the Reverend Conly Bowman performing the double ring ceremony.

The bride wore a dress with a white lace brocade bodice and short chiffon skirt. She carried a white orchard with red streamers on a white Bible.

Gloria Jean Stigall was her sister's maid of honor, and Joyce Ann Broyles was flower girl. They were dressed in blue brocade silk and carried pink carnations.

Private Brown's best man was Private James Bruce. They wore their uniforms. They are both stationed in Oklahoma.

Mrs. Creech sang, "Oh Promise Me" and The Wedding Prayer.

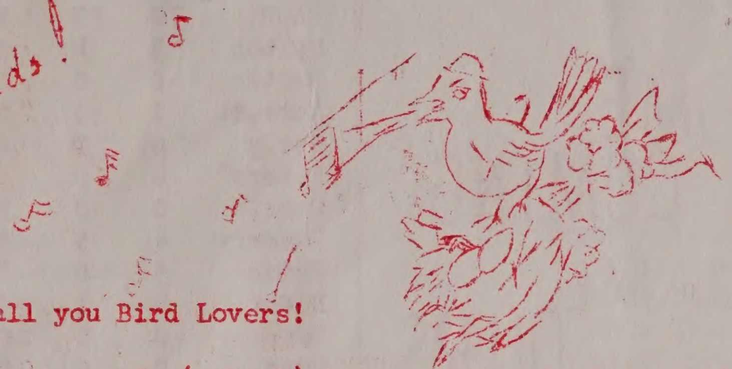
The reception was held in the basement of the church following the ceremony. The rooms were decorated in red, white, and blue.

The refreshment table held a three-tiered cake decorated with red and white roses and bride and groom figurines. Hawaiian punch, mints, and nuts were also served to the seventy friends and relatives present.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown spent their honeymoon at the Catalina Motel in Plainfield. Mrs. Brown is living with her parents while the groom is stationed in Oklahoma.

Some of her favorite gifts were: a set of melmac dishes, an electric skillet, and a clock radio.

For the Birds!



Greetings all you Bird Lovers!

Only 67 more goof (school) days until school is out! So all you goof-arounds take heed and make the most of these precious days!

Are you getting a taste for warm weather? So am I. I just can't wait until summer. Of course, we will all enjoy our favorite sports; like swimming in a bird bath, pulling hair out of "Teenage Monsters" for our nest and most of all, enjoy our favorite meal, a "worm fillet" with all the trimmings. (Sigh) Can't wait, can you?

I've been hearing about a party Carol Jones had a few weeks ago. It seems as the temparature rose to 6 degrees below zero. Shirlee Dean Hiner and Mary Sue McDonald, clad in shorty pajamas, were sitting outside the door singing nice (????) songs. The only thing was they did not know Carol's mom was listening.

Also, along the party line, there's a rumor that Sarah Hargis is giving a party for the paper staff and their guests. It should be sometime soon if she doesn't chicken out!

Happy Valentine's Day, love birds!
Be good -- see you next issue!

"Odios" Amigos!

HOME COMING GAME OURS

Last Friday night our Orioles used a well balanced scoring attack to good advantage, as they downed a tough New Winchester Warrior team by a score of 71-56.

The game started out as if it was going to be a real cliff-hanger, as only two points seperated the two teams at the first stop.

In the second stanza our Orioles started playing some real basketball, and built up an 11 point, 42-31, half-time lead.

In the third quarter Avon slowed down, as they scored only 10 points, but they still had a 9 point, 52-43 lead going into the last quarter.

In the final quarter our Orioles outscored the Warriors by six points, to add the finishing touches to the 71-56 victory.

Our Orioles were led by Greg Hurst, who scored 17 points, Ron Norcutt, who scored 13 points as well as grabbing 12 rebounds, Jim Quearry, who netted 15 points John Hilton, who scored 10 points and got 12 rebounds, Butch Price, who scored 10 points, and Mike Peters who grabbed 10 rebounds to go a long with his 8 points.

This was our third straight victory, and our fifth in our last seven games. LET'S MAKE IT FOUR IN A ROW TOMORROW NIGHT WHEN WE TRAVEL TO PIKE!!

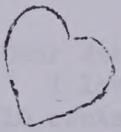
POST SCRIPT FOR A VALENTINE



I would give you a gay heart,
A never-clad-in-gray heart.
I would stitch its every seam
With the golden thread of dream.
I would have its courage high.
Never would I let it sigh
For an emerald or for mink
Never would I let it think
On things we planned and did not do.
I would have it arrow true,
Quick to meet your every glance,
Always ready for romance,
Or to sit beside the fire
Waiting for your least desire.
Maybe some one else will get
This perfect heart; but I regret
you, my love, must be content
With this wayward, slightly bent,
Slightly willful heart of mine
Stretched upon a valentine,
That through all time and tears endures,
And love has labeled mine---and yours.

CHERYL REIGNS

Our Homecoming Queen of 1962-63 was crowned Friday night February 8, 1963, at our Homecoming game against New Winchester.

We're sure the students had a hard time deciding who to vote for, and it must have been a close race, but their choice was highly commendable.

Miss Cheryl Goodman, a senior, was crowned by last year's queen, Phoebe Everling. Cheryl wore a light-blue taffeta dress with a white lace bodice. Her shoes were dyed to match. Cheryl's escort was Kenny Herriman.

Cheryl's court was made up of three beautiful girls representing the underclassmen. Miss Barbara Morgason, in a white organdy dress, escorted by Norman Poole, was Junior candidate; Miss Carolyn Price, a sophomore, wore a light green chiffon dress with matching shoes, and was escorted by Chuck Marshall. The Freshman candidate, Gwen Boyles, wore a pink flowered taffeta dress and matching shoes and was escorted by Bill Neal.

Cheryl was presented with a dozen yellow roses and kissed by the basketball Captain, John Hilton, a Senior.

Friday night was our night of nights. Our team won over New Winchester by a 71-56 victory.

Hannon Placed 2nd

Marcia Hannon, a member of the senior class, was chosen by her classmates as the representative of Avon to take the County D. A. R. test. The test was given December 6, 1962, and concerned current events and government. It lasted three hours, and Marcy took hers in the high school office. The results were sent to the Wa-Pa-Ke-Way Chapter of the Hendricks County Daughters of the American Revolution. The results were judged according to content, correctness, and neatness.

Marcy placed second in the county. The winner was Nancy Nye, an Amo senior.

In speaking of the award, Marcy said, "I really appreciated the award. The test wasn't too hard because most of it covered what we have studied in government."

Webster SAYS:

Love--To feel affection; to show love for.
Love Knot--A bow as a token of love.
Lovelorn--Forsaken by a person whom one has loved.
Sweetheart--a loved person a lover.
Valentine--A card or gift sent as a Saint Valentines' Day greeting; a sweetheart.

St. Valentine's

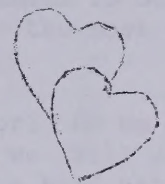
Valentines

On an old fashioned valentine
Hearts, lace, and ribbons all entwine;
Sly cupid sends a piercing dart
Through every lovers' heart.

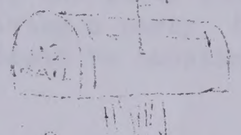
Out from behind a heart, there pops
Just one short phrase to say "You're tops!"
Gone the lace and gone the ribbons gay,
On valentines today.

Dainty forget-me-nots so blue
Through golden lace are peeking through.
Found in the attic tucked away
Not like the ones today.

Under two hearts that intertwine
This message says, "You suit me fine."
Valentines have changed a lot, its true,
But they still mean, "I Love You."



We get LOVE LETTERS



Dear Jerry,
I love you. You owe me 10 cents for this valentine.
Love Carol

Dear Eric,
You can be my valentine because you live next door and I don't have to go so far.
Gladys

Dear Betty,
You are my favorite valentine after Sally, Joan, Diana, Anna, and Gloria.
Love Billy

Dear Margaret,
You can be my valentine--but no kissing.
Mike

SENIORS Sponsor the SOCK HOP

The Homecoming Sock Hop was sponsored by the senior class. It was held in the old gym, which was decorated in blue and white, the senior class colors.

Dave Jessup, junior, and Jerry Crawford, sophomore, acted as emcees for the evenings.

Cheryl Goodman, Homecoming Queen, and her escort reigned over the dance. They led off a dance with the members of her court and their escorts joining in.

Four records were given away to people holding lucky tickets.

There was a very good attendance at the Hop, and the seniors cleared nearly $75.00.

Mary Stigall Weds

On Saturday, December 28, 1962, at 7:30 p. m., Mary Catherine Stigall became Mrs. John David Brown. The wedding was held in the First Baptist Church at Plainfield, with the Reverend Conly Bowman performing the double ring ceremony.

The bride wore a dress with a white lace brocade bodice and short chiffon skirt. She carried a white orchard with red streamers on a white Bible.

Gloria Jean Stigall was her sister's maid of honor, and Joyce Ann Broyles was flower girl. They were dressed in blue brocade silk and carried pink carnations.

Private Brown's best man was Private James Bruce. They wore their uniforms. They are both stationed in Oklahoma.

Mrs. Creech sang, "Oh Promise Me" and The Wedding Prayer.

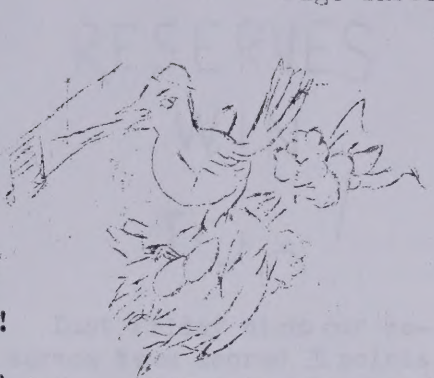
The reception was held in the basement of the church following the ceremony. The rooms were decorated in red, white, and blue.

The refreshment table held a three-tiered cake decorated with red and white roses and bride and groom figurines. Hawaiian punch, mints, and nuts were also served to the seventy friends and relatives present.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown spent their honeymoon at the Catalina Motel in Plainfield. Mrs. Brown is living with her parents while the groom is stationed in Oklahoma.

Some of her favorite gifts were: a set of melmac dishes, an electric skillet, and a clock radio.

For the Birds!



Greetings all you Bird Lovers!

Only 67 more goof (school) days until school is out! So all you goof-arounds take heed and make the most of these precious days!

Are you getting a taste for warm weather? So am I. I just can't wait until summer. Of course, we will all enjoy our favorite sports; like swimming in a bird bath, pulling hair out of "Teenage Monsters" for our nest and most of all, enjoy our favorite meal, a "worm fillet" with all the trimmings. (Sigh) Can't wait, can you?

I've been hearing about a party Carol Jones had a few weeks ago. It seems as the temparature rose to 6 degrees below zero. Shirlee Dean Hiner and Mary Sue McDonald, clad in shorty pajamas, were sitting outside the door singing nice (????) songs. The only thing was they did not know Carol's mom was listening.

Also, along the party line, there's a rumor that Sarah Hargis is giving a party for the paper staff and their guests. It should be sometime soon if she doesn't chicken out!

Happy Valentine's Day, love birds!
Be good -- see you next issue!

"Odios" Amigos!

National Honor Society

October 31, 1961

Dear Mary,

For the honors you have attained in your schooling, the Avon High School National Honor Society faculty committee would like to commend you. As you may know, scholastic ability is one of the four important qualities for which future members of the National Honor Society should strive. We feel that you are a strong candidate. Of course, membership is not based on Scholarship alone. Leadership, Character, and Service are equally important. Living up to these qualities will not only admit you to the Honor Society, but will also make you a better individual. Again we congratulate you!

Yours very truly,

Sheriff has throat cancer

Quearry to begin 8 weeks of treatments for malignant mass

By Tom Spalding
tom.spalding@indystar.com

HENDRICKS COUNTY

Hendricks County Sheriff Jim Quearry soon will begin treatments for throat cancer.

Quearry, 61, is scheduled for eight weeks of radiation/chemotherapy to control a malignant mass about the size of a quarter at the back of his tongue. Quearry's doctors have told him the type of cancer, squamous cell carcinoma, has a 60 to 70 percent survival rate.

He will see an oncologist Wednesday.

Quearry will work as long as he is able, and he understands that a feeding tube may be necessary to maintain his nutrition. The Sheriff's Department's No. 2 official, Col. Jack Miller, will handle day-to-day duties as needed.

"You've got to keep a positive attitude," Quearry said Monday, after attending a staff meeting. "I've said all along, God's in control. I guess this is a good test for it. God's got a reason for everything. If me having this is something (that) can help somebody else, it's all right with me."

Quearry is counting on faith. An announcement was made at his church, Kingsway Christian Church in Avon, the past two Sundays.

Quearry said he has a lot of support and believes he can help others seek treatment if they notice throat problems.

Quearry said he has felt hoarse for the past 18 months, some of which he figured was due to politics. Quearry, a one-term sheriff, ran and lost the Republican primary in May. He will leave office at the end of December.

About 10 weeks ago, he had a persistent sore throat and a feeling of a lump in his throat. Doctors conducted a biopsy and other tests. The cancer is the type suffered by smokers, even though Quearry said

See Cancer, Page W2

"God's in control," said Sheriff James Quearry

From W1

he hasn't smoked cigarettes since he was a kid.

"It's just one of those bumps in the road in life that you have to deal with," Quearry said. "Some people say 'Why me?' I say, 'Why not me?' I'd certainly rather have this than one of my friends."

He is skipping a planned Florida vacation. "I will play it by ear. If I feel like going to work, I will. I enjoy what I do. On the other hand, I heard that chemo can kick you in the rear end.

"We've got to suck it up and have a good attitude."

Dear Mom and Dad

I arrived safely at the US Army Reception Station, Fort Sill, Oklahoma at 3:15 PM O'clock 1 May 19 83 I will be here from 3 to 4 days for processing and then be transferred to another unit here at Fort Sill for training. As I will be here only a short time please do not send mail to this address. I will furnish you with my training unit address when I am assigned to training. In case of an emergency which requires my presence, you should contact me through your local American Red Cross chapter.

Hi Mom + Dad

Sorry for not wrigthy very often, but this squad leader is keeping me pretty bizy. You can go ahead and spend this money to pay off some of that loan. Thanks for the letters you have been wrighting.

I had to get a hair cut today. The sergent said he would have to whait and see about getting a pass when you two are down here. I don't think I'll get one. We have two of the roughist drill sergents in the Battery.

I have to get up at 3:00 and get ready for 15 mile road march with half loaded packs. And then We got to go thron the gas chamber.

My hip is still bothing me but I think it's getting better. Well tell everybody I said hi.

Love
you all

Dear Parent,

I am pleased to inform you that your son has arrived safely at Fort Sill and has begun the process which will lead him to becoming a well trained soldier. A picture of him in uniform is enclosed. I know you share my pride in seeing him in the United States Army uniform for the first time.

Our goal at the Field Artillery Training Center is to produce a highly trained, self-confident soldier prepared to defend our country should the need arise. Be assured that although the training your son will receive here in the Field Artillery Training Center will be physically and mentally demanding, we go to great lengths to ensure his personal safety and well-being, and to preserve human dignity.

In addition to the picture of your son, I have also attached an information sketch which will tell you something about Fort Sill and the training which your son will receive.

I extend to you an invitation to visit Fort Sill and your son during his training here. I recommend that if you plan such a trip, that you correspond with him first to determine the best time for a visit.

I am confident that your son is embarking upon an experience that will be personally rewarding from many aspects. His success will be limited only by the effort he devotes. My staff and I are committed to assisting him in every way possible during his stay in the training center.

Sincerely,

U. S ARMY FIELD ARTILLERY TRAINING CENTER

Your soldier has been assigned to D Battery, 2 Training Battalion for military training. Although there are variations for each course of instruction most training during the first few weeks will emphasize physical fitness, discipline, and basic military knowledge. During the later stages of training, emphasis shifts to basic soldier skills and individual tactical skills. The training cycle concludes with an evaluation of each soldier. They must demonstrate an attainment of the discipline and skills required to perform as a soldier in an Army unit in order to graduate.

The environment during the first several weeks of training is restrictive. I encourage you to write frequently, as mail from home is always welcomed by the new soldier. Leave, absence from training, will not be authorized during the training period except for emergencies or other unusual circumstances. Should an emergency arise concerning a member of the immediate family (father, mother, sister, brother, guardian or spouse), notify your local Red Cross Chapter which will then notify the training unit to advise them of the emergency and arrange for leave if necessary.

All mail must be addressed using rank, the full name, social security number and the unit of assignment of the individual.

Upon completion of training, each soldier will have demonstrated a mastery of the basic soldier skills. The Field Artillery Training Center will insure that everyone receives the best training possible so that each soldier is fully prepared to enjoy a rewarding tour of duty in your Army.

FORT SILL

Fort Sill, Oklahoma, the home of the U.S. Army Field Artillery, is located directly north of Lawton, Oklahoma, on U.S. Highways 277 and 281. It is approximately 95 miles southwest of Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, and 50 miles north of Wichita Falls, Texas.

The installation is one of the largest U.S. Army posts, containing over 94,315 acres or 147 square miles. There are more than 21,000 soldiers and 5,000 Army civilian employees who train and work on post. Fort Sill enjoys an overall moderate climate. The summers are hot with an average high temperature in August of 93.2 degrees. Many days see temperatures in the 100 degree range. The low seasonal temperatures occur in January when the average daytime high is 40.9 degrees. The average annual rainfall for the area is 27.2 inches with about 7 inches of that coming in the form of snow.

Fort Sill has long played a significant role in Army Training and operations. Originally named Camp Wichita, Fort Sill was established on January 8, 1869, by General Philip Sheridan. The name of the post was changed to Fort Sill in August of 1869 in honor of General Joshua W. Sill, who was killed in the Civil War. Construction of permanent buildings began in 1870 and by mid spring of 1871, all troops and officers were in permanent quarters. The birth of the field artillery branch occurred in 1907.

The United States Army Field Artillery Training Center (USAFATC), to which the soldier is assigned for training, serves the Army by training cannoneers, missile crewmen, and related technical field artillery skills.

The other major activities at Fort Sill include the United States Army Field Artillery School, established in 1911; the III Corps Artillery, the largest field artillery organization in the free world; and Reynolds Army Hospital, a modern 235-bed facility which provides health care to the area's military personnel.

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY
RECRUIT TRAINING COMMAND
3301 INDIANA STREET
GREAT LAKES IL 60088-3127

Dear MOM & DAD,

Please let me express my appreciation to you for supporting your recruit's enlistment in the United States Navy. We believe you will continue to play an important role as your recruit adjusts to a new way of life. Remember, family support is the key to a successful transformation to a Sailor, and all future performance in the Navy.

Recruit training (Boot Camp) is challenging and demanding; most recruits find the first few weeks a little difficult as they adjust to the military environment. The schedule of classroom instruction, military drill, and physical fitness training provides little free time. Your recruit has been advised to write or telephone home when possible to share his or her experiences with you. However, with the many demands on your recruit's time, you might not hear from him or her as often as you would like. Encouraging letters and cards will certainly boost their morale and help during this critical transition from civilian to Sailor.

The specially selected staff of officers and senior enlisted personnel who are directly responsible for your recruit's training, welfare, safety, and morale are considered the best in today's Navy. Additionally, a highly skilled support staff of doctors, dentists, psychologists, and chaplains are available to care for their physical, emotional, and spiritual needs. At times, a delay or setback in training for academic, medical or other reasons may be necessary. I can assure you, however, that any decision to delay a recruit's training is not made lightly and is always with the recruit's best interest in mind.

Enclosed, you will find information that may be useful concerning mail, emergency situations, and other military policies and benefits. I trust this information will help answer any questions you may have.

A formal Graduation Pass-in-Review Ceremony will occur near the end of your recruit's Basic Training. I encourage you to attend. In a few weeks you should receive an information package regarding the ceremony and associated activities. You are also invited to visit our web site at http://www.nsgreatlakes.navy.mil/rtc.htm.

I am personally committed to ensuring the well being of your recruit! I thank you for supporting your recruit's desire to serve our great nation in the United States Navy. If I may be of any assistance, please feel free to contact our Public Affairs Office at (847) 688-2405.

Sincerely,

A B Andrews

We were renting the rental property on this farm when Anthony Wayne Brown was born, from Claud Raber (& Marsha) John Brown

The McDougal Home on Vestal Road

A lovely old home built in 1880 graces the property of the Dr. Robert McDougal family. This home was built originally for the Ezekial Hornaday family on the 160 acre grounds. This family was the original owner of the Hornaday Dairy, which has changed to Roberts Dairy.

The McDougal family is the forth family to live in this house. They moved to the home in 1976, having purchased the home from the Raber family. The McDougals have made many efforts to restore the home to its original flavor. Repair of the exterior woodwork, addition of a porch in the back and interior decorating has enhanced the nostalgic appearance of the 105 year old two-story brick-bond home. The antiqued eye-brow windows in the attic tend to peer back with many unanswered questions of what has taken place in the noble home in the course of its many years

A unique trade-mark of this home is the large 1880 which is designed in the roofing as you stand back and gaze at its shingle covered slate roof. The exterior brick work is also unique in its masonry. The brick has the image of vertical lines in its well-built structure. The lack of settling and appearance of a well weathered construction is evidenced of a talented artisan in masonry.

The interior of the home is also intriguing. As one entered the front door, a beautiful stairway greets the guest. Decorative wood-cut patterns follow the stairwell up to the second-floor, as well as a scrolling curved wood to disguise the telephone cords that parallel the stairs. Electricity was not used in the house until 1946.

As one enters the different rooms, it is interesting to note the different moldings that frame each door. Mrs. McDougal has made efforts to retain the neutral colors on the walls, which were typical of the day. She has used trims around the ceilings of each room to give each room a character of its own. Lace curtains adorn most of the windows, especially the bay-windows on the north-east side of the home, which get sunlight most of the day.

The floors are all the original wood and have been maintained well. One floor upstairs has an interesting story behind it that was recently discovered. It had small depressions in it and was thought to have been burned and charred in places. After inquiring, Mrs. McDougal leaned that this was the room where baby chicks had been incubated and cared for while they were small. The charred places were created from the kerosene stoves that were used to warm the chicks. They were turned over on several occasions and burned the floor. She has since painted the floor and speckled paint on the floor to retain the look of the 1880 periods of some homes.

Unusual closets that are much smaller in depth than a clothes-hanger, are called clothes presses. In some instances the closets have been widened and added to make more storage space for the McDougal family.

Occasional plumbing restoration has been done, baths added and an in ground pool put in to improve the life-style of the home. The kitchen has been remodeled around a central butcher-block style cabinet to accommodate the four doors inside the kitchen.

In 19080 a sand-blasted glass door was added with the McDougal badge engraves into the glass. It is their contribution to their home and enters into the cozy enclosed porch which exits the home in the back.

Stories of maple syrup being made have been related by the tenant farmer that once resided on the farm. A blacksmith's barn once stood on the property and beef cattle were raised. Extensive farming is still being done as one looks over the many acres of soybeans that are planted today.

The home projects much charm and warmth today even after it has housed several families, weathered some very harsh Indiana winters as well as weathered the many changes that time has brought upon it. The loving restoration and care which the home now receives help to ensure that future families will also enjoy and be protected by this noble home.

"Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path."
Psalms 119:105

Map of Turkey Run State Park

1. Each group will begin and end at the nature center and walk down the 77 steps to the suspension bridge. You will have 1 hour and 45 minutes to complete the hike.

2. Each hike involves two groups taking two separate trails, one on each side of Sugar Creek. The groups should pass each other at the covered bridge and then return on the other side of the creek. only one group should cross the suspension bridge at the beginning of the hike. The other group will cross it at the end.

DISCLAIMER

There are more scenic and challenging trails here at the park. I am taking you on the moderate to rugged scale that can be completed in the time limit allowed. I have chosen this route to be sure the varied ranges of student and parent ability is taken into consideration.

3. The group that crosses the suspension bridge first will go under the bridge to pick up trail #4 to the right (up stream). The center cautioned to stay next to the creek because trail #4 also leaves the creek side at points. Your goal is the covered bridge at the far right of your map (In the meantime, feel free to make faces at the other group on the other side of the creek!). You will cross the covered bridge and then return following trail #1 that follows the creek. (the map looks like this could also be trail #2) Either way, stay on the trail that runs next to the creek and meet back at the suspension bridge. Then you need to go to the nature center to switch groups or catch the bus.

4. The group that does not begin by crossing the bridge will instead follow trail #1 to the right (up stream). It does not go right next to the creek at the beginning, but will eventually. Once next to the creek, keep following trail #1 all the way to the covered bridge at the far right of you map (In the meantime, feel free to make faces at the other group on the other side of the creek!). You will eventually cross the covered bridge and then return following trail #4. Be sure to stay next to the creek on trail #4 because sometimes it can leave the creek at points. Once back to the suspension bridge, cross it and meet back at the nature center to switch groups or catch the bus.

Field Trip

Indiana War Memorial
Imax Theater

Dear Parents,

We will be heading to Indianapolis this Friday May 16 for our field trip. We will leave Brown right after the announcements. Our schedule is as follows: 9:45-11:15 self guided tour of the Indiana War Memorial, 11:15-11:45 eat sack lunch at part next to the War Memorial, 12:00 arrive at IMAX Theater to check in for movie that begins at 12:30. After the movie, we will then tour the canal until 1:45 at which time we will board the bus to return to Brown. Please remember that the students and chaperones need to bring a sack lunch and a drink. I will have a cooler for drinks. If you have any questions, please let me know!

Thanks,
Cathy McCoskey

BHS School Song

(Illinois Loyalty)

We're loyal to you, BHS
We're purple and white, BHS
We'll back you to stand
'Against the best in the land,
For we know you can stand BHS
RAH! RAH!
Go smash that blockage, BHS
Go crashing ahead, BHS
Our team is our fame protector
On boys, for we expect a
Victory from you, BHS
RAH! RAH!
Fling out that dear old flag of purple and white.
Lead on, you sons and daughters fighting for right,
Like men of old, on giants
Stressing reliance,
Shouting defiance,
OSKE WOW WOW
Amid the broad green fields that nourish our land
For honest labor and for learning we stand,
And unto you we pledge our hearts and hands,
Dear Brownsburg High School
We're for you!!!

Obituary for Shirley "Sam" Keene

Shirley "Sam" Oran Keene, 76, of Monrovia, passed away on Friday, January 29, 2016, at Hendricks Regional Hospital, in Danville. He was born on April 9, 1939, in Spencer and grew up in a large extended family with 14 siblings.

Sam worked as a machinist at General Motors for 30 years; retiring in 1991. He was a member of the UAW Local 933 and the Fraternal Order of Eagles in Plainfield. Sam had a green thumb and liked hunting deer, ginseng and mushrooms. When the weather was nice, he enjoyed being outdoors and with his special eye for morels, Sam often won many bets by finding the largest mushroom in family contests. An honest, respected and blunt man, Sam did not have a filter and everyone knew exactly where they stood with him. Sam married Marlene Kepler and together they spent 19 years together.

A man who lived life to the fullest, his family claims that he lived more, in the 76 years of his life, than most people could have lived in 200 years. In October of 1976, Sam met his match and after three short months of dating, he moved to Monrovia and married Nancy Finchum; to whom he was blessed to share the last 39 years with. Always putting his children and grandchildren first, he was a devoted provider for his family and truly enjoyed spending time together. Sam, Nancy and the kids have many cherished memories together including the time spent at the cabin in Owen County riding quads, gatherings for the Indy 500, and special trips to the riverboat, Atlantic City and Vegas.

He was preceded in death by his father, Otis Keene; mother and step-father, Frances (Campbell) and Earl Sperling; son, Michael Keene; half-siblings, Clarence, Clyde, Leonard, Cletus, Gail, Leona, Violet, Mary and Betty.

Survivors include his loving wife, Nancy (Finchum) Keene of Monrovia; children, Sam Goodman of Linton, Rick Keene of Mooresville, Jay Keene (wife, Jeni) of Indianapolis and Jeannie Nungester (husband, Brian) of Avon; siblings, Nina Chapman (husband, Jack) of Florida, Jeannie Wood (husband, Pete) of Kentucky and Otis Keene of Camby; half-siblings, Mary Arthur (husband, Dave) and Allen Bean (wife, Jeanette) both of Florida; grandchildren, Erica Keene Lynch (husband, Robert) of Monrovia, Nicole Keene of Indianapolis, Joel Brown (wife, Amanda) of Brownsburg, Dustin Lamb of Indianapolis, Shelby Lamb and Alexxis Nungester both of Avon; great grandson, C.J. Shockley of Monrovia; former spouse, Marlene Kepler of Speedway.

Family and friends are invited to gather and encouraged to dress comfortable for food and fellowship from 3 to 6pm, on Sunday, February 7, 2016, in the Monrovia Festival Building, 50 S.

Walnut Street, Monrovia. A brief memorial service to celebrate Sam's life will be held during the gathering at 3:30pm and will be officiated by Pastor Darrell Dennis.

In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be made to help locally fund and support heart and cancer research (envelopes will be available at the gathering). Funeral and Cremation arrangements have been entrusted to Light Memorial & Funeral Chapel in Monrovia. To share a favorite memory, send the family an online condolence, or light a candle in his memory visit www.lightmemorial.com.

Curtis is sitting here talking about Sam and all the fun time during hunting season!
E especially the time Sam was out of the ceiling fan light go out at the cabin. And Sam got up to change it and somehow the ceiling fan came on... Boom boom boom Flapan him in the face. Rick laugh so hard he about Peed his self. And there was another time when Kurt had a hotdog and is Robin at a crawl Sam's lips and he woke up to Kurt zipping his pants. Got up and said he was going to whip his Hiney.

Ok I am going to repost this right! One time during hunting season Sam had a light out on the ceiling fan. And Sam got up to change it (did not turn the fan part off) and he tried to move his head back but the fan kept going around and smacking him in the side of the head. Boom boom, boom!! Rick and Curtis laughed so hard . There was another time Sam was napping and Curtis had a hot dog and was rubbing a hot dog on SAMs lip (while he was sleeping) and Sam woke up and Curtis stood up like he was zipping his pants up. He got up like he was going to kick his rear end Rick was cracking up so bad!

R,I.P. Uncle Sam, Some of my fondest memories of childhood, were spent at Uncle Sam's house, playing with my cousins. Uncle Sam always had a smile on, when he always had open arms with hugs and kisses. All my Love, God Bless

Charles William "Bill" Johnson

72, died peacefully in his sleep, November 27, 2015 at the home of daughter, Casey Gettinger in Los Angeles, California. Bill was born on November 1, 1943 in Indianapolis, Indiana the 2nd son of Thomas Wilson Johnson and Mary Lucinda Webber. Bill graduated from Broad Ripple High School in 1961, Indiana University in 1965, and Indiana University Medical School in 1968.

Bill married the love of his life, Jan Coleman Clarke, on Sept. 17, 1966 while still in medical school. He did his internship while in the US Army at Tripler General Hospital in Honolulu, Hawaii and finished his military obligation at Ft. Lewis in Tacoma, Washington. He returned to Indiana to complete his ENT Residency and joined his father in his medical practice. When his father retired, Bill began to build the practice into what is today Otolaryngology Associates. He left private practice in the late 1990's and became a consultant for Blue Cross in Richmond, Virginia. Returning to Indianapolis several years later, he finished his medical career as an advisor to the residency program at the Indiana University Medical School. He also served as a volunteer advisor to the Indianapolis Motor Speedway and the Indianapolis Colts. Retiring in 2008, he and Jan moved to Southern California to be near their children.

Bill was a member of Sigma Nu Fraternity, sang with the Singing Hoosiers, and the Indianapolis Maennerchor. As a former member of Hillcrest Country Club and member of Woodstock Country Club, Bill was an avid golfer. "Pop", as his family affectionately called him, shared his love of golf and sense of humor with his children, grandchildren and friends.

He was preceded in death by his parents and his brother, Thomas Webber Johnson. Surviving are his wife, Jan, son, Thomas Charles Johnson (Susan) and daughter, Katherine Clarke "Casey" Gettinger (Jeff), grandchildren, Maya Johnson, Will and Clarke Gettinger all of California and his sister, Mary Sue Higgins of Indianapolis. A memorial service will be held in Indianapolis later this year. In lieu of flowers, a donation can be made to the Sigma Nu Educational foundation at www.sigmanu.org/educationalfoundation/ways-to-give/donate-now. Please write in honor of Bill Johnson in the comment box.

PASSINGS

'Barney Miller' actor Vigoda dies at age 94

Abe Vigoda

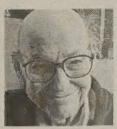
Abe Vigoda, 94, the character actor whose leathery, sad-eyed face made him ideal for playing the over-the-hill detective Phil Fish in the 1970s TV series "Barney Miller" and a doomed Mafia soldier in "The Godfather," died Tuesday in his sleep in Woodland Park, New Jersey. His death brought to an end years of questions on whether he was still alive — sparked by a false report of his death more than three decades ago. Vigoda worked in relative obscurity as a supporting actor in the New York theater and in television until Francis Ford Coppola cast him in the 1972 Oscar-winning "The Godfather." Vigoda played Sal Tessio, an old friend of Vito Corleone's (Marlon Brando) who hopes to take over the family after Vito's death by killing his son Michael Corleone (Al Pacino). But Michael anticipates that Sal's suggestion for a "peace summit" among crime families is a setup and the escorts Sal thought were taking him to the meeting turn out to be his executioners. "Tell Mike it was only business," Sal mutters to consigliere Tom Hagen, played by Robert Duvall, as he's led away.

Alyce Dixon, 108, the oldest U.S. female veteran died in her sleep Wednesday at a Washington, D.C., veterans living center. Dixon was born in Boston in 1907. She joined the military in 1943, and was among one of the first African-American women in the Army. As a member of the Women's Army Corps, she was stationed in England and France, where she served in the postal service as part of the 6888th Battalion. After leaving the Army, she worked at the Census Bureau and the Pentagon.

Gordon Goody, 86, a member of the British gang that pulled off the 1963 "Great Train Robbery" died Friday in southern Spain, where he had run a bar after serving jail time in Britain for the heist. Goody had been sentenced to a 30-year sentence after being captured in the crime that saw thieves make off with $3.7 million from a Glasgow-to-London mail train. He was released in 1975 and set up a beach bar four years later in Spain.

Paul Kantner

Paul Kantner, 74, a founding member of the Jefferson Airplane who stayed with the seminal San Francisco band through its transformation from 1960s hippies to 1970s hit makers as the eventual leader of successor group Jefferson Starship, died Thursday of organ failure and septic shock. Kantner drew upon his passion for politics and science fiction to help write such rock classics as "Wooden Ships" and "Volunteers." Few bands were so identified with San Francisco or so well-embodied the idealism and hedonism of the late 1960s as Jefferson Airplane. The Airplane advocated sex, psychedelic drugs, rebellion and a communal lifestyle, operating out of an eccentric, Colonial Revival house near Haight-Ashbury. Its members supported various political and social causes, tossed out LSD at concerts and played at both the Monterey and Woodstock festivals.

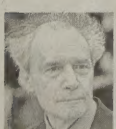


Marvin Minsky

Marvin Minsky, 88, a pioneer in the field of artificial intelligence at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology who saw parallels in the functioning of the human brain and computers, died Jan. 24 in Boston of a cerebral hemorrhage. Minsky viewed the brain as a machine whose functioning can be studied and replicated in a computer, and he considered how machines might be endowed with common sense. Daniela Rus, director of MIT's Computer Science and Artificial Intelligence Laboratory, said Minsky "helped create the vision of artificial intelligence as we know it today."

Concepcion Picciotto

Concepcion Picciotto, the protester who maintained a three-decade peace vigil outside the White House that was widely considered to be the longest-running act of political protest in U.S. history, died Monday at a housing facility for homeless women. Picciotto, a Spanish immigrant, was the primary guardian of the anti-nuclear-proliferation vigil stationed along Pennsylvania Avenue. She was quoted in 2013 as saying she protested to "stop the world from being destroyed."



Jacques Rivette

Jacques Rivette, 87, a secretive French director and pioneer of New Wave film acclaimed for expanding the boundaries of movie making and for creating rich roles for actresses such as Emmanuelle Beart, has died. Known for his often-tousled hair and slight build, he was among the last survivors from a generation of directors that included Francois Truffaut who startled filmgoers and revitalized filmmaking in the 1950s and '60s. French President Francois Hollande hailed him as "a cineaste of the woman." Serge Toubiana of the Cinematheque museum in Paris described Rivette's "sense of conspiracy, sense of secrecy" and the "magnificent place" he provided to female characters. Among them were roles in an early film "The Nun," censored when it first came out in 1966; and the award-winning, nearly-four-hour "The Beautiful Troublemaker" with Beart, in 1991. He was known for working without scripts, for telling stories within stories and for disregarding rules of commercial cinema.

Colin Vearncombe, 53, a British singer who had a 1980s hit with "Wonderful Life" under the stage name Black, died Tuesday from injuries suffered in a Jan. 10 car accident. The Liverpool-born singer also released the hit single "Sweetest Smile." Vearncombe made 15 albums and also published poetry and staged exhibitions of his paintings in Ireland, where he had lived for many years.

Ruth Edna (Ott) Arthur

78, of Indianapolis, died January 30, 2016, in Greenfield, IN. She was born July 21, 1937 in Bellefonte, PA, to Walther and Maxine Ott. Ruth grew up in New Jersey and was a graduate of The Pennsylvania State University, with a BS in Medical Technology. She retired from Methodist Hospital in 2000. She volunteered for WFYI for many years. She was a member of the Indianapolis First Church of Nazarene, American Sewing Guild, and the PEO Sisterhood.

Survivors include her daughters, Katie Lewman of Shirley, Karen(Chris) Campbell of rural Greenfield; sister, and Arline (James) Cox of Bridgewater, NJ. She was preceded in death by her parents; brother, Roger Ott; and husband Lloyd Arthur.

Memorial contributions may be given to Indianapolis First Church of Nazarene or to the PEO Program for Continuing Education. Arrangements are being handled by Hendryx Mortuaries.

Patty Jean Barth

Services for Patty Jean Barth, 82, Carmel, will be at 12 noon Tuesday at Flanner and Buchanan-Oaklawn Memorial Gardens (Good Shepherd Chapel), 9700 Allisonville Rd., Indianapolis, with calling that day from 10 a.m. She passed peacefully Jan. 29 at home with her beloved daughters.

The widow of Robert E. Barth, Mrs. Barth was a co-owner of Barth Electric Co. As a couple, Bob and Patty enjoyed playing golf in the Indianapolis area, where they were members of the Golf Club of Indiana. On Aug. 8, 1983, Patty scored a hole in one. As a resident of Bridgewater, Patty continued her golfing success at The Bridgewater Club's Executive Golf Course, where fellow members and friends valued her talent for skillful chip shots. Playing outside the Indianapolis area, Patty especially looked forward to her rounds of golf while at her home away from home in Key Largo, Fla., dubbed "Patty's Paradise" by her family. She had been a member of Starlighters, the support group for the former Starlight Musicals program at Butler University, and she was a member of the Clowes Hall Women's Committee, the Women's Committee of the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra and Order of the Eastern Star Beech Grove Chapter 465. She attended Northview Church.

Survivors include daughters Vicki L. Gillaspy and Sally Zier; grandchildren Alyssa Scotten, Erica L. Costa, James R. Gillaspy and Jacob Zier; and great-grandchildren Lucas Coleman, Oliver Scotten, Carmen Brielle Ferro, Haylee Sexson, Elliot Scotten, Lochlean Gillaspy and Juliet Costa. A native of Scottsville, Ky., Patty was preceded in death by her parents, Payton Arlee and Ruby Jewell Riggs, and her brother, Relis Riggs. Online condolences may be made at www.flannerbuchanan.com.

Mildred Jane Barz

92, of Indianapolis, passed away January 29 at Meadow Lakes in Mooresville IN from a long battle of Alzheimers. Mildred was a good Christian mother. She attended the Church by the Side of the Road on county line road in Indianapolis where she was very active in playing the organ and her art work. Mildred designed the first cover of the keyhole year book for Ben Davis High School.

She is preceded in death by her husband, Albert Lewis Barz; 3 sons, Ronnie, Gary and Eric Barz; her parents, Carl and Margaret Gibson. She leaves behind her son, Bruce A. (Patty) Barz; daughter, Becky (Gary) Bryant; 5 grandchildren, Chad and Curtis Lindstrom, Charity Bryant, Eric Barz, Jennifer Haley; great grandchildren; nieces, Sherry Buzzard and Paula Barz.

Services will be 1 p.m. Tuesday, February 2, 2016, at Conkle Funeral Home Speedway, with visitation 11 a.m. - 1 p.m. Burial will be in Crown Hill Cemetery. Contributions may be made to the Alzheimer's Association. Heaven gained a mighty warrior. She was loved by everyone that met her. Online condolences may be shared at www.conklefuneralhome.com.

VETERAN'S MEMORIAL PLAZA

As you enter Veteran's Memorial Plaza from the south, you have a breathtaking view of the northern half of the Indiana War Memorial Plaza. Veteran's Memorial Plaza, formerly known as Obelisk Square, was finished in 1930. However, there is little resemblance to the original design today. Originally it was paved almost completely with asphalt so large groups would have a place to gather. The square was relandscaped in 1975 with a formal pavement pattern radiating from the central Obelisk fountain as part of beautification efforts for the Bicentennial of the Declaration of Independence. Grassy areas were added along with trees at the four corners.

In the center of the Plaza is the (7) Obelisk Fountain. The Obelisk itself, a symbol of regeneration has been said to represent "the hopes and aspirations of the nation, a symbol of the power of nature to reproduce and continue the life of the country." It is a 100 foot four-sided shaft of black granite, ornamented at its base by four bronze bas-relief tablets that are 4 by 8 feet. The tablets are sculpted to represent the four fundamentals on which the nation's hopes are founded: law, science, religion, and education. They were set into place in the fall of 1929 under the supervision of Henry Hering, the primary sculptor of the plaza. The pinnacle of the Obelisk is covered with gold leaf. A two-level fountain encircles the Obelisk. Its lower basin is 100 feet in diameter and made from pink Georgia marble and terrazzo. The upper basin is composed of four small bays with a large nozzle and spray ring in each. Colored lights illuminate the fountain at night. Veteran's Memorial Plaza is one of the downtown area's most popular venues for outdoor events.

Obelisk Fountain in Veteran's Memorial Plaza

As you exit to the north of the Plaza a regiment of flags representing each state of the Union is centrally located to carry out the formal axis of the whole Plaza design. Once you get to North Street, which borders Veteran's Memorial Plaza, North Memorial Plaza, walk westward (left) to continue your journey on the walking tour.

Indiana World War Memorial

With this pamphlet you can continue your journey through the Indiana War Memorial Plaza. The crown jewel of the Plaza is the (5) Indiana World War Memorial Building. In early 1926, work began on the main Memorial building. On July 4, 1927, General John J. Pershing laid the cornerstone of the building. Work continued steadily on the main Memorial until 1928. A delay in state funds slowed the completion of the building. It was not until 1965 that the building was 100 percent complete, because two churches that sat on the block were finally demolished, allowing final landscaping of the grounds to be finished. Despite being unfinished, on November 11, 1933, Lieutenant General Hugh Drum, Deputy Chief of Staff of the United States Army and Governor Paul McNutt dedicated the newly completed Shrine Room.

Veterans Memorial Plaza

The Memorial building sits on a block that is raised above street level, which only adds to its impressiveness. It rises 210 feet above street level with the main vertical mass resting on a wide base. Access to the terrace roof is gained from Vermont Street by a single, monumental stairway rising directly from the sidewalk. From Michigan Street there is a low, wide granite and limestone stairway leading to a pair of end stairways that rise in two runs. The vertical mass of the shrine is divided into a lower section- a smooth rectangular shaft with each face containing six columns, and a stepped pyramidal roof topped by a lantern. Around the area of the columns exists a frieze that continues across each facade. The lower section of the shrine has, on the north and south, tall, double leaf bronze doors.

Pro Patria Sculpture

Pro Patria Sculpture

As you walk from the southwest corner of the block along Vermont Street, you will see located on the south steps facing University Park the (6) Pro Patria sculpture. Pro Patria is a Latin phrase meaning "for country." Set on a pink granite base is the 24 foot bronze casting, which is the central sculptural element of the main Memorial building. The sculpture, by Henry Hering, features a young man draped in an American flag reaching heavenward. When set in place in 1929, it was described as the largest sculptured bronze casting ever made in America. Hering constructed four models, each one greater in size in order to perfect and develop details on such a large scale. Pro Patria took three years to complete. A special rigging device had to be used to convey the sculpture up the south steps of the Memorial and place it on the granite base. It arrived in October 1929 from Roman Bronze Works in Corona, New York, where it was cast in seven different parts. Continue eastward on Vermont Street and then turn north (left) on Pennsylvania Street. As you wrap around the Memorial building, you get a chance to see just how extraordinary the building is.

Shrine Room, located inside the War Memorial

Interior of War Memorial

This magnificent building has three main floors. On the upper level is the breathtaking Shrine Room. The Shrine Room, symbolizing peace and unity, is made of materials from all over the world and is symbolic of the world wide nature of World War I. Those who visit the Shrine Room leave with a renewed sense of patriotism and an appreciation for the sacrifices of those who fought in the first World War. The main floor houses exhibit space, the administrative offices, two 75-seat meeting rooms, and the Pershing Auditorium which seats 500. The meeting rooms and auditorium are available for public use for a nominal fee. Listed on this level are the names of all Hoosiers who participated in World War I and all Hoosiers killed or missing in action from World War II, Korea, and Vietnam. The building also contains a FREE Military museum that portrays the history of Indiana's gallant veterans. Among the interesting items on display is the commission plate of the battleship U.S.S. Indiana, numerous military firearms, a Korean War era helicopter, and Navy Terrier Missile that can be armed with a nuclear warhead. For more information on the interior of the building, simply enter from either Meridian Street or Michigan Street

Marion County Public Library 1916

The Public Library is located on the northernmost block of the Historic District and like the Federal Building, it is not part of the Indiana War Memorial Plaza. The exterior of the building is composed primarily of Bedford limestone. The classic Greek architecture of the library provides a fitting end to the Historic District.

Marion County Public Library

U.S.S. Indianapolis and Soldiers and Sailors Monument

In addition to the facilities on the Indiana War Memorial Plaza, there are two other related structures worth noting. Located at Senate Avenue and Walnut Street on the north end of the Canal Walk in downtown Indianapolis is the National Memorial to the U.S.S. Indianapolis. The Memorial recognizes the ship and crew that were sunk in the Pacific Ocean during World War II. It is an outdoor site and is available to the public 24 hours a day and seven days a week. Engraved on the south face of the monument are the names of the ship's company and one passenger who made up the final crew.

The other structure is the Soldiers and Sailors Monument on the circle in downtown Indianapolis. It is dedicated to the 24,000 Hoosiers who gave their lives to preserve the Union during the Civil War. The Monument is recognized as one of the world's most outstanding monuments and is the signature structure of Indianapolis and Indiana.

U.S.S. Indianapolis National Memorial

Soldiers and Sailors Monument

Conclusion

Though designed to honor the veterans of World War I, the Indiana War Memorial Plaza is today dedicated to all men and women of Indiana who have served in all conflicts since World War I. The Plaza clearly expresses the urban planning ideals of the early 20th century and contains the city's most significant grouping of Neoclassical architecture. The Indiana War Memorial Plaza is truly one of America's most impressive public settings and one of the nation's most outstanding war memorials.

Indiana War Memorial Plaza Historic District

After the first World War, the idea was conceived to build a memorial to both the Indiana veterans who gave their lives in service and to all service men and women who served during World War I. Closely related to the plan was the effort to bring the American Legion National Headquarters to downtown Indianapolis. In 1919 many cities including: Minneapolis, Washington, D.C., Indianapolis, Kansas City, and Detroit were in the running for the headquarters. The proposed building of the Indiana War Memorial Plaza and the Indiana World War Memorial Building gave Indianapolis an advantage over the others. The Plaza as a whole was designed by architects Frank B. Walker and Harry E. Weeks in 1923 and realized in phases between 1925 and to essential completion in 1950. Though originally designed to honor the World War I veterans, the entire Plaza, from New York Street north to St. Clair Street is now dedicated to all men and women of Indiana who have served in the uniformed services of the United States.

The Indiana War Memorial Building

The concept of the Memorial was to create a park or plaza in the heart of Indianapolis. A special session of the Indiana General Assembly met in 1920 and created by law the Indiana World War Memorial. The Indiana War Memorial Plaza, which stretches for five blocks, plus the two blocks on the ends to make it a 7 block area to be recognized as the Indiana World War Memorial Plaza Historic District. The Plaza displays the city planning concepts of classical formality and grand monumental scale used by city planners, architects, and artists in the "City Beautiful" movement of the early twentieth century. The Plaza's preliminary work began in 1921, and it was considered virtually complete in 1950. The Plaza has become one of the most popular downtown areas for both citizens and visitors to the city. Please feel free to take the self-guided walking tour by using the pamphlets available throughout the five block area to learn more about each of the individual parks and structures and enjoy your stay in the Indiana War Memorial Plaza.

Federal Building

Federal Building

Located just south of University Park is the Federal Building. The building is not part of the Plaza but is the southern most block of the Historic District. It was originally built to house federal courts, offices, and the main city post office. The exterior consists of Indiana limestone and is detailed in Italian Renaissance style.

University Park (University Square)

Depew Fountain in University Park

Originally set aside for a state university in the early 1800's, University Park is the oldest portion of the Plaza. The centerpiece of the park is the (4) Depew Fountain. Several statues are scattered throughout the park including: the (1) Benjamin Harrison statue located at the south central part of the park, the (2) Lincoln Seated statue located at the southeast corner of the park, the (3) Schuyler Colfax statue in the middle of the eastern half of the park, and the Wood Nymph and Pan statues located directly east and west of the fountain respectively.

Indiana World War Memorial Building

Construction on the main (5) Indiana World War Memorial Building began in 1926 and was not fully completed until 1965. The building was originally built to honor and remember those Hoosiers in World War I, but it has since been rededicated for those Hoosiers in World War II. The Shrine Room is the focal point of the Memorial. The first floor, along with the basement, house a FREE Military museum. The first floor also contains the 500-seat Pershing Auditorium and two 75-person meeting rooms. Located on the south steps is the largest sculptural bronze casting made in America at the time of its casting, the (6) Pro Patria by Henry Hering.

Veteran's Memorial Plaza (Obelisk Square)

Veterans Memorial Plaza

Veteran's Memorial Plaza once known as Obelisk Square, was completed in 1930. Originally the park was almost complete paved with asphalt. Relandscaping in 1975 gave it the present-day design. Centrally located in Veteran's Memorial Plaza is the Obelisk and the (7) Obelisk Fountain. The Obelisk consists of Berwick black granite with bronze tablets at its base. The fountain is composed of pink Georgia marble and terrazzo. Since its relandscaping in 1975, Veteran's Memorial Plaza has become one of the city's favorite spots.

American Legion Mall

American Legion Mall

The American Legion Mall was designed to give perfect sight lines from the Central Library, through the Mall and on to the main Memorial. At the north half of the Mall is the (12) Cenotaph and the American Legion buildings. The Cenotaph is made of black granite sitting on red and dark green granite, and it is an empty tomb. (13) Building "B" is located on the northwest corner of the Mall and was the first building constructed on the Plaza. It formerly housed the National Headquarters for the American Legion but now contains primarily the Indiana Department of the American Legion. On the northeast corner of the Mall is the (11) National Headquarters of the American Legion. Located inside are a library, museum, and a cafeteria. Guided tours are available for the interior of the National Headquarters. Just south is the (10) World War II Memorial. It features a computer to quickly and easily look up those Hoosiers who were involved in the war. Directly south of the World War II Memorial is the (9) Korean War Memorial. It was dedicated on May 24, 1996 along with the (8) Vietnam War Memorial which is located directly across the grass mall.

Directly above the fountain is The Dying Soldier statue, designed by Rudolf Schwarz, who was responsible for all stone sculptures. The statue portrays two comrades tending to a wounded soldier. The tremendous statuary group War is above The Dying Soldier and shows a battle scene with cavalry and charging infantry and artillery. In the center the fierce goddess of war urges on the charge, while in the background Columbia holds the stars and stripes. The Navy astragal on this face of the Monument features the ship Monitor.

The North Elevation

As you wrap around to the North side you see the bronze statue of William Henry Harrison. Harrison was a General in the War of 1812 and the Battle of Tippecanoe and the first Governor of the Indiana Territory. On this side the entrance is flanked by figures of an artilleryman, on the left, and a sailor on the right. Above the door is a second Roll of Honor commemorating Indiana's contributions to the War with Mexico (1846-48), the Indian and British War (1811-12), the War of the Revolution, the capture of Vincennes from the British on February 25, 1779, and the Mexican Border Service. As on the South elevation, above the tablet is the head of Victory with the motto "To Indiana's Silent Victors." On this side the Army astragal contains the state seal rather than a crest, while the Navy astragal features a sailor instead of a naval officer.

The Peace statuary group on the west elevation of the Monument

The West Elevation

The statue of George Rogers Clark greets you to the West side of the Monument. Clark, representing the Revolution, stands as the courageous commander of his little band of soldiers at the capture of Fort Sackville. Just above the large cascade fountain sits The Return Home sculpture. It portrays the reunion of a returning soldier with his family. The plow is representative of the tools of peaceful labor. The sculptural group Peace, above The Return Home sculpture, represents the homecoming of the victorious troops, the happy reunion of families, and the peaceful emblems of labor. In the center, Liberty holds the flag, while at her feet a freed slave lifts up his broken chains. The angel of Peace hovering over the scene holds aloft the wreath of Victory and an olive branch. The Navy astragal on this side of the Monument features the ship Virginia. As you head back to the South side of the Monument, you pass the statue of James Whitcomb who was the Governor of Indiana during the War with Mexico.

Monument Interior

The balcony, 231 feet above the ground, is enclosed in glass and can be reached by an elevator or by 32 flights of stairs. The view at the top is breathtaking and provides a dramatic panorama of the city. To enter the upper level of the Monument, simply take the stone steps, on either the North or South side, up to the terrace and enter through the bronze doors. In the lower level, accessed by a door on the southwest side of the Monument, is the Colonel Eli Lilly Civil War Museum and gift shop. The museum portrays Indiana's contributions to the war between the states in the fields of battle and on the homefront. Exhibits include aspects of camplife, marches into battle, hospitals, and the return home of soldiers.

SOLDIERS' AND SAILORS' MONUMENT

Universally recognized as one of the most outstanding achievements of Architectural and Sculptural Art, the Soldiers' and Sailor's Monument has come to symbolize the city of Indianapolis and the state of Indiana. Originally designed to honor the memory of Indiana's Civil War Veterans, it now commemorates the valor of Indiana's military men and women in all wars prior to World War I. Since 1902, the Monument has stood a tribute to the past and an inspiration for the future as the only Civil War Monument in America dedicated to ordinary soldiers and sailors. The reason being, Indiana soldiers fired the first and last infantry volleys, made the first and last charges, and were the first and last soldiers to die in the war. More than 24,000 Hoosiers gave their lives to preserve the Union. Although Indiana was geographically a border state, 74.3 percent of the men of military age served in the Union army, a percentage higher than every state except Delaware.

Background

The circle on which the Monument now sits was originally laid out for the Governor's Mansion, which was completed in 1827. By 1857, the house was ordered demolished due to its poor condition and a new city park was created. In 1862, long before the Civil War ended, a letter to the editor in the Indianapolis Daily Journal suggested that the state build a monument to recognize those who were dying while protecting the Union. Governor Oliver P. Morton suggested the same in 1867 and wanted it built in nearby Crown Hill Cemetery. Finally, in 1887, the state legislature made a grant of $200,000 and appointed a Monument Commission. A competition was set up to invite architects to submit designs for the proposed monument. In early 1888, Bruno Schmitz, an architect from Berlin, Germany, was named the winner.

The Victory statue atop the Monument

The Structure

On August 22, 1889, the cornerstone was laid during impressive ceremonies at the northeast corner of the Monument. By the time it was dedicated on May 15, 1902, the complete cost of design and construction was nearly $600,000. It has been estimated that building a similar structure today would cost more than 500 million dollars. The Monument is built of gray oolitic limestone from the Romana quarries of Owen County, Indiana. The stone is of very fine quality and is extremely durable. The foundation is 30 feet in depth while the height from street level to the top of the Victory statue is 284 feet 6 inches, only 15 feet shorter than the Statue of Liberty.

The South Elevation of the Monument

The South Elevation

The tours begin at the broad stone steps leading to the bronze entrance doors, seventy feet away. To your left is the bronze statue of James Whitcomb, Indiana's Governor during the Mexican War. Directly above the doors is a large tablet that bears a Roll of Honor commemorating Indiana's contributions to the War for the Union (1861-65) and the War with Spain. The motto "To Indiana's Silent Victors" appears just above the Roll and below the head of Victory. Flanking the entrance are the free-standing figures of a cavalry scout, on the right, and an infantryman on the left. Each figure was carved from a single block of limestone.

The War Statuary group

70 feet above the base of the Monument is the Army astragal. This bronze sculpture represents the carnage of war with cannons, horses, flags, and fallen soldiers and was designed by Nicolaus Geiger of Germany. If you look closely you'll see an eagle above and a bison below a crest with the stars and stripes. Just 12 feet higher is the Navy astragal which wraps all the way around the Monument. The boat hulls are modeled after the Hartford, a Union ship. The astragal was designed by George W. Brewster of Cleveland at a cost of $13,700. He also designed the bronze Date Astragal which rests 80 feet above the Navy one. The astragal has the date 1861 on the South and East sides, 1865 on the North and West sides and commemorates the start and end of the Civil War. The crowning figure of the Monument is located at the very top. The statue Victory, popularly known as "Miss Indiana," was also designed by Mr. Brewster at a cost of $12,500. Victory is 38 feet tall and weighs 19,300 pounds. Victory's right hand holds a sword, the top of which rests upon a globe. Her left hand holds a torch, which represents the light of civilization. The young eagle on her brow is an emblem of freedom.

The East Elevation

Continue the tour by heading east (right) around the Monument. A bronze statue of Oliver P. Morton, designed by Franklin Simmons, appears in the southeast section of the Circle. Morton was the Governor of Indiana during the Civil War and was a major supporter of building a Monument. The East side of the Monument features a large cascade fountain in which over 5,000 gallons of water flows per minute.

BHS School Song
(Illinois Loyalty)

We're loyal to you, BHS
We're purple and white, BHS
We'll back you to stand
'Against the best in the land,
For we know you can stand BHS
RAH! RAH!
Go smash that blockage, BHS
Go crashing ahead, BHS
Our team is our fame protector
On boys, for we expect a
Victory from you, BHS
RAH! RAH!
Fling out that dear old flag of purple and white.
Lead on, you sons and daughters fighting for right,
Like men of old, on giants
Stressing reliance,
Shouting defiance,
OSKE WOW WOW
Amid the broad green fields that nourish our land
For honest labor and for learning we stand,
And unto you we pledge our hearts and hands,
Dear Brownsburg High School
We're for you!!!

For Your Information!

Name Mary Brown
Department Deli
Position Deli Clerk
Supervisor Mary Switzer
Badge Number 285
Store Phone # (317) 745-8020

Your 1st Week Schedule: Sun. —
Mon. —
Tues. —
Wed. —
Thurs. 9-3
Fri. 8-4^{30}
Sat. 8-4^{30}
Sun. —

1. Who writes my schedule? Mary Switzer
   Your schedule is normally written by your supervisor listed above.

2. When is the schedule posted? Friday 10am
   The schedule is posted on Friday morning for the coming week. The official posting is in the back room on the bulletin board by the locker room.

3. How do I request a day off?
   A "request off book" is kept for each department in the customer service office. It is basically a Callander book - place your name and reason for requesting off on the appropriate day. Requests must be submitted no later than Wednesday for following week.

4. My request was not granted. Why?
   Every effort is made to arrange for your requested day off. Unfortunately, due to business needs we may not be able to grant all requests. See your supervisor or manager for special circumstances.

5. Who should I notify if I am ill and cannot work?
   You MUST personally notify a member of management.

6. When do I get a break?
   You are entitled to one 15 minute break. If you work more than 4 hours, an additional 15 minute bread is given. 30 minute lunch breaks are granted for shifts seven hours or longer in addition to your breaks. Ideally, breaks are spaced evenly over your shift, however due to business patterns, your supervisor may be forced to adjust your break schedule.

7. When do I get paid?
   Checks are issued at the customer service office after 8am on Thursdays. You may cash your pay check at NSSB at no charge. Holiday week's checks are issued on Fridays.

8. What makes a good employee?
   A good employee is one who follows Kroger's motto "Serving You Comes First" and -Is friendly and helpful to customers

   -Is cooperative and respectful of supervisors
   -Is attentive and friendly to co-workers
   -Work his/her scheduled shift

Congratulations and Good Luck on Your New Job!

HENDRICKS COUNTY

The Hendricks County Heritage Alliance is staging a safari. The prize isn't trophy game but a better appreciation of the county's history.

"We hope people will travel around the county to locate the historic buildings and places, to look at them and find the answers to the questions," said President David A. Kroll.

Listed below are clues associated with 10 historical sites in various townships. Answers may be discovered by visiting the locations.

This clipping from StarWest may be used as an entry form, or a separate sheet of paper may be mailed to: Hendricks County Heritage Alliance, 395 N. Indiana St., Danville, IN 46122. Entries must be postmarked by May 31.

Anyone correctly answering at least six items will get a 2003 membership in the alliance. Three entries with the most correct answers will receive prizes donated by artists Karen Ellis-Langefeld and Phyllis Gladden and by Courthouse Grounds restaurant.

Here are the clues:

1. Charles McLain House, Avon, across U.S. 36 from Menard's. For many years, this Queen Anne house, circa 1900, was an antique store. The trim uses what two paint colors?

2. Joseph Richards/Burnett Family Farm, U.S. 36 in front of Avon Commons shopping center. In an area of rapid development, where homesteads are few and far between, this 1836 central-passage and Greek Revival house still retains its outbuildings and barn. What is the design above the front door of the house?

3. Junction of Old and New U.S. 36, east side of Danville. This Italianate building, built about 1868 to 1877 on a hill, was once part of a large farm with a cemetery, summer kitchen, garage and power house. It houses a county agency. Every county used to have one, but now fewer than one-third operate one. What is the site?

Ex-teacher learned much of her history firsthand

By Bruce C. Smith
bruce.smith@indystar.com

Lois Parker doesn't need to go on a safari to learn about Hendricks County history.

She's lived it.

At age 94, the retired grade school teacher and principal has experienced the changes of Avon and Danville and shared her knowledge with generations of children.

Lois Parker

She lives in Danville, close enough to the center of town that she looks out her window to tell the time on the courthouse clock.

"Danville is still a nice town, but it is a lot different now. The town has changed. I like it, but I liked it better when it was a college town," she said.

Parker was referring to Central Normal College, closed now for more than 50 years. While she grew up in Danville and attended the college before starting a 47-year career as a teacher, the college had a big effect on the community.

"The college was run by the town, and important people from the town were on the board. Kids could take the schooling and then pay for it after they got jobs," she said.

Party's over for park parkers

■ Town restricts parking around parks to curb race revelers' streetside gatherings.

By Howard M. Smulevitz
howard.smulevitz@indystar.com

SPEEDWAY

The Speedway Town Council has adopted parking restrictions around two parks.

The intent is to keep the parks accessible to residents and prevent overnight camping during race and qualification weekends.

The ordinance, approved Monday, prohibits parking of recreational and commercial vehicles and trailers from 9 p.m. to 6 a.m. around Leonard and Meadowood parks and on the streets bordering them.

The restrictions are in effect Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights during 500-Mile Race and qualification weekends.

The restrictions also will apply to Brickyard 400 and U.S. Grand Prix weekends.

The restrictions would be extended if a race is delayed a day or more.

Problems occur when recreational vehicles park on streets around the parks and occupants put out canopies and chairs, said Police Chief Jeff Dine.

"It obviously led to a party-type atmosphere," he said. "Once they set up, it is very difficult to get them to comply with a request to tear down."

The parks close at 10 p.m., so the 9 p.m. start of the restrictions will not seriously inconvenience residents, Dine said.

"No one has a legitimate reason to park around there" after closing, he said.

Tornado funds are restored

Portion of federal money to be returned to fund repairs, jobs

By Bruce C. Smith
bruce.smith@indystar.com

MORGAN COUNTY

A suspended federal grant to help Morgan and 31 other Indiana counties recover from devastating tornado damage has been partially restored.

U.S. Sen. Richard G. Lugar, R-Ind., and U.S. Rep. Steve Buyer, R-Ind., confirmed Tuesday that the Department of Labor has responded to their concerns by reaching an agreement with state officials to resume the funding.

"What excites me the most is to see that the needs of the people in Morgan County can be met, and I'm thrilled at the way our representatives have gone to bat for us," said Jeff Sexton, pastor of First Baptist Church and chairman of Martinsville's Long Term Recovery Committee.

Buyer called it "one of those cases when government makes a mistake and should be willing to admit it.

"If government makes a mistake, don't force the people who were victimized by the tornado to be further victimized," said Buyer, the Republican whose 4th District includes Morgan County and much of west central Indiana.

The agreement restoring the grant funds particularly targets Marion, Morgan and the Madison-Grant county areas that were among the hardest hit.

After the Sept. 20 tornado ripped a near-record-long path of destruction of more than 100 miles from southwestern Indiana to the northeast, the Labor Department agreed to provide $750,000 to help hire workers displaced by the storm and to aid

Extra effort earns awards for teachers

By Michael Dabney
michael.dabney@indystar.com

Thirteen StarWest-area teachers, including 10 from Wayne Township, have received Golden Apple Awards.

The awards, sponsored by Indianapolis Power & Light, recognize teachers for creativity, innovation and motivation in the teaching of math, science and technology in the classroom.

StarWest teachers earned more than half of the 25 given out this year in Central Indiana.

In addition to the 10 from Wayne Township, one teacher each from Decatur Township, Speedway and Mooresville won.

"We are very proud of our teachers in Wayne Township and we are very proud of the ones who went the extra mile … for the Golden Apple Award," Superintendent Terry Thompson said Tuesday.

"This is a representative group of the great teachers we have in Wayne," he said.

In an awards ceremony Monday, the utility donated $75,000 to the 25 winners and their schools. The honorees each got a check for $2,000 and a Golden Apple statue, and their schools got $1,000.

The winning teachers guided their students in a variety of projects, said company spokesman Crystal Livers-Powers. They made electric cars; they researched the history of black cowboys by visiting riding stables and learning roping techniques; and they learned about the USS Indianapolis and met surviving sailors.

"The projects were innovative and exciting," Livers-Powers said.

The Golden Apple program was started in 1991. Since the award's inception, 325 teachers have been honored.

in the repairs.

The money was to be paid in installments as needed. So when less than $100,000 had been spent by April, federal officials notified Indiana that no further payments would be made. Buyer, Lugar and others argued that much of the money hadn't been spent in winter when construction was slowed by bad weather.

In a May 12 letter released by Lugar, Labor Assistant Secretary Emily Stover DeRocco confirms an agreement to restore funding, but at a lower level of $550,000. Because $250,000 has already been paid to the state, another $300,000 will be paid.

Indiana's Department of Workforce Development will pay claims submitted by the counties and receive reimbursement from the federal grant.

Martinsville's Long Term Recovery Committee used the federal funding to hire at least 10 people. Some were construction workers making structural repairs at the Morgan County Fairgrounds, Martinsville High School and other places hit by the twister.

Others hired with the grant funds included case workers who worked with people suffering because their homes were destroyed, but they still don't know how to pay for repairs.

Sexton said the workers are being rehired and more will be added.

"I'm delirious with joy," he said. "It means we'll be able to continue to help people, and they will know we're in this for the long haul."

room would open it to a student, who would do chores in exchange for the rent. We had groceries and barber shops and six restaurants and a hardware store and a shoe store around the square. And the downtown would stay open till midnight," she recalled.

The people are still friendly, but back then it was so safe that no one felt the need to lock doors.

Danville raised sons such as Crawford Parker, one of Lois' 10 brothers and sisters.

He became a lieutenant governor and secretary of state and was the Republican candidate for governor in 1960 (he lost by 23,000 votes). He was known for being honest and straightforward.

Lois Parker taught in several Indiana schools and then returned to her hometown in 1929, taking a job at Avon's elementary school. "As a teacher, you felt like a queen because the parents were so nice."

U.S. 36 wasn't a paved road in those early years. Residents such as Parker, who commuted eight miles to Avon, took the Interurban light-rail train each day. The fare: 11 cents.

Electricity had reached Danville, but coal or wood stoves were used for heating and cooking.

When she became principal of Avon Elementary in 1958, the school had 826 children, her job paid $6,400 and her telephone was a four-party line.

She reminisced that the county was so rural then, traffic was very light on the highway.

"In those days, you could bobsled and play marbles in the road, and all the entertainment for kids didn't come from television or a store. They'd see an old wheel and make something of it."

No. 4: A train passes over a single track 1870s railroad bridge (above), next to an 1887 iron bridge for road traffic over White Lick Creek's West Fork in Danville. In 1906, a two-track concrete span (below) was built and the old railroad trestle taken down. What are the bridges in these County Historical Society photos known as?

No. 5: Students from Maple Elementary School in Avon leave the former sheriff's residence and jail in Danville. The building no longer holds suspects, but it does hold people's interest. What is the building, now on the National Register of Historic Places, used for now?

4. South of U.S. 36 East, Danville. The 1906 railroad bridge and the adjacent 1887 Baltimore Through Truss iron bridge are more commonly known as the "_________ _________". Bonus: Though the road is marked Shady Lane, it is more commonly known as "_________ _________ Road."

5. Washington Street, one block south of the Courthouse Square. The former Hendricks County Jail and sheriff's residence was built in 1868 and used until 1974. It is built in the Second Empire style. What is its current use?

6. Main Street Historic District, Danville. For many years, this 1890-vintage Queen Anne house, now named Bella Dawn Inn, was painted a golden color and known as Marigold Manor. What color is it now?

7. Center Valley. The area just north of I-70 and Ind. 39 has little left to mark this community, other than a cemetery along County Road 900 South, and the old schoolhouse just north of I-70 at County Road 1000 South. The building has been used as a home and business. How many porch roofs does it have?

8. Quaker Meetinghouse. In Plainfield, from Center Street and U.S. 40, go south on Center and then west on County Road 600 South. Organized by the Quaker Friends, this meetinghouse was built in 1870. Men and women were separated in worship by a wall in the center. What is the name of this meetinghouse?

9. Fairfield Friends Golf Course. This building in the Friendswood area of county roads 1050 East and 700 South was once a school. There are three pieces of information on this building. What is the school number, located on the front wall? What is the marking on the left wall? What is the date on the right wall?

10. Fairfield Friends Meetinghouse and Cemetery. The northwest corner contains the oldest part of the cemetery, which is along County Road 1050 East. There are four headstones, each with a dove. These headstones belong to Ash; his first wife, Sarah; second wife, Martha; and son, Francis. What is their last name?

in the repairs.

The money was to be paid in installments as needed. So when less than $100,000 had been spent by April, federal officials notified Indiana that no further payments would be made. Buyer, Lugar and others argued that much of the money hadn't been spent in winter when construction was slowed by bad weather.

In a May 12 letter released by Lugar, Labor Assistant Secretary Emily Stover DeRocco confirms an agreement to restore funding, but at a lower level of $550,000. Because $250,000 has already been paid to the state, another $300,000 will be paid.

Indiana's Department of Workforce Development will pay claims submitted by the counties and receive reimbursement from the federal grant.

Martinsville's Long Term Recovery Committee used the federal funding to hire at least 10 people. Some were construction workers making structural repairs at the Morgan County Fairgrounds, Martinsville High School and other places hit by the twister.

Others hired with the grant funds included case workers who worked with people suffering because their homes were destroyed, but they still don't know how to pay for repairs.

Sexton said the workers are being rehired and more will be added.

"I'm delirious with joy," he said. "It means we'll be able to continue to help people, and they will know we're in this for the long haul."

HIGH WATER RESCUE

Gary Moore / The Star

Morgan County Sheriff's Lt. Dan Reed (pictured) and Brown Township firefighter Gary Grindean rescued two teenage girls whose craft capsized on swollen White River near Waverly on Monday. A 15-year-old girl swam to shore, and rescuers pulled a 13-year-old to safety after finding her caught in tree limbs.

Tornado funds are restored

Portion of federal money to be returned to fund repairs, jobs

By Bruce C. Smith
bruce.smith@indystar.com

MORGAN COUNTY

U.S. Sen. Richard G. Lugar, R-Ind., and U.S. Rep. Steve Buyer, R-Ind., confirmed Tuesday that the Department of Labor has responded to their concerns by reaching an agreement with state officials to resume the funding.

"What excites me the most is to see that the needs of the people in Morgan County can be met, and I'm thrilled at the way our representatives have gone to bat for us," said Jeff Sexton, pastor of First Baptist Church and chairman of Martinsville's Long Term Recovery Committee.

Buyer called it "one of those cases when government makes a mistake and should be willing to admit it.

"If government makes a mistake, don't force the people who were victimized by the tornado to be further victimized," said Buyer, the Republican whose 4th District includes Morgan County and much of west central Indiana.

The agreement restoring the grant funds particularly targets Marion, Morgan and the Madison-Grant county areas that were among the hardest hit.

After the Sept. 20 tornado ripped a near-record-long path of destruction of more than 100 miles from southwestern Indiana to the northeast, the Labor Department agreed to provide $750,000 to help hire workers displaced by the storm and to aid

Pioneers dedicated to improvement

■ Team battled back from 3-8 start to bring record nearly even facing crucial stretch.

By Jeff Riley
Star correspondent

The Mooresville High School baseball program is reaching a turning point after clawing its way back to respectability.

Unified: The Mooresville High School baseball team, in a recent show of unity, started the season off dismally but has rallied to improve its record to 9-10. Tonight, the Pioneers begin a stretch of games that will be crucial in achieving their goal of a winning season.

Joe Vitti / The Star

MOORESVILLE

The Pioneers took a 9-10 record (2-2 in the Mid-State Conference) into Tuesday's game at Franklin.

"These kids know that the next three weeks of the season are extremely, extremely important," said second-year coach Eric McGaha.

"We have nine games left, and they know they have to play well in the majority of those games for them to have a winning season, and a winning season is exactly what they want."

The Pioneers are putting their dismal past behind through a hard-nosed approach and the encouragement of the enthusiastic McGaha.

A talented corps of underclassmen has helped Mooresville overcome a 3-8 start.

"When we were 3-8 they could have packed it in, but they didn't," McGaha said. "If you would have told me that three weeks later they'd be 9-10, I'm not sure I would have believed you.

"They've worked awfully hard to get their record back to where it needs to be, but their work isn't done yet."

Starting tonight, the Pioneers kick off a grueling stretch that includes four games this week then games on four consecutive days next week.

The Pioneers have a balanced lineup and plenty of young talent.

Prior to Tuesday's game, senior outfielder Kyle Thorp led the team with a .360 batting average and 11 runs batted in. Junior third baseman Bryan Peterson was hitting .333, and junior outfielder/pitcher Austin Smith, the team's cleanup hitter, was hitting .326 with 10 RBIs.

Senior catcher Kyle Davis (.302) and sophomore shortstop/pitcher Leland Kinnett (.300) also provide offensive support. Kinnett is among a talented group of sophomores that includes outfielder Kyle Mossbrucker, first baseman Greg Preston and second baseman J.D. Gilmer.

The team's ace is junior right-hander Chris Daugherty, who was 3-1 with a 1.54 earned-run average and 25 strikeouts in 25⅓ innings.

Junior second baseman Jacob Tri, senior first baseman Adam Pruitt and junior pitcher Austin Smith provide depth.

"We're a young club, and young teams are always so up and down mentally," McGaha said.

> "When we were 3-8 they could have packed it in, but they didn't."
> Eric McGaha, Mooresville coach

"We have some inexperienced kids at key positions, so we've had some growing pains, but we've also seen them blossom, and that's fun."

It all seems like so much fun to McGaha, 31, a spirited second-year head coach whose team already has nearly matched the win total of last year's club (10-14).

"I've had great support from parents, the athletic department, my assistants and the administration," McGaha said. "There's no question we're headed in the right direction.

"We want to have a winning season and make some noise in the sectional, and now's the time to get busy."

My hero is my Papaw. He always helped me with my troubles. He always had time to have fun. He was in the Army. He was always there for me.

I Celebrate Myself

I celebrate myself for helping other people.

I would like to make people happy.
I could mow their lawn, walk their dog, clean their house, and wash their car.

This would make them happy.

I would also like to help people who don't have clothes, I would buy them new clothes and take them to them.

This would make them happy.

I would also like to help people who don't have a home. I could help build their home.

This would make them happy.

This is how I would like to celebrate myself.

Panel: Schools mired in red tape

■ State-sponsored group recommends consolidation, simpler budgeting.

By Staci Hupp
staci.hupp@indystar.com

Poorly planned spending and a tangle of red tape have hampered efforts by Indiana schools to turn out students with the skills to improve the state's economy and quality of life.

A state panel that spent a year reviewing the efficiency of Hoosier schools has called for sweeping reforms that would weaken the negotiating power of teachers unions, consolidate some of the state's 300-plus school districts, simplify the formula used to pay for schools and allow school leaders to decide how to spend their money.

The group also called for moving the Indiana Statewide Testing for Educational Progress-Plus exams from the fall to the spring.

By Vic Ryckaert
vic.ryckaert@indystar.com

A former security officer for the Hoosier Lottery is accused of conspiring with two other men to rig a $1 million scratch-off game.

Prosecutors say William C. Foreman told two men that a winning ticket in the "$2,000,000 Bonus Spectacular" game had been sent to a store in Cross Plains, Ind.

One of those men then went to that store and bought its entire supply of the game's $20 tickets — about $700 worth, according to court documents.

Foreman, 59, was arrested Monday and charged with disclosing confidential lottery information, a Class A felony carrying a prison term of up to 50 years.

Daniel Foltz, 31, and Chad Adkins, 28, also were arrested Monday. They face preliminary charges of Class D felony theft, with a possible prison term of up to three years.

Foreman, the secretary for the Indiana State Fraternal Order of Police, also is charged with Class C felony theft, carrying a maximum prison term of eight years.

■ Move the Indiana Statewide Testing for Educational Progress-Plus to the spring, as it was until 1996. Critics of fall standardized testing say that timing is disruptive because teachers scramble to review what students learned the year before.

■ Reward school efficiency and redirect savings to school programs or return them to taxpayers.

Ground offensive progresses against Fallujah stronghold

By Jim Krane

NEAR FALLUJAH, Iraq — U.S. troops backed by thunderous air and artillery barrages launched a ground offensive Monday to seize key insurgent strongholds inside Fallujah, the city that became Iraq's major sanctuary for Islamic extremists who fought Marines to a standstill in April.

Two Marines were killed when their bulldozer flipped over into the Euphrates River near Fallujah, and a military spokesman estimated 42 insurgents were killed across the city in bombardments and skirmishes before the main assault began.

Hours after fighting began, U.S. tanks and Humvees from the 1st Infantry Division entered the northeastern Askari district, the first ground assault on an insurgent bastion.

In the northwestern area of the city, U.S. troops advanced slowly after dusk on the Jolan neighborhood, a warren of alleyways where Sunni mili-

State aims to set up $15 million loan for ATA

■ Officials say sale-leaseback agreements will help save jobs in Indy; deal must be approved.

By Norm Heikens
norm.heikens@indystar.com

State officials agreed Monday to lend ATA Airlines $15.5 million to help keep the struggling carrier alive and preserve hundreds of jobs here and several flights to Indiana cities.

The agreement, in which the state would buy ATA equipment and the airline would then lease it back, is believed to be only the third government bailout offered in state history.

The financial arrangements would help ATA pay its employees and other operating costs until it can sell gates at Chicago Midway Airport, possibly by next month, and repay the loan.

ATA sought the state's help after traditional lenders turned it down or offered expensive terms untenable to the airline.

Without the funds, "liquidation is a distinct possibility," ATA bankruptcy attorney Jim Carr told Transportation Finance Authority members before their unanimous vote Monday afternoon.

State officials say the sale-leaseback agreements would help save jobs in Indianapolis, where ATA has its headquarters and one of its largest hubs, and support ATA flights to South Bend and Fort Wayne.

"It's in our best interest from an economic development perspective," said Transportation Finance Authority Chairman Mark S. Moore.

The deal still must be approved by the Indianapolis International Airport Authority's board of directors and the bankruptcy judge

Ashes to water: Workers with Eternal Reefs stopped and paid their respects to family members who watched from a boat (not pictured), as their loved ones' artificial reefs were lowered into the Gulf of Mexico off the coast of Sarasota, Fla., last month.

New wave burials: cremation reefs

OF HUMAN INTEREST

By Coralie Carlson
Associated Press

ON THE GULF OF MEXICO — Twelve-year-old Justin Pierce loved to fish and snorkel before he died in an accident on an all-terrain vehicle. Now his parents think they've found a way for their son to remain close to the water he loved.

They mixed his ashes with cement to form a hollow concrete ball that was placed in the shallow water off Sarasota, Fla., in late October. The ball helps restore a critical underwater habitat while becoming a living memorial with coral and fish.

"In a way, he's still alive," said Justin's mother, Lorna.

The growing trend of alternative funeral services has led to innovative ways of memorializing the dead, from turning cremated remains into reefs and fireworks, shooting them into space, turning them into diamonds or enclosing them in keepsake jewelry.

"What is unappetizing to one person is very much appealing to another," said Jack Springer, executive director of the Chicago-based North American Cremation Association.

The trend of personalizing funeral services is driven, in part, by an increase in cremation. According to Springer, about 687,000 people were cremated in 2003, and that number is expected to increase by about 40 percent by 2025.

"It is expanding the options that are available to families," said Paul Dixon, executive director of the Funeral Ethics Association. "I do think that it appeals to a certain segment of society, but I don't know that it's for everyone."

Roberta Morris, 77, a retiree in Venice, Fla., had planned to spread her husband's ashes at sea but then she learned about the cremation reefs.

"It's not death," she said. "It's just the most romantic thing to do with your spouse."

Her husband, Robert, was an avid fisherman until 15 years ago, when he was disabled with a brain disorder. "He would have loved this," his wife said.

The concrete reefs began as an ecological project, not a funeral service, said founder Don Brawley. He and some friends who are amateur snorkelers developed the reef balls to help restore the underwater habitat. Now more than 500,000 reef balls rest on the ocean floor off 48 countries.

In 1998, Brawley's father-in-law, Carleton Palmer, said he'd like to be cremated and have his remains mixed in one of the reef balls.

"He said he'd rather spend eternity down there with all that life going on than stuck in a field with a bunch of dead people," Brawley said. Months later, Palmer died of cancer, and Brawley complied with his wishes, making the first Eternal Reef.

As Brawley told friends about his father-in-law's unique resting place, others voiced interest in doing the same. Now, the remains of snorkelers, anglers, environmentalists, and a Navy diver with his dog are entombed in the reefs.

With more than 100 of the underwater memorials, Sarasota has become the largest site for Eternal Reefs. Another 100 reefs are scattered along the Gulf of Mexico and up the East Coast.

> "He said he'd rather spend eternity down there with all that life going on than stuck in a field with . . . dead people."
> Don Brawley, founder of Eternal Reefs, about his father-in-law

Brawley said the reefs, which start at about $1,000 and are expected to last 500 years, help families work through their grief and restore the coastal habitat.

Families who choose a reef memorial begin by coming to the Sarasota plant to mix their loved ones' remains in concrete and pour it into a mold.

Barbara Jack, 45, of Valley Forge, Pa., said knowing that other families were making reefs was "an unexpected comfort." Her 54-year-old husband, Lloyd, died while waiting for a lung transplant. He had requested that his remains be put in an Eternal Reef, a fitting resting place for the owner of a concrete business who loved to dive in the Caribbean.

Justin Pierce's father, Matthew, sobbed when his son's reef dipped below the water. He and his wife plan to get their scuba diving certification so they can visit Justin's reef and watch it grow.

"Even if we're just standing on the shore, looking at the sunset," Lorna Pierce said, "we know he's out there."

Not only blue, but richer

Some quick advice for the blue states: Take the money and run.

Yes, yes, President Bush will continue irritating you on the environment, health care and a thousand other big and small issues. But he did do one nice thing for the states that preferred John Kerry: He made them richer. And he wants to make them richer still. The enduring theme of Bush tax policy has been to ease the burden on the well-to-do. The big incomes cluster in blue America: the West Coast, Northeast and upper Great Lakes regions. That's where the tax cuts have spread most of their fairy dust.

The talk now is of a flat tax or a national sales tax. Either one would take additional pressure off the income tax. That means the middle class would carry more of the load.

When the tax burden moves down the income scale, it moves away from the Atlantic Ocean and the Pacific Ocean. That blue-state voters haven't figured this out is a source of wonderment to people like E.J. McMahon, a senior fellow at the conservative Manhattan Institute.

"The attitude of the blue states is 'Take our money, please,' " he said.

Here's the score: For decades, the federal government has been milking the blue states and sending their tax dollars to the red ones — the poor Southern, Plains and Mountain states that vote Republican.

The argument that rich parts of the country should help the poor ones is a compelling one. But it also ignores the enormously higher costs of living along the coasts. All else being equal, the Feds tax $80,000 incomes the same, whether they are earned in Oklahoma City or Boston. But someone who makes $80,000 in Oklahoma City would need $167,000 in Beantown.

"In the blue states, you have a six-figure middle class," McMahon points out. A breadwinner who brings home $170,000 is not king in his posh New Jersey suburb. "But in the interior, that's like the bank president." So there's a certain social justice in tax cuts that bring per-capita savings of $1,957 to New Jersey but only $842 to Oklahoma.

And what are the blue states going to do with the money? The possibilities are endless. They can encourage their richest residents to spend their federal tax cuts at home. They can divert some of the savings to state coffers for local projects. New York, New Jersey and Connecticut have all recently raised their state income taxes. The last two openly sold the tax hikes as a mere rerouting of dollars no longer going to Washington.

California seems poised to profit from both Bush's tax cuts and his moral disapproval of embryonic stem cell research. We speak of California's vote to spend $300 million a year on this promising field.

This investment will make California the stem cell champ of the nation, if not the world. And economists say the program could bring the state a bonanza in jobs and patent royalties worth hundreds of millions.

No one has made a connection between the Bush tax cuts and the research, but someone should. The tax cuts have made California $51 billion richer. So Californians can think of the $3 billion they will spend over the next 10 years as found money.

A more liberal regime in Washington would have supported embryonic stem cell research. It would have vacuumed up tax dollars from rich blue states like California and spread them around the country.

Opportunity knocks for Blue America. Under the Bush strategy, the red states get lectures on gay marriage and the blue states get the money. Blue America, which would you rather have?

Secretary of state pleased with election

As Indiana's chief election official, I was heartened to see more than 2.4 million Hoosier voters, a record number, go to the polls on Nov. 2. There were some small hiccups, but the majority of the state reported a smooth day of voting. No election since this nation's first has been perfect, but it is still a goal for which we strive, and we get closer to it every year.

My office produced poll worker training videos to help educate volunteers about the changes brought by the 2002 Help America Vote Act, especially new voting equipment and provisional ballots. We also provided training sessions for counties that requested them.

I want to thank the tens of thousands of Hoosiers who served as poll workers Tuesday. We could not accomplish the difficult task of putting on an election without this small army. Theirs is not an easy job, and I applaud those who worked from dawn until long past dusk to ensure that their neighbors could choose their leaders.

Local officials took the time to talk about security preparations and what they would do in the event a polling place needed to be relocated because of natural disaster or other unforeseen event.

I want to recognize all Hoosiers who went to the polls or voted by absentee ballot. I especially want to thank those who exercised patience waiting in lines for up to three hours. Indiana voters should feel a sense of accomplishment. Because of you, Indiana was a model for the nation.

Thanks to Sadler for well-run election

Marion County Clerk Doris Anne Sadler is due our thanks and recognition for a job well done in Tuesday's general election, especially in view of record voter turnout. As the subject of frequent criticism over the past year concerning election and voting machine issues, Sadler should be especially congratulated for a nearly flawless performance in a job whose toils and obligations are seldom recognized. A glance at the picture on page B4 of The Star issue of Nov. 3 speaks volumes to anyone familiar with the degree of effort involved.

High marks for district's mock election

Kudos to Dr. Nate Jones and Pike Township Schools for holding a mock election throughout the school district. My four children were fully engaged in the election process due to the fact that they all voted at their schools. She is fully prepared and ready to become an active voter when she turns 18 in December 2005.

It's time to get over the DST issue

Do you really think the people who live near Cincinnati or Louisville want to observe Chicago time? Or that those who live in northeastern Indiana want to observe the same time as Evansville? Indiana is unique in that we are located on a time border. It isn't going to matter if we change from status quo to daylight-saving time; people will forever say, "What time is it in Indiana?"

Instead of spending so much time and money on change, spend the same on a marketing campaign to tell the world that Indiana observes New York time in the winter months and Chicago time in the summer months. The time thing isn't broken, so get over it.

Terry Lynch
Seymour

Get Indiana on the same track as everybody else

I want to applaud Mitch Daniels for going after the daylight-saving time issue. I grew up in Chicago, and I don't understand what the big deal is about changing clocks twice a year. I would much rather do that than try to remember when my favorite cable TV show is on right after the clocks change.

I would expect the effect on businesses to be significant as well, since Hoosiers deal with out-of-state businesses all the time. DST may be an antiquated system, but it's a lot easier to change one state than it is to change 47. I hope that Mitch Daniels is able to get Indiana on the same track as everybody else.

Dan McQuade
Indianapolis

Too confusing to have different times

As a lifelong Hoosier and an Indianapolis resident for the last 34 years, I strongly support the initiative to change Indiana to daylight-saving time.

My wife and I grew up in Lake County and were used to being on Central time year round. It is very confusing for everyone else when we are on Central time during the summer and Eastern time during the winter. I support the change to DST, especially if we are placed in the Central time zone. Indianapolis and Indiana are much closer geographically to Chicago than to New York City.

Bruce D. Ranger
Indianapolis

Backward Hoosiers can't set VCR clocks

Regarding daylight-saving time: The unwillingness of Hoosiers to go to the effort to change their VCR clocks speaks only of the head-in-the sand mentality that has kept Indiana the kind of place smart young people want to leave. The movement of creative and intellectual people from Indiana to the coasts is a direct result of Hoosiers who refuse to truly join the rest of our country. Can't be bothered to change your VCR clock? Then you can't be bothered to allow your family and neighbors to live in a post-1950s society.

Lara Coutinho
Indianapolis

Daniels right on with DST issue

Gov.-elect Mitch Daniels is picking the right issue first when it comes to Indiana joining the rest of the country in observance of daylight-saving time. Any economics student can tell you that this is a handicap for Hoosier businesses. I hope he can effectively get this message across.

Randy Greene
Bedford

A vote for change to Central time zone

I vote for Central time. I hate changing clocks twice a year, but we do need to join the United States. The sun comes up in New York much earlier than it does in Indiana; we need to be on Chicago time.

Jean Wise
Markleville

Here's a bigger issue than time change

The governor-elect seems more worried about what time it is in Indiana than what he should be worried about — the fact that I have to work two jobs to be able to afford to support my family.

Blake Thornsbrough
Indianapolis

Daniels will bring state into 21st century

After moving to Indiana a year ago, I missed a critical appointment in the southern part of the state because I was not aware that some counties had different time zones during summer months.

Thank heavens Mitch Daniels will bring some clarity to this issue with the agenda to bring Indiana into the 21st century with the rest of the country regarding daylight-saving time.

T.S. Freeman
Pittsboro

No need to change to different time

I don't see a need to change: Daylight-saving time was created to maximize the number of daylight hours and to conserve energy. We are lucky enough to have that maximum without having to change our clocks.

Why should we change to be in sync with New York or Chicago; we're a great state on our own merit with plenty to offer individuals and companies. We should use this as a selling point.

Voter defends re-election of Carson

As an African American, I am dismayed by Aaron Harmon's letter to the editor (Nov. 5). To say blacks vote for Rep. Julia Carson because she, too, is black is flat-out racist. If you use that logic then Senate candidate Marvin Scott would have demolished Sen. Evan Bayh. People like myself who vote for Carson do so not because she is black but because she cares about the district and represents our views.

Ashes to water: Workers with Eternal Reefs stopped and paid their respects to family members who watched from a boat (not pictured), as their loved ones' artificial reefs were lowered into the Gulf of Mexico off the coast of Sarasota, Fla., last month.

New wave burials: cremation reefs

By Coralie Carlson
Associated Press

ON THE GULF OF MEXICO — Twelve-year-old Justin Pierce loved to fish and snorkel before he died in an accident on an all-terrain vehicle. Now his parents think they've found a way for their son to remain close to the water he loved.

They mixed his ashes with cement to form a hollow concrete ball that was placed in the shallow water off Sarasota, Fla., in late October. The ball helps restore a critical underwater habitat while becoming a living memorial with coral and fish.

"In a way, he's still alive," said Justin's mother, Lorna.

The growing trend of alternative funeral services has led to innovative ways of memorializing the dead, from turning cremated remains into reefs and fireworks, shooting them into space, turning them into diamonds or enclosing them in keepsake jewelry.

"What is unappetizing to one person is very much appealing to another," said Jack Springer, executive director of the Chicago-based North American Cremation Association.

The trend of personalizing funeral services is driven, in part, by an increase in cremation. According to Springer, about 687,000 people were cremated in 2003, and that number is expected to increase by about 40 percent by 2025.

"It is expanding the options that are available to families," said Paul Dixon, executive director of the Funeral Ethics Association. "I do think that it appeals to a certain segment of society, but I don't know that it's for everyone."

Roberta Morris, 77, a retiree in Venice, Fla., had planned to spread her husband's ashes at sea but then she learned about the cremation reefs.

"It's not death," she said. "It's just the most romantic thing to do with your spouse."

Her husband, Robert, was an avid fisherman until 15 years ago, when he was disabled with a brain disorder. "He would have loved this," his wife said.

The concrete reefs began as an ecological project, not a funeral service, said founder Don Brawley. He and some friends who are amateur snorkelers developed the reef balls to help restore the underwater habitat. Now more than 500,000 reef balls rest on the ocean floor off 48 countries.

In 1998, Brawley's father-in-law, Carleton Palmer, said he'd like to be cremated and have his remains mixed in one of the reef balls.

"He said he'd rather spend eternity down there with all that life going on than stuck in a field with a bunch of dead people," Brawley said. Months later, Palmer died of cancer, and Brawley complied with his wishes, making the first Eternal Reef.

As Brawley told friends about his father-in-law's unique resting place, others voiced interest in doing the same. Now, the remains of snorkelers, anglers, environmentalists, and a Navy diver with his dog are entombed in the reefs.

With more than 100 of the underwater memorials, Sarasota has become the largest site for Eternal Reefs. Another 100 reefs are scattered along the Gulf of Mexico and up the East Coast.

> "He said he'd rather spend eternity down there with all that life going on than stuck in a field with . . . dead people."
> Don Brawley, founder of Eternal Reefs, about his father-in-law

Brawley said the reefs, which start at about $1,000 and are expected to last 500 years, help families work through their grief and restore the coastal habitat.

Families who choose a reef memorial begin by coming to the Sarasota plant to mix their loved ones' remains in concrete and pour it into a mold.

Barbara Jack, 45, of Valley Forge, Pa., said knowing that other families were making reefs was "an unexpected comfort." Her 54-year-old husband, Lloyd, died while waiting for a lung transplant. He had requested that his remains be put in an Eternal Reef, a fitting resting place for the owner of a concrete business who loved to dive in the Caribbean.

Justin Pierce's father, Matthew, sobbed when his son's reef dipped below the water. He and his wife plan to get their scuba diving certification so they can visit Justin's reef and watch it grow.

"Even if we're just standing on the shore, looking at the sunset," Lorna Pierce said, "we know he's out there."

Not only blue, but richer

Some quick advice for the blue states: Take the money and run.

Yes, yes, President Bush will continue irritating you on the environment, health care and a thousand other big and small issues. But he did do one nice thing for the states that preferred John Kerry: He made them richer. And he wants to make them richer still. The enduring theme of Bush tax policy has been to ease the burden on the well-to-do. The big incomes cluster in blue America: the West Coast, Northeast and upper Great Lakes regions. That's where the tax cuts have spread most of their fairy dust.

The talk now is of a flat tax or a national sales tax. Either one would take additional pressure off the income tax. That means the middle class would carry more of the load.

When the tax burden moves down the income scale, it moves away from the Atlantic Ocean and the Pacific Ocean. That blue-state voters haven't figured this out is a source of wonderment to people like E.J. McMahon, a senior fellow at the conservative Manhattan Institute.

"The attitude of the blue states is 'Take our money, please,' " he said.

Here's the score: For decades, the federal government has been milking the blue states and sending their tax dollars to the red ones — the poor Southern, Plains and Mountain states that vote Republican.

The argument that rich parts of the country should help the poor ones is a compelling one. But it also ignores the enormously higher costs of living along the coasts. All else being equal, the Feds tax $80,000 incomes the same, whether they are earned in Oklahoma City or Boston. But someone who makes $80,000 in Oklahoma City would need $167,000 in Beantown.

"In the blue states, you have a six-figure middle class," McMahon points out. A breadwinner who brings home $170,000 is not king in his posh New Jersey suburb. "But in the interior, that's like the bank president." So there's a certain social justice in tax cuts that bring per-capita savings of $1,957 to New Jersey but only $842 to Oklahoma.

And what are the blue states going to do with the money? The possibilities are endless. They can encourage their richest residents to spend their federal tax cuts at home. They can divert some of the savings to state coffers for local projects. New York, New Jersey and Connecticut have all recently raised their state income taxes. The last two openly sold the tax hikes as a mere rerouting of dollars no longer going to Washington.

California seems poised to profit from both Bush's tax cuts and his moral disapproval of embryonic stem cell research. We speak of California's vote to spend $300 million a year on this promising field.

This investment will make California the stem cell champ of the nation, if not the world. And economists say the program could bring the state a bonanza in jobs and patent royalties worth hundreds of millions.

No one has made a connection between the Bush tax cuts and the research, but someone should. The tax cuts have made California $51 billion richer. So Californians can think of the $3 billion they will spend over the next 10 years as found money.

A more liberal regime in Washington would have supported embryonic stem cell research. It would have vacuumed up tax dollars from rich blue states like California and spread them around the country.

Opportunity knocks for Blue America. Under the Bush strategy, the red states get lectures on gay marriage and the blue states get the money. Blue America, which would you rather have?

Secretary of state pleased with election

As Indiana's chief election official, I was heartened to see more than 2.4 million Hoosier voters, a record number, go to the polls on Nov. 2. There were some small hiccups, but the majority of the state reported a smooth day of voting. No election since this nation's first has been perfect, but it is still a goal for which we strive, and we get closer to it every year.

My office produced poll worker training videos to help educate volunteers about the changes brought by the 2002 Help America Vote Act, especially new voting equipment and provisional ballots. We also provided training sessions for counties that requested them.

I want to thank the tens of thousands of Hoosiers who served as poll workers Tuesday. We could not accomplish the difficult task of putting on an election without this small army. Theirs is not an easy job, and I applaud those who worked from dawn until long past dusk to ensure that their neighbors could choose their leaders.

Local officials took the time to talk about security preparations and what they would do in the event a polling place needed to be relocated because of natural disaster or other unforeseen event.

I want to recognize all Hoosiers who went to the polls or voted by absentee ballot. I especially want to thank those who exercised patience waiting in lines for up to three hours. Indiana voters should feel a sense of accomplishment. Because of you, Indiana was a model for the nation.

Thanks to Sadler for well-run election

Marion County Clerk Doris Anne Sadler is due our thanks and recognition for a job well done in Tuesday's general election, especially in view of record voter turnout. As the subject of frequent criticism over the past year concerning election and voting machine issues, Sadler should be especially congratulated for a nearly flawless performance in a job whose toils and obligations are seldom recognized. Kudos to Dr. Nate Jones and Pike Township Schools for holding a mock election throughout the school district. My four children were fully engaged in the election process due to the fact that they all voted at their schools. It's time to get over the DST issue

Do you really think the people who live near Cincinnati or Louisville want to observe Chicago time? Or that those who live in northeastern Indiana want to observe the same time as Evansville? Indiana is unique in that we are located on a time border. It isn't going to matter if we change from status quo to daylight-saving time; people will forever say, "What time is it in Indiana?"

Instead of spending so much time and money on change, spend the same on a marketing campaign to tell the world that Indiana observes New York time in the winter months and Chicago time in the summer months. The time thing isn't broken, so get over it.

Terry Lynch
Seymour

Get Indiana on the same track as everybody else

I want to applaud Mitch Daniels for going after the daylight-saving time issue. I grew up in Chicago, and I don't understand what the big deal is about changing clocks twice a year. I would much rather do that than try to remember when my favorite cable TV show is on right after the clocks change.

I would expect the effect on businesses to be significant as well, since Hoosiers deal with out-of-state businesses all the time. DST may be an antiquated system, but it's a lot easier to change one state than it is to change 47. I hope that Mitch Daniels is able to get Indiana on the same track as everybody else.

Dan McQuade
Indianapolis

Too confusing to have different times

As a lifelong Hoosier and an Indianapolis resident for the last 34 years, I strongly support the initiative to change Indiana to daylight-saving time.

My wife and I grew up in Lake County and were used to being on Central time year round. It is very confusing for everyone else when we are on Central time during the summer and Eastern time during the winter. I support the change to DST, especially if we are placed in the Central time zone. Indianapolis and Indiana are much closer geographically to Chicago than to New York City.

Bruce D. Ranger
Indianapolis

Backward Hoosiers can't set VCR clocks

Regarding daylight-saving time: The unwillingness of Hoosiers to go to the effort to change their VCR clocks speaks only of the head-in-the sand mentality that has kept Indiana the kind of place smart young people want to leave. The movement of creative and intellectual people from Indiana to the coasts is a direct result of Hoosiers who refuse to truly join the rest of our country. Can't be bothered to change your VCR clock? Then you can't be bothered to allow your family and neighbors to live in a post-1950s society.

Lara Coutinho
Indianapolis

Daniels right on with DST issue

Gov.-elect Mitch Daniels is picking the right issue first when it comes to Indiana joining the rest of the country in observance of daylight-saving time. Any economics student can tell you that this is a handicap for Hoosier businesses. I hope he can effectively get this message across.

Randy Greene
Bedford

A vote for change to Central time zone

I vote for Central time. I hate changing clocks twice a year, but we do need to join the United States. The sun comes up in New York much earlier than it does in Indiana; we need to be on Chicago time.

Jean Wise
Markleville

Here's a bigger issue than time change

The governor-elect seems more worried about what time it is in Indiana than what he should be worried about — the fact that I have to work two jobs to be able to afford to support my family.

Blake Thornsbrough
Indianapolis

Daniels will bring state into 21st century

After moving to Indiana a year ago, I missed a critical appointment in the southern part of the state because I was not aware that some counties had different time zones during summer months.

Thank heavens Mitch Daniels will bring some clarity to this issue with the agenda to bring Indiana into the 21st century with the rest of the country regarding daylight-saving time.

T.S. Freeman
Pittsboro

No need to change to different time

I don't see a need to change: Daylight-saving time was created to maximize the number of daylight hours and to conserve energy. We are lucky enough to have that maximum without having to change our clocks.

Why should we change to be in sync with New York or Chicago; we're a great state on our own merit with plenty to offer individuals and companies. We should use this as a selling point.

Voter defends re-election of Carson

As an African American, I am dismayed by Aaron Harmon's letter to the editor (Nov. 5). To say blacks vote for Rep. Julia Carson because she, too, is black is flat-out racist. If you use that logic then Senate candidate Marvin Scott would have demolished Sen. Evan Bayh. People like myself who vote for Carson do so not because she is black but because she cares about the district and represents our views.

Ground offensive progresses against Fallujah stronghold

By Jim Krane
Associated Press

NEAR FALLUJAH, Iraq — U.S. troops backed by thunderous air and artillery barrages launched a ground offensive Monday to seize key insurgent strongholds inside Fallujah, the city that became Iraq's major sanctuary for Islamic extremists who fought Marines to a standstill in April.

Two Marines were killed when their bulldozer flipped over into the Euphrates River near Fallujah, and a military spokesman estimated 42 insurgents were killed across the city in bombardments and skirmishes before the main assault began.

Hours after fighting began, U.S. tanks and Humvees from the 1st Infantry Division entered the northeastern Askari district, the first ground assault on an insurgent bastion.

In the northwestern area of the city, U.S. troops advanced slowly after dusk on the Jolan neighborhood, a warren of alleyways where Sunni mili-

French forces faced by throngs loyal to Ivory Coast's leader

By Parfait Kouassi
Associated Press

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast — Thousands of government loyalists massed outside the home of Ivory Coast's president Monday, facing off against French armored vehicles in response to urgent appeals for a "human shield" around the hard-line leader.

French and Ivory Coast military leaders, appearing on state television, appealed for calm after three days of protests that the Red Cross said had wounded more than 500 people. Two hospitals reported five dead and 250 wounded in Monday's clashes.

The U.N. Security Council met to consider sanctions, and the African Union came out in support of French and U.N. intervention, isolating President Laurent Gbagbo.

Chaos erupted Saturday when Gbagbo's air force killed nine French peacekeepers and an American aid worker in an airstrike on Ivory Coast's rebel-held north. The government later called the bombing a mistake, which France rejected.

On Monday, French armored vehicles moved in around Gbagbo's home in Ivory Coast's commercial capital, Abidjan.

"Their presence here is scaring people. They're crying, and they think that President Gbagbo is going to be overthrown," presidential spokesman Desire Tagro said.

The French denied surrounding Gbagbo's house or intending to oust him, saying their forces were securing a temporary base at a hotel a few hundred yards away for about 1,300 foreigners who had taken refuge at a French military base.

"Everything should go back to normal," French mission commander Gen. Henri Poncet said on state TV, alongside Ivory Coast chief of army staff Gen. Matthias Doue. "It is absolutely not a matter of ousting President Laurent Gbagbo."

State radio and TV, however, delivered urgent calls for loyalists to gather at Gbagbo's house.

Thousands responded, chanting against the French: "The whites don't like the blacks, but we don't care!"

The crowd swarmed one foreigner caught up in their midst, kicking and beating him. "Kill him," young men shouted, before he was dragged into the crowd.

Six men, faces painted black, forced an Associated Press reporter from his taxi at gunpoint and commandeered the vehicle.

A standoff arose outside Abidjan, as several hundred loyalist youths stood on a main road, blocking a heavily armed 70-vehicle convoy of French reinforcements trying to enter the city.

France has more than 4,000 peacekeepers in Ivory Coast, helping a 6,000-man U.N. force uphold what had been a more than yearlong cease-fire in a civil war that broke out in September 2002.

Suha Arafat has accused top Palestinian officials of trying to usurp her husband's authority.

Palestinian leaders go to France to visit Arafat

Associated Press

CLAMART, France — Palestinian leaders rushed to Paris on Monday to check on the critically ill Yasser Arafat, but hospital officials said visiting rights were restricted — setting the stage for a dramatic showdown between the delegation and Arafat's wife.

Early Monday, Suha Arafat accused the leadership — including Ahmed Qureia and Mahmoud Abbas — of coming to the French capital with the sole intention of usurping her husband's role as head of the Palestinian Authority.

"They are trying to bury Abu Ammar alive," she shouted, using Arafat's nom de guerre, in a furious telephone call with Al-Jazeera television from Arafat's bedside in a hospital near Paris.

Palestinian Cabinet minister Salah Taamri said, "We are Yasser Arafat's family. We knew Yasser Arafat even before Mrs. Suha Arafat was born. We care for Yasser Arafat, and no one has the right to deny the truth from the Palestinian people."

Qureia, the prime minister, and Abbas, the PLO deputy chairman and a former prime minister, landed in France late Monday.

Suha Arafat, 41, seems to have aligned herself with hard-liners who apparently seek to take over the Palestinian leadership in a post-Arafat era. She is widely believed to have control of vast funds collected by the PLO.

Arafat, 75, was in intensive care Monday, and his condition had not changed, a hospital spokesman said.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Reagan shooter Hinckley seeks more freedom

Washington — A lawyer for John Hinckley Jr. told a federal judge Monday his client no longer is mentally ill and should be allowed longer unsupervised visits away from the mental hospital where he has lived since trying to assassinate President Ronald Reagan in 1981.

Attorney Barry Levine accused government lawyers of fear-mongering by opposing Hinckley's request on grounds he remains a danger to the community.

Hinckley wants a federal judge to allow him to take four-day, unsupervised visits every two weeks to his parents' home in Williamsburg, Va. Since late last year, Hinckley has been allowed shorter visits with his parents.

Jury selected in trial of admitted serial killer

Pontiac, Mich. — A murder trial got under way Monday for a man who confessed to 13 slayings in the early 1980s but received a sentence that will release him from prison in two years.

Coral Eugene Watts, 51, is charged with the murder of a 14th woman, Helen Dutcher, whose body was found in an alley in 1979. If convicted, Watts faces a mandatory life sentence without the possibility of parole.

A jury was selected Monday and opening statements were to begin today in the trial.

Dean thinking about bid to lead Democratic Party

Montpelier, Vt. — Former presidential candidate Howard Dean is considering a bid to become chairman of the national Democratic Party.

"He told me he was thinking about it," Steve Grossman, himself a former chairman of the Democratic National Committee, said Monday.

Dean, who was in Albany, N.Y., Monday night to give a speech, said he hasn't decided about the top party job, noting he'd received thousands of e-mails urging him to try for it. He said he's still uncertain about his future.

During his Albany speech, Dean said President Bush's reelection was not a mandate to ignore the views of those who voted against him.

"We're not retreating. We're not giving up," Dean told an audience of nearly 1,000. "We're not going to stop fighting because we're going to stand up for ordinary Americans even though the president doesn't."

New Jersey governor makes farewell speech

Trenton, N.J. — A contrite Gov. James E. McGreevey delivered a farewell address Monday in which he said he does not apologize "for being a gay American but rather for having let personal feelings impact my decision-making."

McGreevey used the speech to list several accomplishments of his administration, but the Democrat also expounded on the soul-searching that has occupied his time since making his stunning, nationally televised resignation announcement three months ago with his wife and parents by his side.

McGreevey is to step down on Monday.

In other news:

■ Washington — Andrew Card will remain as the White House chief of staff, President Bush's spokesman Scott McClellan said Monday.

■ Ivel, Ky. — A gas line exploded Monday in rural Kentucky, burning four houses and injuring nine people.

■ Atlanta — A trial opened Monday over whether a warning sticker in suburban Atlanta biology textbooks that says evolution is "a theory, not a fact" violates the separation of church and state by promoting religion.

■ Eindhoven, The Netherlands — A bomb damaged a Muslim elementary school before dawn on Monday, in what the authorities say they believe was intended as an act of revenge for the killing of a Dutch filmmaker last week.

“It seemed that way to me, too,” Slavens said about the slow-melting time. “It really started to slow down when we got inside of 10 minutes.”

In those final minutes, Calvert had two saves and made numerous plays on the ball, and the game was iced, thanks in part to a late Bulldog possession with the fans pounding their feet and screaming in approval as the last seconds ticked off.

“I’m so proud of these kids,” Slavens said as the excited Bulldogs ran to the stands to soak in the adulation. “Every kid bought in to what we wanted to do and it worked really well.”

After going home to rest for a while, Brownsburg came back as darkness fell, and it was quickly

BHS School Song
(Illinois Loyalty)

We're loyal to you, BHS
We're purple and white, BHS
We'll back you to stand
'Against the best in the land,
For we know you can stand BHS
RAH! RAH!
Go smash that blockage, BHS
Go crashing ahead, BHS
Our team is our fame protector
On boys, for we expect a
Victory from you, BHS
RAH! RAH!
Fling out that dear old flag of purple and white.
Lead on, you sons and daughters fighting for right,
Like men of old, on giants
Stressing reliance,
Shouting defiance,
OSKE WOW WOW
Amid the broad green fields that nourish our land
For honest labor and for learning we stand,
And unto you we pledge our hearts and hands,
Dear Brownsburg High School
We're for you!!!

BHS School Song
(Illinois Loyalty)

We’re loyal to you, BHS
We’re purple and white, BHS
We’ll back you to stand
‘Against the best in the land,
For we know you can stand BHS
RAH! RAH!
Go smash that blockage, BHS
Go crashing ahead, BHS
Our team is our fame protector
On boys, for we expect a
Victory from you, BHS
RAH! RAH!
Fling out that dear old flag of purple and white.
Lead on, you sons and daughters fighting for right,
Like men of old, on giants
Stressing reliance,
Shouting defiance,
OSKE WOW WOW
Amid the broad green fields that nourish our land
For honest labor and for learning we stand,
And unto you we pledge our hearts and hands,
Dear Brownsburg High School
We’re for you!!!

A Look at Today's Lineups

Here is a look at the talented football teams taking the field in today's Marsh Hoosier Classic:

Martinsville VS. Bloomington South

While trying to defeat Bloomington South on the football field the last three years, the Martinsville Artesians have come up dry. Last year, for example, the Panthers beat the Artesians, 28-6.

This season Bloomington South is a young team with underclassmen who did not see much action last year (8-3) because of a large talented senior class. Coach Drew Wood is "upbeat" about this team's prospects because of the potential in the junior and sophomore players.

"The seniors have taken on the role of leaders very well and helped to make this team one with great chemistry," he said.

South players to watch include explosive tailback Jordan Hogue, wide receiver/defensive back Ben Whitlatch and running back Nate Peck, who Wood moved over from defense. Other possible standouts include junior quarterback Joey Forney and junior left tackle Reilly Flynn, who both have Division One potential, according to Wood.

The Panthers are thin on the defensive line, with Tito Valentin the only returning player from last year's team. Theo Carver is back at free safety from last year and will return punts, while offensive linebacker Alex Sarpa worked hard in the offseason and looks good. A new addition is Darren Eads, who played freshman football but concentrated on wrestling the past two years.

Veteran offensive players include linebackers Beau Shields (sophomore), Joe SchoolCraft (sophomore) and Ian Scott (senior); senior nose tackle Stephan Sciscoe; senior defensive end Logan Knox; and junior forward safety Zach Clark.

"We have had a great off season, with the kids showing a lot of dedication," said Coach Fred Kutruff, 5-15 in his third year at Martinsville (91-58 in 15 years of coaching). "We are looking forward to playing in Lucas Oil."

Noblesville VS. Brownsburg

Two old friends face off in the Brownsburg/Noblesville game. While student teaching and coaching the defensive backs and kickers at Lebanon High School in 1992, Brett Comer learned a lot about football from Head Coach Lance Scheib. Today Comer is in his fourth year as the head coach of the Brownsburg Bulldogs, while Scheib is in his second year as head coach of the Noblesville Millers.

Last year the Millers defeated Brownsburg 28-26 at Noblesville. Before Scheib came to Noblesville, the Millers won 21-14 in 2007 and lost to the Bulldogs 22-21 in 2006 and 34-28 in 2005.

According to Scheib (101-73 in 18 years of coaching), the Millers had a "great" off-season and have improved since last season, when the team racked up a 3-7 record. Key returning players include captains linebacker Josh Compton, wide receiver Justin Dowden, Tyler Reeves in the backfield, and Tyler Stinn leading the secondary. "We will be as good as we can be after completing one season in our new program," Scheib said.

This year's Bulldogs will come into the contest "better, quicker, stronger," according to Athletic Director Greg Hill. Many players are back from last year's team that earned a 5-6 record—three of the four defensive backs, two of the three starting linebackers, and all the receivers, including wide receiver Charles Torwudzo, who committed to Purdue in June. In 2008, a season hampered by a broken left ankle, he caught 25 passes for 450 yards and three touchdowns.

"We're a little thin upfront—we don't have a lot of big linemen walking around—but we have more skill back this year than we've had in a long time," Comer said.

Edgewood VS. Northview

Edgewood is following a winning 2008 season (10-2), including a 35-14 win over Northview. Coach Jerry Bland is 16-8 in his third year at the Ellettsville school (40-46 overall in his ninth year of coaching).

This season Edgewood is a young, athletic team, with five returning seniors that made major contributions last season. Returning linebacker Zach Ferguson led the defense in tackles last year. Tailback Kyle Williams rushed for 1,025 yards last season. Joe Mimms will return to lead a young offensive line. Coach Bland also expects seniors Jeremy Salyers and Brian Fisher to step up as leaders on defense.

The 4A Northview Knights have an all-Western Indiana Conference passing combination in juniors Trent Lancaster and Zac Niehaus. Anthony Hubbard, an offensive guard last season, toned up his body to become leaner and faster and, as weakside defensive tackle, shows potential as a pass rusher.

"We've got good skills guys, and I'd like to see them be impressive," said Coach George Gettle, 43-27 in his eighth year at the school. A few weeks ago he called the line "a work in progress."

The Knights were 4-6 last season. Before last year's loss to Edgewood, however, Northview easily defeated the Mustang in the previous five years (42-0 in 2006). The last time a game between these two teams was truly close was in 2002, with Northview winning in double overtime, 26-23.

Northview team captains are Drake Stevenson, John Bradshaw and Hubbard.

Guerin Catholic VS. Brebeuf Jesuit

The keyword for this year's Guerin Catholic Golden Eagles is "new." Coach Andrew Kremer is in his first year at the three-year-old Noblesville high school, and the team only has nine seniors. Junior Andrew Godfrey returns as starting quarterback for a second season, having passed for nearly 1700 yards last year, and senior Steven Haas has moved to running back from wide receiver.

"We have good team speed on defense, and good skill players on offense," Kremer said. "Although we play a tough schedule, we are looking forward to a successful year."

Last year the 1A Golden Eagles were 3-7 and lost to 3A Brebeuf 21-47. In previous matchups between the teams, Guerin lost 0-33 in 2007 and won 42-39 in 2006.

Last year the Brebeuf Jesuit Braves earned a 7-3 record with a spread offense and then-junior Evan Kroot rushing for 1,580 yards. Other experienced starters include seniors Ryan Huguenard and Austin Bruen at receiver and Aloyis Gray at quarterback.

Coach Ryan Gallogly is 16-6 in his third year at the school (46-22 overall in his seventh year of coaching).

What's next: Davis' funeral is set for today. A trust fund has been set up to raise money for Davis' wife, Valeeda, and their three children. Stickers, similar to those sold after the shooting of Indianapolis Police Department Officer Timothy "Jake" Laird, will be sold to raise money for the fund.

Previously: Gov. Joe Kernan established a commission on abused and neglected children last year. A state report said that 120 children in Indiana have died from abuse and neglect in the past two years. Each year, about 60,000 reports of abuse or neglect of a child are reported to the Family and Social Services Administration. About 20,000 children are determined to be in danger.

The latest: Kernan this week announced a restructure of government that will include a new cabinet position to oversee duties of the FSSA and the hiring of 60 new caseworkers. It could cost about $3.5 million and would be paid through the existing FSSA budget. The new caseworkers will be assigned to counties that have the highest rates of child abuse and neglect. The state also plans to purchase 600 cell phones so that each caseworker will have one.

What's next: The additional caseworkers will be hired immediately.

Thornton, Stokley give community kids football tips

By Brian Kern
Staff Intern

DANVILLE — Indianapolis Colts linebacker David Thornton and wide-receiver Brandon Stokley got a personal taste of the coaching profession Tuesday night at Hendricks Regional Health here in Danville. But unlike the weekly pressure of winning in the NFL, these games featured no losers as 32 excited children participated in the first annual Blue Blitz flag football festival.

Participants between the ages of 8 and 13 were chosen at random from a pool of nearly 300 entrants to play in the games, with Thornton and Stokley as volunteer coaches for the teams.

And while only a select number of children played in the flag football games, Indianapolis Colts cheerleaders Joy McGuire and Christa Moore were on hand, passing out souvenir footballs and signing autographs for spectators to ensure that no one went away empty handed.

"It's all about the kids and having fun," Thornton said. "They love the Colts and we're just having a lot of fun tonight."

Thornton's sentiments were welcomed by event planner and Hendricks Regional Media Coordinator Jennifer Pribble who spent several months planing the event.

Niky Garcia, 8, of Speedway, looks for a good prize offered by Hendricks Regional Health.

"It's just turned out wonderful," Pribble said. "This is our first year as a Colts sponsor and it kind of let us partner to do a great community event."

Several organizations came together to sponsor Blue Blitz. Subway donated dinner and members of the Avon Junior Athletic Association's Quarterback Club striped the 50-yard field and provided the yard markers for the evening's contests.

Nine businesses hit by burglars

By Cynthia Fugate
Staff Writer

DANVILLE — It took thieves less than 12 seconds to bust the front door security glass of Sunspot Tanning Salon here and grab the cash register, police said, before preceding to the next business. Because of the quickness of the crime, police said two suspects are believed to have been involved.

Danville Detective William Wright said the 4:45 a.m. robbery was the first of nine in Danville, Plainfield, and Belleville that police believe may be related. Also hit Monday morning were D-Zign Hair Salon and Dave's All American Eatery in Danville. Wright said about $1,200 were taken from those businesses with damage to glass security doors expected to be about $1,300.

BROWNSBURG — More than 15 years of service and volunteerism to the community started with a "honey-do" list in 1984, Warren McDonald said after recently receiving a commendation from the Brownsburg Community School Corporation. Now, 16 years after his wife passed away, McDonald is still active in the community and says he can't think of a better way to spend his days.

McDonald, a veteran of World War II, volunteers at Cardinal Elementary School several days a week in the special education department, helping students with math and reading. He also volunteers at Roland Manor, a retirement community here.

McDonald

"I'm working on both ends of the life spectrum," he said. "They're very much alike."

In 1984, McDonald had retired from Allison Transmissions and was working around the house while his wife, Eva, continued to work for the school corporation. In 1987, he said Eva asked him to consider volunteering in the classroom, and that's where he's been ever since.

Shelter carries message of hope as statistics increase

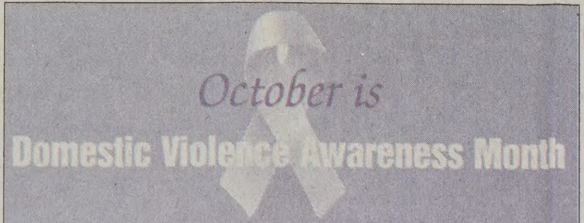
DANVILLE — Somewhere in America, a woman is being abused. These are women such as Shirley Anderson, 55, who was beaten to death by her estranged husband; Marceles Stovall, 2, who suffered fatal head injuries; and Natasha L. Kimberling, 22, who died from a single gunshot to the head. These names, and 53 others, represent Hoosier victims killed by an abuser over the past year.



April Bordeau, executive director of Sheltering Wings Center for Women, is one of many employees and volunteers that help operate the only domestic violence shelter in Hendricks County. Since it opened in 2002, Bordeau says the 43-bed facility has generally been full. In 2003, the shelter provided safe harbor for 156 women and offered its faith-based services to help them gain independence to live a safe and abuse free life, she said.

How big of a problem is domestic violence? The 1995 United Nations World Conference declared it the No. 1 human rights violation facing women and children around the world; in the United States, it is estimated that a woman is beaten every nine seconds. According to the Indiana Coalition Against Domestic Violence, the National Domestic Violence Hotline has received more than 700,000 calls for assistance since 1996.

Nine businesses hit by burglars

By Cynthia Fugate
Staff Writer

DANVILLE — It took thieves less than 12 seconds to bust the front door security glass of Sunspot Tanning Salon here and grab the cash register, police said, before preceding to the next business. Because of the quickness of the crime, police said two suspects are believed to have been involved.

Danville Detective William Wright said the 4:45 a.m. robbery was the first of nine in Danville, Plainfield, and Belleville that police believe may be related. Also hit Monday morning were D-Zign Hair Salon and Dave's All American Eatery in Danville. Wright said about $1,200 were taken from those businesses with damage to glass security doors expected to be about $1,300.

Previously: Gov. Joe Kernan established a commission on abused and neglected children last year. A state report said that 120 children in Indiana have died from abuse and neglect in the past two years. Each year, about 60,000 reports of abuse or neglect of a child are reported to the Family and Social Services Administration. About 20,000 children are determined to be in danger.

The latest: Kernan this week announced a restructure of government that will include a new cabinet position to oversee duties of the FSSA and the hiring of 60 new caseworkers. It could cost about $3.5 million and would be paid through the existing FSSA budget. The new caseworkers will be assigned to counties that have the highest rates of child abuse and neglect. The state also plans to purchase 600 cell phones so that each caseworker will have one.

What's next: The additional caseworkers will be hired immediately.

The Colts scored 24 points in a 27-24 loss to the defending Super Bowl champion New England Patriots, added 31 in a 31-17 win over AFC South rival Tennessee, then tacked on a season-high 45 points in Sunday's two-touchdown victory against Green Bay.

"We think it can be better," said Colts coach Tony Dungy. "We set some goals last year for things we wanted to do. We've set some goals this year — to be a little more consistent, to cut our turnovers down, but to be as explosive. I think we can get better."

The Indianapolis Blue Crew also made an appearance providing a referee and the blue fire engine No. 18.

Sam Peterson and Jordan Bray were two of many children enjoying themselves Tuesday night. The teammates in the Brownsburg Junior Football League played on opposite sides in the 8- to 10-year-old game, but both said playing with the Colts was exciting.

"I like Brandon Stokley because I like being a receiver," Peterson said.

Jordan's mother, Paula, said the game was a great learning experience for the community's youth.

"It's a fabulous opportunity for kids to learn from the pros," she said. "To meet them in person and talk football, I think, makes a huge impression on them."

Stokley said that's what the Blue Blitz is all about.

"I remember when I was that age and how cool it would have been to have a pro athlete come out," he said.

But the six-year veteran maintained a friendly spirit of competition with Thornton, pointing out a slight play calling advantage over the third-year linebacker.

"He's a defensive guy, so I've got the edge," Stokley said. "We pulled out all the tricks!"

Blue Blitz was the first in a series of upcoming events between Hendricks Regional Health and the Colts. Oct. 26 will be Colts Hay Day featuring safe trick-or-treating, as well as appearances and autograph sessions with Colts players. For more information visit www.hendricksregional.org.

Shelter

In Hendricks County, law enforcement officers were called on more than 1,500 domestic violence runs last year and the prosecutor's office charged 174 offenders in 2003, up from 127 in '02. The shelter's 24-hour crisis line received 550 calls in 2003.

That number has increased drastically to 775 through August of this year.

With the growth in the county, Bordeau said the shelter has seen an influx in crisis calls and women needing the shelter's services.

"With an increase in population often comes an increase in domestic violence," she said. "Also, people are learning more about the shelter and are seeking help."

She explained that a batterer uses acts of violence and goes through a series of behaviors including intimidation, threats, physiological abuse, and isolation to control the other person.

Bordeau says domestic violence is a social problem that can be solved and she stresses that knowledge is the answer.

"Safety begins one family at a time," she said, "and through education and awareness, there is help for victims and batterers."

To bring awareness to domestic violence, October has been designated as National Domestic Violence Awareness Month and to help kick off the county's campaign, T-shirts created by victims and students will hang in front of the Hendricks County Courthouse throughout the month. Some carry a message of hope, some a cry for help, but all signify that domestic violence is an epidemic.

Grandpa, as his students call him, says he has adopted all the children as his own.

"They call me a mentor," he said. "They just love me to death. Some of these kids don't have a father, and I'm there for them. A lot of what we have to do should also be done at home."

While he will turn 84 in October, McDonald says he keeps a busy schedule. In addition to his volunteerism, he traveled with a large group of veterans to visit the new World War II memorial in Washington, D.C., over Memorial Day weekend.

A machinist at the Reno Army Airbase, McDonald was a crew chief on the base where he worked on a number of airplanes. The stories from his time in the service now serve as moments of entertainment for his students and friends. These days, he tells stories about riding in a troop train across the country and daring to ask his commanding officer for dinner.

"He never did find out who asked that question," McDonald said with a chuckle.

McDonald says he has no plans to "retire" from his volunteer duties any time soon.

Golf outing to benefit injured BD athlete

A golf outing set for 12:15 p.m. Oct. 9 at Quail Creek Golf Course in Pittsboro has been planned to help injured Ben Davis High School athlete Jordan McNicoll.

McNicoll is paralyzed from the chest down after breaking a vertebrea while diving into a pool over the summer. He is recovering at Craig Hospital in Englewood, Colo.

Proceeds from the outing will go toward medical costs and remodeling of McNicoll's house for wheelchair access.

The cost is $50 per person and includes a cart and greens fees.

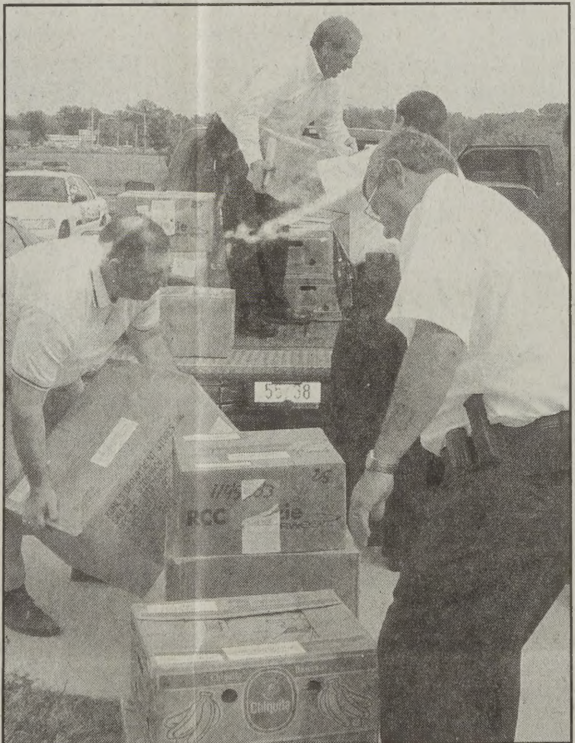
From Plainfield to Iraq



When the Plainfield Police Department announced this summer they would be collecting school supplies for Iraqi children, they had a goal of sending at least 100 kits. The drive was in honor of their fellow officer, Corp. Jared McKee, who began serving with his U.S. Army Reserve unit in Baghdad in January. Thanks to donations from the community, town personnel, and fellow officers, the department exceeded its goal by shipping 150 kits overseas. Above, McKee's wife, Angela, is surrounded by their children (clockwise) Corin, Elijah, Myaa, and Mykayla. Education in Brief

PCMS piloting new software program

Beginning Oct. 1, parents with students at Plainfield Community Middle School will no longer need to wait for midterms to see their child's grades.

PCMS will be piloting a new software program called ParentCONNECT for the Plainfield Community School Corporation. ParentCONNECT is designed to link parents and schools together via the Internet. The program enables parents to access their child's school records and current grades in each class.

In order for parents to use the program, they must register either online or at the school. For security purposes, each parent will need a user log-in and password.

For more information, call the school at 838-3966.

Cascade grads to have 20-year reunion

A 20-year reunion is planned for Cascade High School's class of 1984 at noon Oct. 10 at shelter house 1 at Hummel Park in Plainfield. This is planned as a family picnic.

For more information, call Scott Armour at 539-7086.

BHS faculty hosting homecoming dinner

Brownsburg High School faculty will host its annual fish and pulled pork dinner from 5 to 7 p.m. Oct. 1, before the homecoming football game against Lafayette Harrison. It will be held at the southwest end of the football field, outside of the main gate.

Proceeds from the dinner will go toward faculty scholarships.

Tickets are $6 and include a fish or pulled pork dinner with cole slaw, fries, and a beverage. Ala Carte items are $4 for a fish sandwich, $4 for a pulled pork sandwich, $1.50 for extra fries, and 50 cents for an extra beverage.

Shopping Showcase to support Avon band

The Avon Marching Black and Gold Band Boosters will present a Shopping Showcase between 5 and 9:30 p.m. Oct. 26 in the Commons area outside the Avon High School cafeteria, 7575 E. Oriole Ave., Avon.

Tornados player still working to

By Paul Shepherd
Star correspondent

When Okori Edwards runs up the 842-foot hill at Crown Hill Cemetery, he often looks over the Indianapolis skyline and dreams of where he wants to be.

Specifically, Edwards dreams of reaching the National Football League.

"People think I'm crazy for running out there with a bunch of dead people, but it's great for me," said Edwards, a 1998 Ben Davis graduate and member of the Giants 1997 state runner-up team who went on to play college football at Eastern Illinois University.

"When I get to the top of Crown Hill and look over and can see Downtown, I see so many visions of where I want to be."

When he's not running at Crown Hill on West 38th Street, the 5-11, 215-pound Edwards is running up the stairs at the downtown Bank One Tower. Or he's running in the parking lot next to coach Tony Dungy's truck parked at the Indianapolis Colts' West 56th Street complex. Or he's writing a letter to NFL team executives, like the one he wrote to Colts President Bill Polian.

"I just want a shot like any other player that wants to do it," said Edwards, who plays minor league football with the Indiana Tornados.

"That one letter won't do it though. I've got to write a million letters. If we want it bad enough, we've got to do things other people won't do."

Edwards also works out, doing pushups or sit-ups during pauses at his job as a machine operator, where he handles large volumes of cardboard.

"I look at that as another way for me to work out when nobody else is," Edwards said. "I'm doing something every day to get my body together just in case I get a good look."

Edwards, 24, credits his parents, Reginald and Joyce Edwards, former Ben Davis coach Dick Dullaghan, current Tornados coach Barry Krauss and others for helping instill a strong work ethic.

"He played with tremendous heart and tremendous desire," Dullaghan said. "He's a credit to the game because he plays with so much emotion and desire. He was fun to coach because he loved to play."

Edwards, who lives in Pike Township, realizes his odds of making the NFL are slim. He's a shameless optimist but a realist as well. He is working on starting his own marketing firm and is seeking new, creative ways to continue to be around the game.

But Edwards isn't ready to give up his dream yet. He even rationalizes why he would be a good fit for a team like the Colts.

"It doesn't cost them anything to work me out," Edwards said. "You look at the (injury) situation

Tornados player still working to

By Paul Shepherd
Star correspondent

When Okori Edwards runs up the 842-foot hill at Crown Hill Cemetery, he often looks over the Indianapolis skyline and dreams of where he wants to be.

Specifically, Edwards dreams of reaching the National Football League.

"People think I'm crazy for running out there with a bunch of dead people, but it's great for me," said Edwards, a 1998 Ben Davis graduate and member of the Giants 1997 state runner-up team who went on to play college football at Eastern Illinois University.

"When I get to the top of Crown Hill and look over and can see Downtown, I see so many visions of where I want to be."

When he's not running at Crown Hill on West 38th Street, the 5-11, 215-pound Edwards is running up the stairs at the downtown Bank One Tower. Or he's running in the parking lot next to coach Tony Dungy's truck parked at the Indianapolis Colts' West 56th Street complex. Or he's writing a letter to NFL team executives, like the one he wrote to Colts President Bill Polian.

"I just want a shot like any other player that wants to do it," said Edwards, who plays minor league football with the Indiana Tornados.

"That one letter won't do it though. I've got to write a million letters. If we want it bad enough, we've got to do things other people won't do."

Edwards also works out, doing pushups or sit-ups during pauses at his job as a machine operator, where he handles large volumes of cardboard.

"I look at that as another way for me to work out when nobody else is," Edwards said. "I'm doing something every day to get my body together just in case I get a good look."

They may be competitors at their specialties, but don't look for any sibling rivalry from the two brothers.

"We get along really well," Brian Fox said, "at school, home, on the field, anywhere. I think it's 'cool that he's doing the same thing that I'm doing. He's doing what he's doing, and I'm doing what I'm doing. They happen to be the same thing."

Part of the sameness is how good the brothers are on the soccer and football fields.

Not only do they both start for the varsity soccer team — Kyle, 15, in the forward position and Brian, 18, at center midfielder — but they have both experienced success as place-kickers.

Brian is in his third season of kicking for the Warriors, the past two at the varsity level.

"We lost everything": Damage to their Lawrence home in the Labor Day 2003 flood cost Julius and Theresa Spiegl $30,000 of their retirement savings — they had no flood insurance.

Old flood plain maps can lead to trouble

By Tammy Webber
tammy.webber@indystar.com

As rain fell nonstop on Labor Day 2003, water filled the streets and gushed through Julius and Theresa Spiegl's basement windows.

Within hours, 9 feet of water had inundated the Lawrence couple's basement and parts of their house, destroying family mementos, appliances, hardwood floors and furniture.

The soggy mess drained away $30,000 of their retirement savings because — like most Indiana homeowners — they did not have flood insurance. They weren't required to because their home wasn't shown on federal maps to be in a flood plain, an area of overspill from a nearby waterway.

But most of Indiana's flood plain maps are so outdated that they may not reflect actual flooding risks after decades of development and filling, leaving some Hoosiers with a false sense of security and a few with thousands of dollars in losses.

Fallujah under control; insurgents emerge in Mosul

By Alex Rodriguez
Chicago Tribune

■ Hoosier fatality: Elwood soldier killed in ambush near Baghdad. A6

BAGHDAD, Iraq — As Iraqi leaders Sunday trumpeted a swift victory in Fallujah, insurgents pressed their claim on the northern city of Mosul, which is fast becoming Iraq's newest front.

An outbreak of rebel attacks on police stations and government buildings has paralyzed parts of the city.

"The situation is very bad here, and it's getting worse," said Abdul Wahab Ibrahim, who is fleeing with his family. "People are afraid that the same thing that happened to Fallujah will happen to Mosul."

The violence in Mosul serves as a troubling postscript to the military success of the weeklong assault on insurgents in Fallujah, described Sunday by Maj. Gen. Richard Natonski as a "flawless execution of the plan we drew up."

At least 38 American troops and six Iraqi soldiers have been killed in the fighting in Fallujah. The number of U.S. troops wounded is now 275, though more than 60 have returned to duty. U.S. officials estimated more than 1,200 insurgents were killed in the weeklong fighting.

If that number is accurate, it would mean that a significant portion of the guerrilla force ensconced in Fallujah before the invasion had been eliminated. Up to 5,000 insurgents were said to have been massed there in advance of the assault.

While the U.S.-led force has been fighting through Fallujah, a wave of violence has swept through several cities across central and northern Iraq, killing dozens of people and wounding scores more.

Sunday, insurgents in Mosul raided two police stations and torched the governor's house. Gunbattles erupted in the main market of the northern town of Beiji and outside the Polish

Base for Hoosier giving is broad

Hoosiers were more likely to give to charity last year than other Americans, according to a study being released today.

The report, which tallied more than $4.8 billion in donations from Indiana, found 79 percent of state households gave, compared with 69 percent nationally.

The amount each gave lags the national average, but the widespread willingness among Hoosiers to donate is a plus for charities.

"The broader base is good news for nonprofit organizations looking at the future," said Eugene R. Tempel, executive director of the center that completed the study, "because the broader the base the better."

The report, "Indiana Gives," is the first comprehensive look at who gave and what type of organizations benefited. The Center on Philanthropy at Indiana University produced the study.

"We have work to do to make ourselves come above average in terms of giving," said Tempel. "Now it's just a matter of stimulating people to think in terms of

The report, which tallied more than $4.8 billion in donations from Indiana, found 79 percent of state households gave, compared with 69 percent nationally.

The amount each gave lags the national average, but the widespread willingness among Hoosiers to donate is a plus for charities.

"The broader base is good news for nonprofit organizations looking at the future," said Eugene R. Tempel, executive director of the center that completed the study, "because the broader the base the better."

The report, "Indiana Gives," is the first comprehensive look at who gave and what type of organizations benefited. The Center on Philanthropy at Indiana University produced the study.

"We have work to do to make ourselves come above average in terms of giving," said Tempel. "Now it's just a matter of stimulating people to think in terms of

Violence erupts in Mosul; victory declared in Fallujah

Baghdad, Iraq — As Iraqi leaders Sunday trumpeted a swift victory in Fallujah, insurgents pressed their claim on the northern city of Mosul, which is fast becoming Iraq's newest front. The violence in Mosul serves as a troubling postscript to the military success of the weeklong assault on insurgents in Fallujah. A1

Fatal scene: Jim Leavelle (left, in hat) tries to protect Lee Harvey Oswald, suspected assassin of President Kennedy, as he is fatally shot by Jack Ruby in the Dallas police headquarters garage on Nov. 24 1963. The city might open the basement to visitors.

Dallas might open site tied to Kennedy

By Lianne Hart
Los Angeles Times

DALLAS — The old underground garage is filled with SUVs and Toyota Camrys now, late-model cars belonging to the lawyers and judges who work in the municipal court building above.

But on a November morning in 1963, the parking bay — then under the dominion of the Dallas Police Department — was packed with reporters jostling for position to glimpse the man suspected of assassinating President Kennedy.

As Lee Harvey Oswald, who was handcuffed to a police detective, stepped into the glare of television lights, Jack Ruby emerged from the crowd and fired a single bullet into Oswald's stomach. It was a moment frozen in time with the click of a camera, one of the most unforgettable images of the 20th century.

Now this site — long closed to the public — may become a Dallas tourist destination as part of a plan to revitalize a rundown section of downtown.

"It's a part of history and should be preserved," Assistant City Manager Ryan Evans said. "A lot of people have expressed interest in seeing it. If opening it to the public increases pedestrian traffic to a part of downtown that sorely needs redeveloping, we'll do it."

The city that once tried to forget its connection to the assassination of a president has long since accepted that it cannot.

In 1970, Dallas erected a Kennedy memorial, a white cenotaph designed by architect Philip Johnson. In 1989, the Sixth Floor Museum at Dealey Plaza — a somber look at Kennedy's death and legacy — opened in the former Texas School Book Depository, where a sniper's nest and rifle were found after Kennedy was shot. The Texas Theater, where Oswald was arrested, is being refurbished.

The infamous garage under the old police station would join those and other assassination-related sites, which draw thousands of visitors to Dallas each year, Evans said. The idea became possible after the Police Department moved to a new building about a year ago. Before that, "it wouldn't have been safe to let the public wander around down there," Evans said. The building now is vacant, except for some Municipal Court operations.

Because plans for the entire building must be drawn before the garage can be opened to tourists, the project is three years away, Evans said. The fifth-floor jail cell that held Oswald — and later Ruby — might also be opened to the public.

Jim Leavelle, the square-jawed detective who was handcuffed to Oswald that day in the garage, is perplexed by the continuing interest.

Leavelle said when he saw Ruby stepping out from the crowd, "I knew what was happening. I thought: 'He's going to be shot, and there's nothing I can do about it.' " The former detective said he tried to jerk Oswald out of the line of fire, but "there wasn't time. Ruby took two small steps and — pow. Oswald groaned and crumpled to the floor." Leavelle shoved Ruby back and, as another officer grabbed for the .38-caliber gun, Leavelle saw Ruby's fingers twitching on the trigger. "He was trying to get another shot off," he said.

Leavelle, 84, said he still receives three to four letters a week about the assassination. He sets aside Fridays to answer every one.

"I think the city should have opened the garage to the public a long time ago," he said. "For whatever reason, people want to see it. If you asked me in 1963, I would have said it would all blow over by 1964," he said. "Now, I don't think it will ever be over with."

Is Stomach Discomfort Concerning You?

These are the symptoms of a digestive condition called DYSPEPSIA. They may occur during or after eating.

- Early sense of fullness with eating
- Mid to upper abdominal pain or discomfort
- Bloating
- Possible nausea or vomiting

Our physicians invite you to take part in a clinical research study for dyspepsia. We are studying the investigational use of an already approved medication. We encourage you to inquire if you:

- Are female
- Have experienced the symptoms listed above during any 12 weeks of the past year
- Have not been diagnosed with diabetes that requires treatment with insulin

If you qualify and participate, you will be provided with all study examinations and medication.

COACH'S CORNER

MATT KRYGER / The Star

THE PLAN: Tony Dungy says the Colts will "look at a lot of corrections that we have to make."

A day after the Colts' 26-17 loss to San Diego, coach Tony Dungy touched on the following subjects during his Monday news conference:

On the mood after the team's first loss: "The mood is disappointment, but I think our guys have always gone back to work the next day, no matter what. We had 13 wins that we didn't really dwell on too long, and I don't think we'll dwell on this one other than the fact that we'll look at a lot of corrections that we have to make. I think we realize that when you play that way, you're going to get by in some cases, but you're not going to beat a real good team, and San Diego's a very good football team."

On whether or not the Colts lost their mental edge: "No, not really. I think what happened is it's a game of four or five plays. We didn't execute some things defensively. I thought they had a very good plan for us; they threw the ball fast, they had some nice blocking schemes to try to handle Dwight (Freeney). . . . They tried to keep it in manageable third downs and they did a good job of it, and then they made three or four big plays when you needed it. We played hard. We just didn't play as sharp or as well as you needed to win that type of game."

On the quantity of good teams in the AFC: "I think it's one of the best years that I can remember since being over here in the AFC. You're likely going to have a 12-win team be a wild-card team. New England, it looks like they're getting healthy and rolling; two-time defending champs that are getting some of their people back, getting some of their swagger back. Cincinnati can be a 13-win team. It's going to be a good field and whoever goes (to the Super Bowl) will have to win two or three games against really good teams."

— Phil Richards

Manning sets record in voting among fans

Star, news service reports

Indianapolis Colts quarterback Peyton Manning received a record 1,184,142 votes in the final fan balloting for the Pro Bowl.

Seattle running back Shaun Alexander was second with 1,110,575 votes, while Colts running back Edgerrin James was seventh (920,815) and Colts receiver Marvin Harrison eighth (876,332).

Colts who were the top vote-getters at their position were Manning, center Jeff Saturday, defensive end Dwight Freeney, defensive tackle Montae Reagor, and Robert Mathis for special teams play. The AFC and NFC Pro Bowl teams will be announced Wednesday.

Bears to start Grossman

Rex Grossman's rescue effort elevated him back to starting quarterback for the Bears.

Grossman, who replaced struggling rookie Kyle Orton in the second half Sunday night and led the Bears to a 16-3 win over the Falcons, will start at Green Bay on Sunday, when Chicago can clinch the NFC North.

"He was our starter before he went down and we have a lot of faith in him. We think he gives us our best chance to win," Bears coach Lovie Smith said in announcing the switch.

Grossman, a former Indianapolis Star Indiana Mr. Football from Bloomington, tore a ligament in his knee in the third game last season and didn't return. This year, he broke his ankle in a preseason game Aug. 12. He missed 26 games over the past two seasons, but the long hours of rehab have finally brought him back to a starter's role.

Grossman, a first-round pick in 2003, will be making just his seventh NFL start Sunday. He completed 9-of-16 passes for 93 yards in the second half against the Falcons.

Cardinals lose Warner

Quarterback Kurt Warner, one of the few stars on an under-achieving Cardinals team, had an MRI exam to determine if his right medial collateral ligament needs surgery. No results were immediately available, but

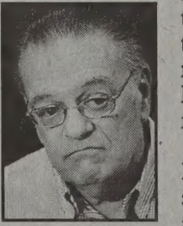
Artest asks to stay, but CEO weighs offers

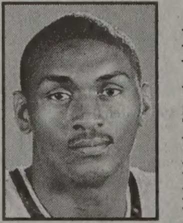
PACERS NOTEBOOK

By Mike Wells
mike.wells@indystar.com

It's apparent that Ron Artest's change of heart about playing for the Indiana Pacers won't affect Donnie Walsh's decision to trade the former All-Star forward. The Pacers CEO said Monday that he's in the process of narrowing the list of suitors for a deal.



Donnie Walsh



Ron Artest

"Right now I'm looking to see what's doable," Walsh said.

Walsh, who has said he will leave Artest on the inactive list until he can make a deal, reiterated he's not going to rush into anything. The NBA's trading deadline is Feb. 23. Walsh declined to discuss the Artest situation specifically Monday.

Meanwhile, Artest is doing his best to salvage a relationship with some of his teammates. He met with Stephen Jackson and Jermaine O'Neal for about three hours Sunday night.

"It was a very positive conversation," O'Neal said. "We held nothing back. We not only talked about things that have happened this year, but also in years past. He knows what he did was wrong. He understands the situation he put himself in. I was upfront with him and told him the team is upset with him and we're going to move on without him."

A lot has been made about O'Neal and Artest's relationship.

"It's not about me and Ron. Our relationship hasn't taken a hit off the court," O'Neal said. "I want to play with him or against him in an All-Star Game one of these days. I have a lot of respect for what he does on the court. He may be the best player in the league that plays both ends of the court."

While several other Pacers agree Artest should not return, Jackson is leaving the door open for Artest to come back.

"I almost lost my job for him. He's my friend," Jackson said. "I support him. I'll never turn my back on anybody that I played with. That door's always open with me. Just like I have my own opinions, (my teammates) have their own opinions. ... and we're entitled to that."

Artest has taken a 180-degree turn from saying he wanted to be traded on Dec. 10. He said over the weekend that he wants to return to the Pacers, the team that stuck by him during his 73-game suspension last season.

Injury update

Both should be available for Wednesday's home game vs. the Los Angeles Clippers.

Dear Family and Friends,

You are invited to come and cheer on the Brownsburg Redskins Football Team. We really need your support and enthusiasm. So please bring your comfortable lawn chairs, sunglasses, a cool drink, wear maroon & dark yellow, and become a fan of the Redskins. There is a concession stand for refreshments. It is very exciting for us to play football and to have someone to cheer us on. Time passes swiftly and we will soon be adults, so treasure this time in our young lives by watching us play. Little league football games will become fond memories for us and will have a positive affect on our development and character. With your attendance and support, the team will know that you really care. The season doesn't last very long, so please don't put off going to our games. You can have a great time, get some fresh air and best of all, it's FREE!!!

We are enclosing the schedule, our names and #'s, and the directions to the field. Please come, wear maroon & dark yellow, and be our #1 fans!

BROWNSBURG EAST MIDDLE SCHOOL

For Brownsburg, the vision of the Owner-Design Team is to create procedures and a positive atmosphere of success to deliver on-time an extraordinary learning facility on an ordinary budget. With that in mind, Schmidt Associates was commissioned to design East Middle School to serve grades six through eight.

The 300,000-square-foot facility is designed around the concept of two 750-student schools combined into one building and situated around a centralized core of shared spaces. Core areas shared by the six academic wings include administration, media center, industrial technology, special education, physical education, cafeteria, music, art, and family consumer sciences. The shared spaces offer two access points improving traffic flow and giving the feel of a smaller school.

The media center is located between the classroom wings and serves as the first impression of the school. Entrances to this space are located off of the main entry corridor enabling easy access for all. Computer labs for each grade level are located nearby along with a large group instruction room that will double as the distance learning room.

Additionally, each of the "two schools" is further broken down to support three wings—each housing two teams. A team consists of a science lab and four general classrooms (math, foreign language, reading, and social studies). Each wing also offers team planning rooms, restrooms, and custodial rooms.

The school is subdivided with separate wings for each of the grade levels. Most notably, the sixth grade wings are in the front of the facility, flanking the office area, and are directly across from the media center, providing easy access to all the main areas.

"East Middle School is a wonderful example of a great learning environment built on-time and under budget."

—Kathleen Corbin, Superintendent
Brownsburg Community School Corp.—

"The entire school is very well designed—the circulation flow is good and allows students to easily find their way."

—Erin Roe, Teacher
Brownsburg East Middle School—

"The building layout is excellent—especially from a supervision and safety standpoint."

—Scott Smith, Teacher
Brownsburg East Middle School—

> "Operationally and functionally, this is a great facility."
> —Rick Doss, Principal
> Brownsburg East Middle School—

The entries are identified with numbered, radiating canopies. The administration area is located at the main entry. Once class begins, all visitors must flow through the office before gaining access to the facility.

Site traffic flow is separated into visitor and parent drop-off with a separate bus drop-off. The site is complete with a football stadium and an eight-lane track, six tennis courts, baseball and softball fields, and a soccer field.

The facility is designed with the anticipation of continued growth. Core spaces are built to the 1,500 student capacity, while academic areas are built with future expansion in mind.

Many cost saving opportunities learned from previous projects were incorporated into this project. Bid in 2003, the project was 12% lower than the average cost per square foot in schools at that time and under the current state guidelines for new construction.

East Middle School provides students a great place to transition from the elementary level to the middle school level in a warm, inviting, and functional environment. ▲

"The media center works really well. Just one example is the design of three separate seating areas that enable multiple classes to use the space at one time."

COMMUNITY

Brownsburg Parks Department asking for residents' opinions

BY CHARLEE BEASOR
charlee.beasor@flyergroup.com

BROWNSBURG — Aside from low funding and a shortage of land and trail space, the Brownsburg Parks and Recreation Department closed its community recreation center in December, leaving the town short of a gathering place dedicated to recreation and fitness.

In an effort to bounce back from that loss, the parks department decided to institute a business plan to address the requirements and objectives of the department, providing guidance on management decisions for operations, maintenance, and development over the next five years.

> "There is no time like the present to begin looking to the future."

> PHILIP PARNIN
> Director of the parks department four weeks total.

The second phase of the survey will be on the town's website, www.brownsburg.org, for residents who didn't get to respond to the mailed survey.

"We're putting our resources where their mouths are," Parnin said. "This is their opportunity to give us direction. Right now, if you have the means to plan, you should."

He said the idea is to plan ahead and be able to hit the ground running once the economy turns around.

One of the pushes behind the business plan is to be able to have access to funds that are currently unavailable to the parks department.

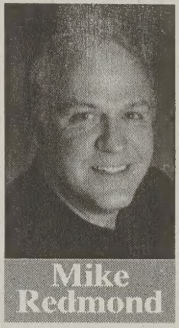
Communicating across a generation gap



Mike Redmond

Many people are ahead of my mother when it comes to getting a grasp on 21st Century technology. Such as, for example, the Amish.

This is why whenever something goes wrong with a gizmo at Mom's house — the phone goes on the fritz, the computer blows up (again), the VCR gets stuck in second audio program mode and Mom has to watch "The Little Mermaid" in Esperanto — I do what any good son with a knowledge of how things work would do.

I call my brother P.D. and tell him to go take care of it.

P.D. lives closer to Mom. This is by design, you see. I knew when I left home that the world of science and technology were about to undergo an explosion of innovation the likes of which had never been seen, and that it would make our lives more complicated, and therefore it would be smart to make sure I always lived at least one hour further from Mom than my brother.

This, I reasoned (correctly) would protect me from scenes such as the one played out in LaGrange County last weekend when Mom's satellite television went kablooey.

P.D., who for those of you keeping score, has moved from Detroit to Toledo, was called into service. He arrived at Mom's Saturday morning, quickly determined the nature of the problem, and went to the electronics store to buy the new doohickey, which would connect to the frammistat, thus restoring the picture.

Now, if you have ever worked on a satellite dish, you know that it is a two-man job. One person has to make the adjustments while the other watches the screen. Since P.D. would be making the adjustments, the job of screen watching fell to Mom. P.D. decided to buy a pair of cheap walkie-talkies in order to make the job easier.

Heh.

Here, pieced together from on-the-scene accounts, is how it went:

P.D.: "Mom? Can you hear me?"

Mom: (No response).

P.D.: "Mom! Oh, Mom. Come in, Mom."

Mom: (No response).

P.D.: (going into house): "(Bad word). Mom, couldn't you hear me?"

Mom: "Yes. I said I heard you fine."

P.D.: "Did you hold in the button?"

Mom: "What?"

P.D.: "You have to hold in the button while you talk or I won't be able to hear it."

Mom: "Which button?"

(P.D. returns outside)

Mom: "Hello? P.D.? Hello? P.D.?"

P.D.: (No response).

Mom: "P.D.! Answer me!"

P.D. (walking back into house): "(Another bad word). You have to let up on the button."

Mom: "You said I had to push down on the button."

P.D.: "And then, when you're done talking, you have to let up so that you can hear me."

Mom: "Well, why didn't you say so?"

P.D.: (wisely avoiding saying "I DID say so"): "I'm going back outside."

And so it went for most of the afternoon, including the time someone else was transmitting on the same channel and Mom thought it was P.D. saying, "Turn off the TV," but we needn't go into much detail on that (See above under "bad word.").

Eventually it all worked out fine. Mom's TV is back to normal. In fact, it's so good that she's thinking of adding a second converter box so she can watch satellite TV upstairs. She asked me to take care of it as soon as I can, and so I shall.

Excuse me while I call P.D.

These chicks aren't just whistling Dixie

Rich Lowry

For the Dixie Chicks, life just isn't fair.

Sean Penn can go on a prewar tour of Iraq that plays into the hands of Iraqi propagandist Baghdad Bob and be warmly welcomed back to Hollywood. The lead singer of the Dixie Chicks makes a stray insult of President Bush, and the group's radio playtime disappears, its album sales plummet, and the controversy lingers on seven weeks and an apology later.

What the Dixie Chicks forgot is that, as country singers, they might be "artists," but they're not entitled to the alienated self-righteousness assumed by most every other artist in the country. No, they are part of the Country Music Nation, the red-white-and-blue musical heart of America, where our enemies are evil, our cause is righteous, and comments critical of the commander in chief on foreign soil on the eve of a war are, uh, shall we say, not appreciated.

At a London concert on March 10, Texan Natalie Maines told the audience, "We're of free expression.

The Chicks have also borrowed from female rock stars: When in doubt, take off your clothes. The group appears naked with various slogans related to the brouhaha on their bodies on the cover of Entertainment Weekly.

"It's not about the nakedness," says Maines. Uh-huh.

The flap will further convince urban sophisticates that country music is hopelessly simplistic. Actually, country is the deepest and most realistic of all popular music genres. Its audience is not just kids, so its themes and emotional pitch, in contrast to rock, don't have to be aimed perpetually at snotty 16-year-olds.

Country songs deal with the eternal theme of love, but also single fatherhood, alcoholism, prayer, death, fishing, loneliits poisonous distrust of American power. So, country music features the kind of patriotic anger that would have been utterly unremarkable, say, in the America of the 1940s.

A small parade of 9-11 songs are heard on country stations. Most of them are similar in tone to Darryl Worley's "Have You Forgotten?" — "Some say this country's just out looking for a fight/After 9-11 man I'd have to say that's right."

You wouldn't necessarily want U.S. policy-makers to act on this sentiment, but neither would you want to live in a country that didn't sometimes feel it. It too represents a sort of realism, the hard fact that we have to choose between getting murdered by our enemies and aggressively thwarting them.

The Dixie Chicks have instead resorted to the easy artistic pose of righteousness that condemns the country's "warmongering" president without offering any alternative of how to respond to the threats of the post-9-11 world.

It might be that the Dixie Chicks leave the country format altogether, or — more likely — that they perversely benefit from their heightened notoriety. In the meantime, they can at least show the willingness to shoulder individual responsibility that is at the heart of country.

As a famous lyric from the historic country group The Carter Family has it: "Everybody's got to walk that lonesome valley/We've got to walk it by ourselves/There's nobody here can walk it for us/We've got to walk it by ourselves."

Last Will and Testament

KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS, that we, Orville D. Briner and Flossie M. Briner, being residents of Marion County, Indiana, and being of sound and disposing mind and memory, do hereby make, publish and declare this to be our joint Last Will and Testament and the Last Will and Testament of each of us. Each of us does hereby revoke any and all former wills and testamentary papers made by us or either of us.

ITEM I

Each of us directs that his or her legally enforceable obligations and funeral expenses be paid as soon as practical after our respective deaths.

ITEM II

The first of us to depart this life does hereby give, devise, and bequeath unto the survivor of us all of the property of the first of us to die, both real and personal, wheresoever the same may be situated. This bequest is made in fee simple absolute and no trust shall be deemed to be applicable by reason of the death of the first of us to die.

ITEM III

The survivor of us does hereby give, devise, and bequeath all the residue and remainder of his or her estate, both real and personal, of whatever location or description, of which he or she may die seized, or over which he or she may have power of disposition, or any interest whatsoever unto John D. Brown, Janet Sue Meyers, Judith G. Briner, and Elizabeth Ann Briner equally, to share and share alike except that whatever bonds placed in the name of Flossie M. Briner during her lifetime and retained by her as surviving spouse or transferred to and retained by Orville D. Briner as surviving spouse shall pass to our surviving natural grandchildren equally, to share and share alike.

ITEM IV

The first of us to depart this life does hereby nominate, constitute and appoint the survivor of us as sole Executor or Executrix of the will of the first of us to die. The survivor of us nominates, constitutes and appoints John D. Brown as the sole Executor of the will of the survivor of us. Each of us expressly directs that any Executor or Executrix named in this Item shall not be required to furnish any bonds of any kind whatsoever.

ITEM V

In the event that John D. Brown should predecease the survivor of us, then each of us nominates, constitutes and appoints Janet Sue Meyers to be the Alternative Executrix of this, our Joint Last Will and Testament, and expressly direct that said Alternative Executrix shall not be required to furnish any bond of any kind whatsoever.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, we and each of us have hereunto set our hands to this our Joint Last Will and Testament, and the Last Will and Testament of each of us, affixing our initials to each of said pages for better identification, this 23rd day of June, 1977.

OF

ORVILLE D. BRINER

I, Orville D. Briner, a resident of Indianapolis, Indiana, hereby declare this to be my Last Will and Testament, revoking all former Wills and Codicils.

ARTICLE I

Whenever the term "Executor" is used in this Will, such term shall also include "Executrix".

ARTICLE II

I direct that my enforceable debts, expenses of my last illness, and funeral and administration expenses of my estate, shall be paid by my Executor from the principal of my residuary estate. My Executor may continue to pay any installment obligations incurred by me during my life time on an installment basis or may prepay any or all of such obligations in whole or in part and my Executor may distribute any asset encumbered by such an obligation subject to the obligation.

I direct that all inheritance, estate and succession taxes (including interest and penalties thereon) payable by reason of my death shall be paid out of and be charged generally against my residuary estate without reimbursement from any person. This provision shall not be construed as a waiver of any right which my Executor has by law or otherwise to claim reimbursement for any such taxes which become payable on account of property, if any, over which I have power of appointment.

O. D. B.

ARTICLE III

I devise and bequeath to the following grandchildren if they survive me, two hundred fifty dollars ($250.00) each, Donald David Brown, Ronald L. Brown and Alan Brown. The remainder of my personal property such as my personal effects, household goods, and the like not otherwise effectively transferred, such as jewelry, clothing, automobile, furniture and furnishings, silver, books, and pictures (including policies of insurance thereon.) I bequeath to my children, John D. Brown, Janet Sue Meyers, Judith G. Briner and Elizabeth Ann Briner in equal shares, share and share alike. If any of my children predecease me then his or her share shall be divided equally among my surviving children.

ARTICLE IV

I devise and bequeath my residuary estate, being all property, wherever situated, in which I may have any interest at the time of my death and not otherwise effectively disposed of, but not including any property over which I may have a power of appointment to my children John D. Brown, Janet Sue Meyers, Judith G. Briner and Elizabeth Ann Briner in equal shares, share and share alike. If any of my children predecease me then his or her share shall be divided equally among my surviving children.

ARTICLE V

In the event any beneficiary under this Will has not attained the age eighteen (18) then his share shall be held in trust by his parent or guardian until he attains such age.

ARTICLE VI

I appoint my son, John D. Brown, Executor of this Will. If John D. Brown does not qualify as Executor or having qualified, shall die, resign or otherwise become disqualified, then in such event, I appoint Janet Sue Meyers as Executrix. My Executor shall have the following powers and any others that may be granted by law, to be exercised in my Executor's discretion without Court Order:

a. To retain any property of my estate;

b. To sell any real or personal property of my estate, for cash or credit, at public or private sales, for any purpose; to exchange any such property for other property; to grant options to purchase or acquire any such property; and to determine the price and terms of sales, exchanges, and options;

c. To employ attorneys, auditors, depositaries, proxies, and agents with or without discretionary powers, and to keep any property in the name of an Executor or a nominee, with or without disclosure of any fiduciary relationship, or in bearer form;

d. To collect, pay, contest, compromise, or abandon claims of or against my estate, wherever situated; and to execute contracts, conveyances, and other instruments containing covenants and warranties binding upon and creating a charge against my estate and containing provisions excluding personal liability;

e. To make any distribution or division of my estate in cash or in kind or in both;

f. To allot different kinds of disproportionate shares in property or undivided interest in property among the beneficiaries, and to determine the value of any such property;

g. To invest in any property, real or personal.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have signed my name at the foot and end of this my Last Will and Testament and affixed my seal this __ day of ______________________________, 1985.

The foregoing instrument, consisting of four pages, including this page, each page being typewritten only on one side, was at the date whereof by the said Orville D. Briner, signed, sealed and published and declared to be his Last Will and Testament in the presence of us, who at his request, in his presence and in the presence of each other, have subscribed our names as attesting witnesses thereto.

REAL ESTATE CONDITIONAL SALES CONTRACT

THIS AGREEMENT made and entered into by and between James M. Clevenger and Joyce Clevenger, husband and wife hereinafter referred to as the seller, and Orville Briner and Flossie Briner, husband and wife

hereinafter referred to as the buyer, WITNESSETH:

That if the buyer shall first make the payments and perform the covenants hereinafter mentioned on his part to be made and performed, the seller hereby covenants and agrees to convey and assure to buyer, who hereby agrees to purchase, in fee simple, clear of any encumbrances whatsoever except as hereinafter expressed, by good and sufficient deed of general warranty the real estate situated in the County of Marion, State of Indiana, known as 619 WarrenStreet and more particularly described as follows, to-wit:

Lot Numbered Four Hundred Fifty One (451) in McCarty's Tenth West Side Addition to the City of Indianapolis as per plat thereof, recorded in Plat Book 9 page 60 in the office of the Recorder of Marion County, Indiana.

Subject to any and all conditions, utility easements, highways, rights of way, and other restrictions and limitations of record affecting said real estate.

As purchase price for said described real estate, said buyer hereby covenants and agrees to pay to seller the sum of Four Thousand Five Hundred Dollars  Dollars ($ 4,500.00) without any relief from valuation or appraisement laws of the State of Indiana, with attorney's fees, in the following manner, to-wit:

The sum of One Thousand Dollars * Dollars ($ 1,000.00) cash in hand at the time of the execution and delivery of this contract, the receipt of which is hereby acknowledged, and the sum of Forty-Three Dollars * Dollars ($ 43.00) each and every month hereafter until the remainder of purchase price, principal and interest, has been paid in full. The first payment shall be made on or before the 21st day of May, 1953, at where seller designates in the city of Indianapolis, Indiana, and like payments shall be made on or before the same day of each succeeding month.

It is understood and agreed that the deferred payments on the balance of said purchase price shall bear interest at the rate of six per cent (6 %) per annum, same to be computed semi-annually in advance on January 1 and July 1 upon the sum unpaid at the beginning of such six months period. The amount so found due as interest charge each six months as hereinbefore mentioned shall be deducted from the amount of aggregate monthly payments made during the preceding six months period and the balance remaining of such monthly payments shall then be credited on the principal still due.

The buyer shall have the privilege at any time of paying any sum or sums in addition to the payments herein required upon the consideration, and it is understood and agreed that no such prepayment shall stop the accrual of interest on the amount so paid until the next succeeding semi-annual computation of interest after such payment is made as herein provided.

It is further understood and agreed between the parties hereto as follows: That the buyer will assume and pay the taxes on said real estate beginning with the installment due and payable November, 1953 and all installments subsequent thereto, and all assessments for municipal and other improvements completed after this date, also, any taxes assessed on this instrument, and will keep improvements on said real estate insured against loss from fire and tornado, said insurance to be carried in a responsible company to be approved by the seller in a sum not less than the balance due on this contract, all policies to be delivered to and retained by seller during the continuance of this contract, by paying each month to the seller a sum amounting to the monthly pro rata amount due on the insurance premiums. The buyer also agrees to pay to seller each month a sum amounting to one-twelfth of the annual taxes and any assessment payable by the buyer.

That possession of said real estate shall be given the buyer on June 1st, 1953. and shall continue so long as the buyer shall punctually pay the installments of the purchase price above provided and shall comply with all the other terms and conditions of this agreement; but the title and ownership of said real estate shall remain in the seller or his assigns and no right, title or interest in said real estate, either legal or equitable shall pass by virtue of this agreement, until said purchase price shall have been fully paid and all the terms and conditions of this agreement fully complied with. The seller agrees to furnish an abstract of title showing a merchantable or insurable title in the grantor to date, provided abstract was not furnished by seller at the time of execution and delivery of this instrument, in such an event no further continuation shall be furnished by seller.

It is agreed that the seller may obtain a loan upon the real estate herein described, secured by mortgage, at any time during the term of this contract, and from time to time renew the same in such sum and for such period as seller may see fit, not to exceed the balance due on the unpaid balance of this contract. Should seller place a mortgage on said real estate and then fail to meet any payment of principal or interest, then the buyer shall have the right to make such payment or payments and deduct the same from the next payment or payments due the seller under this contract. Seller, however, agrees to pay said mortgage when due or whenever buyer desires to pay off this contract in full.

That the buyer's interest in this contract shall not be sold, assigned, nor otherwise transferred, nor any interest therein nor in said real estate, alienated or leased; nor said real estate occupied by others, nor shall any of the improvements thereon, or hereafter placed thereon be changed, removed, remodeled, or altered in any manner whatsoever, without the written consent of the seller.

That the buyer shall use said premises well and keep same in good repair, at expense of the buyer, and shall not commit waste thereon, and in the event of any breach and reentry by the seller, shall deliver up premises to seller in as good condition as same are now in or may be put in, ordinary wear and tear, ordinances and acts of God excepted. Buyer shall at all times use and maintain said premises in accordance with the laws, ordinances and regulations of the United States of America, the State of Indiana, and the City of Indianapolis. The seller shall have the right at any reasonable time to enter upon and in said premises for the purpose of inspecting same.

That as a part of the consideration, buyer expressly assumes all risk and responsibility for any accident, injury or damage to persons or property as to himself or others, in or about said premises and agrees to hold seller harmless from all liability therefrom.

That if any taxes, assessment or insurance premium be not paid when due, or if any installment of the purchase price or interest thereon, shall become delinquent for a period of Sixty (60) days, or if the buyer shall fail to observe or perform any other conditions or terms of this agreement, the seller may at his option cancell this agreement, take immediate possession of said real estate and remove the buyer or any other person therefrom without any notice or demand whatsoever, the necessity therefor being hereby expressly waived; and in the event of such cancellation, all payments theretofore made by the buyer shall be retained by the seller not as a penalty, but as liquidated damages for the breach of this agreement and in such event all rights and demands of the buyer shall cease and terminate and the buyer shall have no further right, title, interest or claim of any kind or character in or to the real estate described herein, or the legal or equitable title thereto or any of the benefits provided under the terms of this agreement. Failure or delay of the seller to exercise any option hereunder at the time of any default shall not operate as a waiver of the right of the seller to exercise such option for the same or any subsequent default at any time thereafter.

It is mutually agreed by and between the parties hereto that the time of payment shall be of the essence of this contract, that all of the covenants and agreements herein contained shall extend to and be obligatory upon the heirs, executors, administrators, successors, and assigns of the respective parties; that there are no representations respecting said real estate or the sale thereof except as in this agreement contained.

Further payments may be at anytime. Advance monthly may be madeas purchaser desires.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties have hereto set their hands and seals this 21st day of April, 1953

Getting your Decorations

The key to getting the awards you never received, or in replacing ones lost over the years, is your DEPARTMENT of DEFENSE FORM 214. This all-important piece of paper should have been given you at the time of your discharge or separation from active duty. The form should have been registered at the courthouse serving your place of permanent residence (when I got out of service, we had to do this within 15 days). If your DD 214 was registered, you can always get a copy of it by visiting or writing the courthouse where it was registered. Otherwise, you'll have to write the military records center in St. Louis to get a copy. On the DD Form 214 should be listed your medals and decorations. If you want the medals and awards that are listed on your DD Form 214, write to one of the following addresses and request them (they are free of charge):

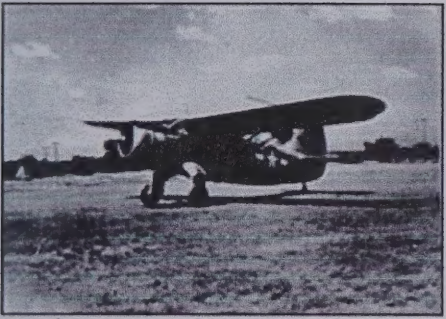
WWII Combat Europe
Liaison Pilots



A 3rd Air Commando Group Noorduyn C-64 "Norseman"

WWII produced another group of enlisted pilots, whose wings bore an "L" in the center, to fly light single engine liaison aircraft. Included were many enlisted aviation students who washed out of pilot training after having soloed and were given the opportunity to become liaison pilots. Flight training consisted of about 60 hours of flying time and stressed such procedures as short field landings and takeoffs over obstacles, low altitude navigation, first aid, day and night reconnaissance, aerial photography, and aircraft maintenance. Unarmored and unarmed--except perhaps for a .45 pistol or .30 carbine--these men in 28 different squadrons flew low and slow with wheels, skis, or floats. They flew varied and often hazardous missions in nearly every theater--medical evacuation from forward areas; delivering munitions, blood plasma, mail, and other supplies to front lines; ferrying personnel; flying photographic or intelligence missions; serving as air observers for fighters or bombers; and other critical yet often unpublicized missions.

The Twenty-Third Psalm

The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want.
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures:
He leadeth me beside the still waters.
He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake.
Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil:
for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies:
thou anointest my head with oil;
my cup runneth over.
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life:
and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

At one time there was a cabin on this site. It is on the northwest side of the railroad underpass. It is about one mile north of the intersection of Highways U.S 31 & U.S. 50 just east of Seymour, Indiana. Flossie May Brown and her sister Emma Rosella Brown were both born in this cabin. My mother was Flossie and she pointed out this site to me. Re: John David Brown. 9/16/2004 nine years, and he has resided during that time on White River, in Harrison Township about eight miles from Nashville. (Now Monroe City). When he was married he leased and moved on a tract of ground within three miles of where his father first resided when he came to the then territory, until 1865. Mr. C. said, in our interview, that the Indians were very troublesome when his father kept the ferry in 1817. They camped in that neighborhood, and every day were compelled to cross and recross them. Each day they had a new captain in charge of the squad, who was always compelled, under their rules or law, to keep sober, while the others were drunk, boisterous, and threatening. In that year, while the Indians had gone after whiskey one of the tribe went alone on a hunting expedition, and was lost; he killed a wild cat and cut a "photograph" of his catship on a beech tree - next morning, wandering about, he came to the river and followed the stream to the ferry and told his story. In 1857 the tree was still standing, and the cut of the cat perfectly visible. The Indians procured their whiskey from the man Huff, (whom the creek before mentioned was named after) who had a distillery on a small scale. They put their liquor in skin pouches - these pouches they called 'kegs'. Mr. C. was hard-working man in his early days - when it was absolutely necessary to clear the ground or starve. October 18, 1834 he took a lease on what was known as the Jennings land, and moved into a floorless cabin, with only two logs out by which one could enter - he cut out with an axe a door and chimney place, (he dispensed with the luxury of having window). The following day he procured some lumber and that night laid a floor. His plunder consisted of a straw bed, a bed containing only 15 pounds of feathers, three quilts, a yoke of oxen, heifer calf, seven head hogs, besides a family of three children. He was to have free use of the ground for seven years for clearing it. This was in October, and the same winter he and his wife began clearing - felling trees, cutting them up, and burning brush heaps and log piles. That winter they cleared 10 acres, and the following spring put the same under cultivation. He hauled wood to Brownstown, having cut the same at night. The following fall he took another lease for an additional 10 acres, cleared it up and thus continued until he and his better half had cleared 95 acres.

Week after week he did not enter his house from Monday morning until the next Saturday night, his wife returning to cook, when she brought to him his meals. He slept by the burning log poles at night, ate breakfast early and repaired to his accustomed labor. They lived on this place until 1852, when the agent of the land threw them out of doors. Success crowned his efforts after years of continued toil, when he purchased a farm in Jackson County, which he sold before moving to Knox County for $9,000. Mr. C is now the possessor of 485 acres of land in this county, and is in comfortable circumstances, notwithstanding all his adversities. Submitted by: Kenneth Cockerham

WRECKING OF LOG CABIN NEAR HELTONVILLE REVIVES TALE OF INDIAN FIGHTING

The wrecking of a log cabin last winter on the Charles White farm near Heltonville revived a tale of hardy pioneers fighting off an Indian raid on their wilderness home.

The log cabin was built about 1820 of hand hewn poplar, ash and walnut logs by Edmund Terrell. Some of the huge logs taken out of the old building this winter are still as good as the day there were put up, the present owner says.

Terrell himself, a native of Kentucky who came to Lawrence County a few years before 1820 was killed in the Indian raid.

His cabin stood beside an Indian trail that led from the white settlement at Leesville, several miles south, to an Indian camp near the headwaters of what is now called Henderson Creek.

At the time of the attack Terrell was working alone in the clearing near his house. A band of red men came up the trail, headed for the Indian village, and seeing that he was alone, attacked him. After killing and scalping him, they turned toward the house.

Terrell's wife, Sally, and a daughter about 12 were the only other members of the family at the cabin. They bolted the door and Mrs. Terrell hid the girl behind some barrels and climbed upstairs.

The Indians began to batter the door. As she heard the heavy oak planks give way Mrs. Terrell leaped up from the upstairs window with a feather bed wrapped around her. She ran across the field while the Indians stood in awe, watching the cumbersome creature run. Finally some of the more adventurous braves loosed their arrows. Mrs. Terrell was wounded but managed to escape.

The savages entered the cabin, found the girl, and carried her away with them. The girl was barefooted and the trail was rough and flinty. Her feet were soon bleeding from the cuts of the stones. The Indians prodded her heels with sharpened sticks when she began to lag. At last she could stand no more and collapsed on the trail.

Some of the girl's captor's were all for killing her right there, but the will of the older warrior, who favored taking her alive to the camp, prevailed. She was left with an old squaw who was ordered to doctor the girl's feet until she could be brought to the camp.

Alone with the squaw, the girl bided her time. One dark night when the old woman relaxed her vigilance the girl slipped away. She found her way back over the trail to her home where she joined her mother. She grew to womanhood in the cabin.

The bottom logs of the building rotted away in recent years, making it sag. The descendents of the Terrells used it to house their stock and feed.

At a point in e, some elementary classes e held at the property, now owned by Goldie Sutton. A Home Economics room was located on the corner of Norma Rudolph's property. Also, second and part of third grades were taught in the Odd-Fellows Lodge, which was located on the south section of the United Methodist Church property.

The location where the cafeteria now stands was, at one time, a Home Economics room, a choir room and a band room. That building burned in 1959.

The newer addition to the school was completed in 1959. Outside restrooms were used until 1961. The girls restroom was once an English classroom.

In 1964 Freetown High School incorporated with Brownstown, to form Brownstown Central Community School Corp. We have been fortunate to keep our grade school and maintain our high standards in learning.

During the years remodeling has taken place. In 1987 new windows were installed along with central air. There are seven classrooms, a library, lounge and an office in the present building.

Conseco Inc. outbids G.E. for Kemper

NEW YORK (AP) — Insurer nseco Inc. stunned GE Capital rp. today by outbidding it with a .2 billion purchase offer for mper Corp., a deal that would present one of the largest insurce mergers ever.

The $67 a share offer from rmel, Ind.-based Conseco comres with GE Capital's longstandg $60 a share offer, worth $2.4 billn, and could mark the start of a keover brawl for Kemper, a large oney management and insurance mpany in Chicago that has been eking other offers.

The Conseco bid also comes at a ime when GE Capital's parent eneral Electric Co. is preoccupied ith problems in its Kidder eabody investment banking broerage, where a bond trading scanl resulted in a top management shuffle on Tuesday.

A combined Conseco-Kemper ould create a life insurance giant with $85 billion of assets under management, $4.2 billion in revenue and 9,000 employees.

If the deal goes through, it would be the largest insurance company merger in memory, said analysts.

For Conseco, the acquisition would mean a major thrust into the mutual fund, money management and brokerage businesses. Kemper is the 7th largest mutual fund company, with 31 funds and $45.8 billion assets under management.

The company, based in Long Grove, Ill., also runs a full service stock and bond brokerage. Kemper is the tenth largest life insurance company.

Conseco is primarily a life and health insurance company, with $19 billion in assets. The Carmel, Ind.-based company performs money management services for its own investment portfolio and the portfolios of other insurance companies.

GE Capital declined through a spokesman to comment on whether it intended to raise the bid for Kemper.

The target company's stock price surged $4.25 a share this morning to $63.50 on the New York Stock Exchange. Conseco's stock rose 50 cents to $51.

Acquiring Kemper would allow Conseco to substantially boost fees from offering investment products and asset management services.

Beware of the warm weather rashes in the great outdoors

Now that warm weather is here, dermatologists offer advice on how to treat and avoid the rashes commonly associated with the summer and the great outdoors. The American Academy of Dermatology has prepared a list of the most common warm weather rashes and the best methods of treatment.

Prickly heat — While prickly heat, or heat rash, is most common in babies, adults can get it too, especially when the weather is hot and humid. The proper medical name for this rash is "miliaria." The tiny reddish pimples of prickly heat usually appear on skin folds in the crook of the arm, under the chin, on the chest or back, or on the back of the knee. The best cure, say dermatologists, is to stay cool and dry and avoid tight fitting clothing. Be sure to dry your skin thoroughly after bathing and dust on a talc-free cornstarch-based body powder before dressing.

Poison Ivy — Called "the scourge of the great outdoors," poison ivy, poison oak and poison sumac affects ten to 50 million Americans each year. It is the single most common cause of allergic reactions in this country. A sticky substance found in the leaves and stem of these plants sticks to clothing, gardening tools, sports equipment and even family pets, causing an allergic rash. The best treatment, if exposed, is to immediately wash all equipment (and yourself) with running water which neutralizes the sticky sap and prevents it from spreading. Avoidance is the best cure, but if you come down with the rash, which sometimes resembles insect bites but can also appear in a linear pattern, simple over-the-counter preparations will offer some relief. The rash should clear up in about 15 to 20 days.

Hives — Hot weather, exercise, stress and certain foods are the most common causes of hives. Raised bumps and large patches of red skin around them followed by itching are common symptoms of hives. This immediate reaction can last as long as four hours and take days to completely calm down. The best way to avoid hives is to avoid whatever triggers them. Dermatologists will sometimes prescribe antihistamines to bring this uncomfortable condition under control.

Ticks, scabies and other bugs — Hikers and campers should wear long-sleeved shirts and long pants to avoid Lyme disease, carried by the deer tick. This tick is most common in wooded areas and meadows. Ticks also transmit Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever. Care should be taken when removing ticks, to make sure the entire body has been completely removed. If exposed to a tick-borne disease, consult a physician imme-

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

Notice is hereby given that on the 5th day of July, 1994, at 7:00 p.m., a public hearing will be held before the Lebanon Board of Zoning Appeals in the Municipal Building in the City of Lebanon, Indiana, on the application of Dr. Phil Cascione for a use variance for the expansion of an existing parking lot, request for interpretation of the use variance previously granted to Dr. Cascione under Ordinance 88-12 and, in the alternative, a possible request for an additional use variance for a professional office center on the above described real estate, depending on the Board's interpretation of the previous Ordinance and if making said application does not waive applicant's appeal rights, all as specified in the Zoning Code of Lebanon, Indiana, and the Ordinances of Lebanon, Indiana, as existed and as may be amended.

The action proposed is for property located at 129 West Camp Street and 1125 North Lebanon, Boone County, Indiana, the legal description of which is described as follows:

Lot No. 13 and Lot No. 14 in Fairgrounds Addition to Lebanon, Indiana, and also, a strip of land fifty feet in width east and west in the southeast quarter of the southeast quarter of Section 25, Township 19 North, Range 1 West of the Second Principal Meridian, lying due west of Lots No. 13 and No. 14 in Fairgrounds Addition to the City of Lebanon, Indiana, also that portion of the street lying due west of Lot No. 13 and No. 14. Note: This description covers the two lots, the street in front of the two lots and the abandoned T.H.I.&E. Traction right-of-way. Note: #2. The street has now become a one-way street as the north end has been blocked off and an outlet to State Road #39 (Lebanon Street) is now using a part of the abandoned right-of-way.

The nature of the application is as follows:

A use variance is requested for the expansion of the parking lot located on the above described real estate; the Board of Zoning Appeals is requested to interpret the meaning of their grant of a variance to the applicant for a professional office center on the above described real estate in Zoning Ordinance 88-12; and the possibility exists that a reguest for additional use variance for a professional office center, on the above described real estate, may be made depending on the Board's interpretation of the Ordinance and if doing so does not waive applicant's appeal rights.

The Lebanon Board of Zoning Appeals has set said hearing at the time and place specified. Written suggestions or objections concerning this application may be filed with the Board or City Building Inspector, at or before such hearing and will be heard by the Board at the time and place specified. Interested persons desiring to present their views upon the application, either in writing or verbally, will be given the opportunity to be heard at the above mentioned time and place. Said hearing may be continued from time to time as may be necessary.

LCSC sets academic goals

At the annual Lebanon Community School Corporation (LCSC) School Board administrator retreat, planning for the 1994-95 school year was discussed.

The conversation centered around two major goals. The first goal, which the participants targeted, was the area of instructional time. It is widely accepted that in public education today, the time available in a uniform six-hour, 180-day year is an unacknowledged design flaw in the American system.

Educators in the Lebanon Schools recognize that learning is a prisoner of time and it is unreasonable to think our students can become part of a global society, learning as much as their counterparts abroad in only half the time.

There will be a major study beginning this fall in Lebanon Schools about the time restrictions. Educators know that the limitations for students' learning are defined by schedules for bells, buses and vacations, instead of standards for students and learning. The comprehensive study will examine the alternative calendar, length of the school day, block schedules and other time-related issues.

Each school will have a study committee in order to gain input from all those involved in the education of children. The data collected from the study will be presented to the School Board next spring with appropriate recommendations in allowing time to serve students.

The second goal generated from the planning session involved establishing multiple business partnerships so that community businesses and industries will become active participants in the education process in our schools. Participants echoed that with the current growth in Lebanon, quality education must ensure that our students are well-prepared for the challenges of the work force in our community. In addition, the Lebanon Schools must give future workers the necessary skills they will need to compete in the 21st Century work force. Educators indicated that many of our business leaders are very interested in forming new partnerships to benefit students and community.

Parents, community, and business leaders interested in becoming active partners in the decision making process are asked to contact the Administrative Offices at 482-0380.

T'town man warned by judge

Brian Toney, 28, 725 W. Pearl St., was sentenced Wednesday afternoon in Boone County Circuit Court for forgery, a Class C felony.

On May 23, Toney and his attorney Larry Giddings had entered a guilty plea. Toney was charged after he confessed to concocting a prescription for Vicodim on a prescription pad bearing the signature of Dr. Alexander Gat-

Judge Allen Wharry accepted the plea agreement Wednesday and sentenced Toney to two years in the Indiana Department of Correction, suspended and two years probation.

One of the standard requirements of probation is that Toney may not consume any alcoholic beverage or illegal drug unless prescribed by a licensed physician.

Graduates' Pledge

I solemnly pledge myself before God and in the presence of this assembly to practice my profession according to my ability and judgment.

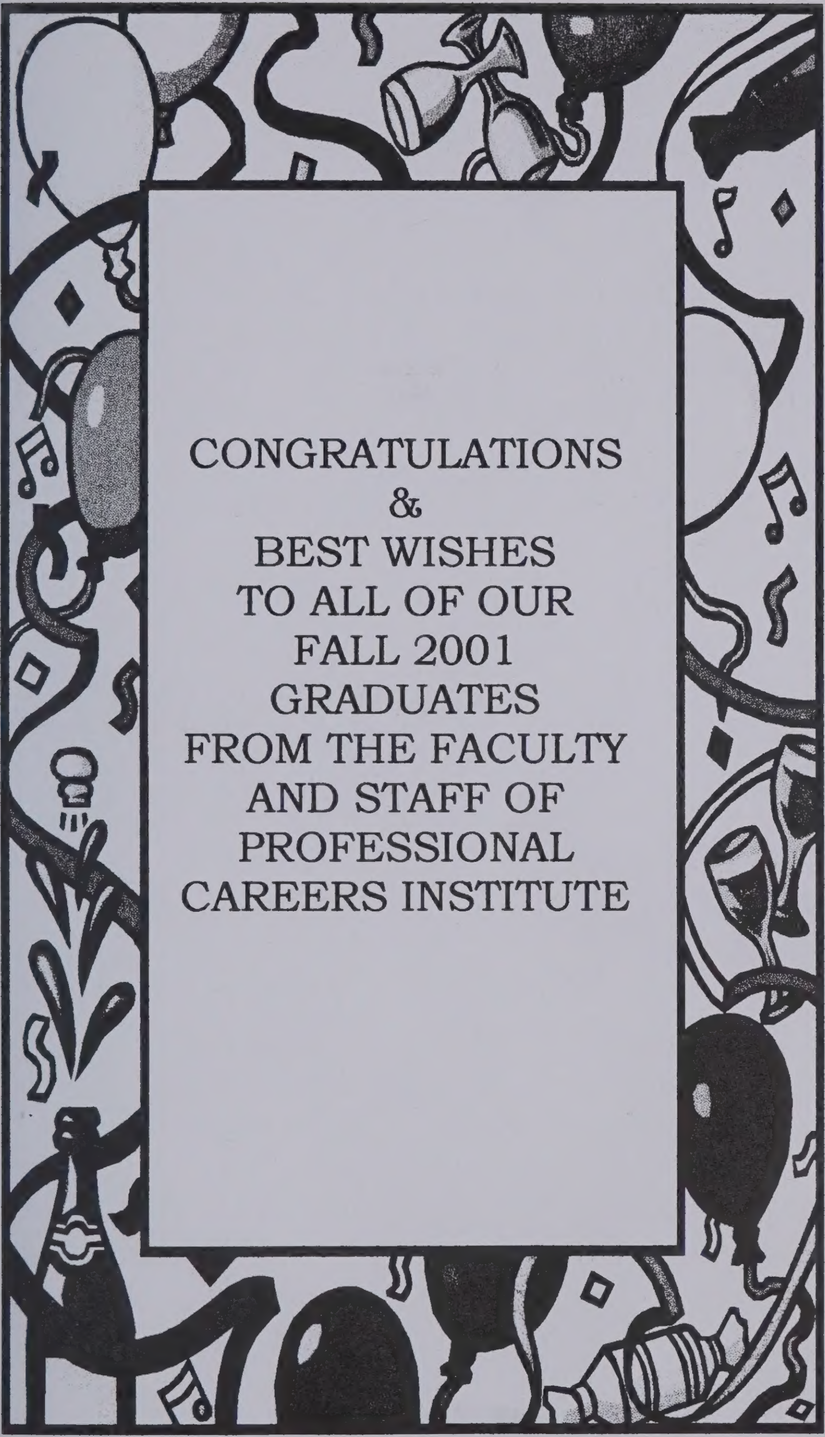
I will abstain from whatever is unethical and practice my profession faithfully.

I will do all in my power to maintain and elevate the standards of my profession in honor of those who imparted their knowledge to me.

I will hold in confidence all personal matters committed to my keeping and honor the ethics and moral standards in the practice of my profession.

With loyalty will I endeavor to serve the greater cause of all, and devote myself to the well-being and prosperity of my community.

While I continue to keep this oath, may it be granted to me to enjoy life and practice my occupation respected by all at all times.



CONGRATULATIONS

FORM W-2, U. S. Treasury Department, Internal Revenue Service Before payroll deductions*

DA - MILITARY - 4 PART

APPROVED BY THE INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE - 9 DEC 57

INSTRUCTIONS FOR FILING U. S. INCOME TAX RETURN

Who Must File.—If your income in 1958 was $600 or more ($1,200 if 65 years of age or over), or your self-employment income was $400 or more, you must file an income tax return. Forms may be obtained from the District Director of Internal Revenue, your employer, bank, or post office.

A single person with income of less than $600 ($1,200 if 65 years of age or over) should file a return to get a refund if tax was withheld. A married person with income less than her(his) own personal exemption(s) should file a joint return with husband or wife to get the smaller tax or larger refund. To assure any benefit of the split-income provisions, a married couple should file a joint income tax return.

Filing on Form 1040A.—Form 1040A may be used if your gross income (or the combined income of husband and wife) was less than $5,000 and consisted entirely of wages reported on Withholding Tax Statements (Forms W-2) and not more than $100 total of other wages, dividends, and interest.

If you file Form 1040A you may either compute your tax or let the Internal Revenue Service do it for you. A tax table is provided in Form 1040A instructions for this purpose. This table allows about 10 percent of your total income for charitable contributions, interest, taxes, casualty losses, medical expenses, and miscellaneous items. If you compute your tax any balance due must be paid in full with the return. If the Service computes the tax for you and there is an underpayment, a bill will be sent to you. In any case where there is an overpayment a refund check will be sent to you.

File Form 1040 Instead of Form 1040A if—(1) you had income from sources other than wages, dividends, and interest, (2) either husband or wife itemizes deductions, (3) you claim the status of head of household or surviving husband or wife, (4) you claim dividends received credit or retirement income credit, (5) you claim credit for F.I.C.A. (Social Security) employee tax because you had two or more employers who withheld a total of more than $94.50 (See notice on Copy B), (6) if you claim "Sick Pay" exclusion for an amount included in your wages, or (7) you claim deductions for travel, transportation, or "outside salesmen" expense.

Form 1040 may be used by all taxpayers. It will generally be to your advantage to use Form 1040 if your deductions amount to more than 10 percent of your income.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO ALL TAXPAYERS

Mail this return to the Indiana Gross Income Tax Division, 141 South Meridian Street, Indianapolis 13, Indiana. Do not fail to indicate in the proper square at the top of this return whether this is an annual or a quarterly return. Also indicate the kind of taxpayer for which the return is being filed, whether an individual or a corporation, partnership or other type of organization.

Returns for individuals must show the full name, address, and social security number, if any, of the taxpayer. Returns for corporations, partnerships, and joint ventures must show the correct name and address of the organization for which the return is being filed. Returns for corporations must be signed by an officer of the corporation. If this return covers the payment of delinquent taxes only, substitute the year applicable for the year shown at the top of this form, in addition to indicating the period for which gross income is being reported. Delinquent taxes for years prior to 1955 should be reported on Form 13.

C O P Y

KEEP THIS COPY FOR YOUR OWN RECORD

The Gross Income Tax Act requires that information returns, Forms 12-A and 11-A, be filed on all employees to whom wages or salaries in excess of $100 were paid in 1958 unless the gross income tax was withheld by the employer.

INFORMATION FOR TAXPAYERS

Returns are required to be filed for any quarterly period in which the taxpayer's liability, exclusive of any tax withheld, exceeds $25.00. The quarterly periods end on March 31, June 30, and September 30, respectively. The final date of payment for each quarter is the last day of the month following the end of the quarter. No quarterly return is to be filed for the last quarter of the year, since EVERY TAXPAYER IS REQUIRED TO FILE AN ANNUAL RETURN COVERING HIS INCOME FOR THE ENTIRE YEAR, TAKING CREDIT FOR ANY TAX WITHHELD AND FOR PAYMENTS MADE FOR ANY QUARTER DURING THE YEAR.

In preparing this return insert the amount of your entire gross income, taxable and nontaxable, received during the year, in the proper lines and in the columns applicable to the kind of gross income being reported. Add the amounts in each column on line 9.

Enter on line 10 in the proper columns any nontaxable income itemized in Schedule 2. Subtract the item in each column on line 10 from the total in the same column on line 9. Enter the difference between lines 9 and 10 in each column on line 11. This is your taxable gross income.

Read the instructions on exemptions and then enter the exemption to which you are entitled in the proper column on line 12. Subtract your exemption, line 12, from your taxable gross income, line 11, and enter the remainder on line 13.

On line 14 apply the rate shown at the head of each column to the amount of gross income shown on line 13 in the same column. Collect the figures in columns 1 and 2 on line 14 and enter the total on line 14 in column 4. This is your gross income tax liability for the period covered by your return.

If you are filing an annual return and have made payments during any quarter of the year, enter the quarterly payments on lines 15 to 17, and use line 18 if tax has been withheld or if there have been any other payments. Carry the total to column 4 on line 19. Subtract line 19 column 4, from line 14 column 4, and enter difference on line 20 column 4. This is the amount you owe on your return.

EXEMPTIONS. $1,000 is the maximum allowable annual exemption for ALL taxpayers. Natural persons, resident or nonresident, may take $1,000 exemption whether subject to the tax all year or not. Other taxpayers, created prior to, or during January 1958, may take $1,000 exemption for 1958, and those created after January 1958 may take exemption at $83.33 per month from date of creation until the end of the year, even if they terminate or withdraw before end of year. Quarterly exemption $250.

If paid after due date, insert on line 22 column 4, the amount of interest due. If the return is filed after the close of the tax-payment period, the proper penalty should be inserted on line 23 column 4. The totals of lines 20, 22, and 23 should be inserted on line 24 in column 4, and a remittance attached for the amount shown on line 24, column 4.

Taxpayers wishing additional information on the preparation of fiduciary returns should request Form 17-F from the Gross Income Tax Division. For general information concerning Gross Income Tax, request Form 5.

The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want.

He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: he leadeth me beside the still waters.

He restoreth my soul: he leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for his name's sake.

Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.

Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies: thou anointest my head with oil: my cup runneth over.

Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life; and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

Tuesday, Nov. 18, 1975

Donald E. Brown

Services for Donald E. Brown, 38, 5121 W. Morris, will be tomorrow at 2:30 p.m. in Conkle Lynhurst Funeral Home. He died yesterday in Veterans Hospital. Brown was a shear operator for Hugh J. Baker Co. nine years, retiring in April 1974. He was an Army veteran of the Korean War and a member of Disabled American Veterans and Eastside Trinity Gospel Tabernacle. Survivors — wife Lajuina; sons Donald, Ronald; stepson David Brooks Jr.; stepdaughter Miss Rogana Brooks; parents Mr. and Mrs. Orville Briner.

They are not lost who find the light of sun and stars and God.

Rest In Peace

Safely Home

I am home in Heaven, dear ones;
Oh, so happy and so bright!
There is perfect joy and beauty
In this everlasting light.

All the pain and grief is over,
Every restless tossing passed;
I am now at peace forever,
Safely home in Heaven at last.

Did you wonder I so calmly
Trod the valley of the shade?
Oh! but Jesus' love illumined
Every dark and fearful glade.

And He came Himself to meet me
In that way so hard to tread;
And with Jesus' arm to lean on,
Could I have one doubt or dread?

Then you must not grieve so sorely,
For I love you dearly still:
Try to look beyond earth's shadows,
Pray to trust our Father's Will.

There is work still waiting for you,
So you must not idly stand;
Do it now, while life remaineth—
You shall rest in Jesus' land.

When that work is all completed,
He will gently call you Home;
Oh, the rapture of that meeting,
Oh, the joy to see you come!

DONALD E. BROWN

I, DONALD E. BROWN, a resident of Indianapolis, Marion County, Indiana, being of sound and disposing mind and memory, do hereby make, publish and declare this to be my LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT, hereby revoking any and all former Wills and Codicils by me at any time made.

ITEM I

I direct that my just debts; all expenses of my last illness, funeral and burial, all expenses of the administration of my estate; all inheritance, estate and succession taxes, state and federal, imposed by reason of my death on, or measured by, any and all property and any and all transfers of property by this Will or otherwise either at or prior to my death; and all taxes so imposed on, or measured by, proceeds of insurance on my life, be paid as soon as they can conveniently and properly be paid by my Personal Representative, hereinafter named, out of such property belonging to my general estate as my Personal Representative shall determine. My Personal Representative shall not seek reimbursement from any legatee, devisee, owner or beneficiary for any taxes so paid unless the assets of my estate available for the payment of such taxes are insufficient for the purpose.

ITEM II

In the event my spouse, LAJUNIA BROWN, survives me and does not die within thirty (30) days after the date of my death, I give, devise and bequeath unto my said spouse, by title absolute and in fee simple, free and clear of all trusts, all of the rest and residue of my property, real, personal or mixed, of whatever nature and wherever situated.

ITEM III

In the event my spouse, LAJUNIA BROWN, predeceases me or dies within thirty (30) days after the date of my death, then, in either such event, I give, devise and bequeath, by title absolute and in fee simple, free and clear of all trusts, all of the rest and residue of my property, real, personal and mixed, of whatever nature and wherever situated to my mother, FLOSSIE MAY BRINER.

ITEM IV

In the event my mother, FLOSSIE MAY BRINER, predeceases me or dies within thirty (30) days after the date of my death, then, in either such event, I give, devise and bequeath, by title absolute and in fee simple, free and clear of all trusts, all of the rest and residue of my property, real, personal and mixed, of whatever nature and wherever situated to my children in equal shares. For information purposes, my present living children are: DONALD D. BROWN, RONALD L. BROWN, ROGANA BROOKS, and DAVID BROOKS.

ITEM V

I hereby constitute and appoint my spouse, LAJUNIA BROWN, as Executrix of this my LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT. I hereby give to my said Executrix full power and authority to compromise or otherwise settle and adjust any and all claims, charges, debts or demands against or infavor of my estate as fully as I could do if living. I further hereby give to my said Executrix full power to sell any or all of the property of my estate, either real or personal, and to make such sale or sales either at public or private sale, without petition to or order of any Court, without any appraisement, inventory notice or publication of notice, without bond or other formality, for cash or upon credit, or for part cash and upon part credit, and upon such terms and conditions and at such price or prices as my Executrix in its uncontrolled discretion, deems best; to execute deeds, assignments, proxies, and other instruments conveying or otherwise relating to the property of my estate; and to hold and retain any of such property which, in the uncontrolled discretion of my Executrix should be held and retained during the administration of my estate for subsequent sale or for ultimate distribution, in kind, as a part of the principal of my estate. The foregoing powers given to my Executrix are in addition to, and not by way of limitation of any and all powers now or hereafter conferred upon my Executrix by law.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I, have hereunto set my hand and seal at Indianapolis, Indiana, this ____ day of ______________, 1974.

Chicago (AP) — Soybean futures tumbled nearly 16c a bushel on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday, setting new lows in all options.

Soybean oil fell the allowable limit for one session, 1c a pound. Oil set several contract lows. New crop wheat also set new contract lows.

Wheat futures were down 10c a bushel, corn more than 4c and oats nearly 2c. Soybean meal fell $3 a ton.

Iced broilers lost a half cent a pound in a very lightly traded session.

Prices had been mostly irregular on the opening, but when the buying eased rather active selling took over. It appeared that when commercial interests and commission houses began to sell the buyer interest dried up. After the first 30 minutes of trade, the pace fell off considerably.

A dominant influence on the market was the big production figure expected in wheat, corn and soybeans. Final figures in wheat show a record already and the Agriculture Department

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Josie Morrow, a daughter, Mrs. Ella Cantrell of Gallatin, Tenn., and his son, Otis Morrow of Indianapolis. Friends may call after 4 p.m. Wednesday in Jacobs Brothers Westside Chapel.

Mrs. Nute Radford

Services for Mrs. Nute (Virginia) Radford, 62, recording secretary and organist for Emmanuel Unity Temple of Zion Inc., will be held at 10 a.m. Thursday in the temple, 2003 Hillside Avenue. Burial will be in New Crown Cemetery. Mrs. Radford, 1501 Samoa Street, died Saturday in Methodist Hospital. A native of Pineville, Ky., she had lived here 25 years. Friends may call at Emmanuel Unity Temple after 5 p.m. today. King and King Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements. Her husband survives.

R. Garman Jr., and a daughter, Mrs. Lona B. Turner, both of Indianapolis.

Donald F. Boots

Graveside services for Donald F. Boots, 43, San Jose, Calif., a former Indianapolis resident, will be held at 2 p.m. Friday in the Mausoleum Chapel at Oak Lawn Memory Gardens. He died Sunday at his home. He was a former design engineer for P. R. Mallory & Co. Born in Indianapolis, he lived here until moving to San Jose in 1963, when he became a design engineer for the International Telegraph and Telephone Corporation. Mr. Boots was an Army veteran of the Korean War. Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Barbara Boots; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Noble Boots of Indianapolis; seven sons, Bruce and Mark Boots of San Jose, and Larry, Brett, Joel, Andy and Jeff Boots of Seattle, Wash., and three stepsons, Glenn, Wayne and Roy Hobbs, all of San Jose. Smith Funeral Home at Carmel is handling arrangements.

James Tanner

James W. Tanner, 71, 439 West 28th Street, retired employe of the Naval Avionics Facility, died yesterday in his home. Born at Hanover, he lived in Indianapolis for 70 years and worked for the facility 30 years, retiring in 1973. He was a member of the Southern Cross Lodge, Scottish Rite, the Persian Shrine Temple and its band, and Mount Paran Baptist Church. Services will be held at 1 p.m. Friday in the church, with burial in Crown Hill Cemetery. Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Rebecca Tanner, and his daughter, Mrs. Mary Cashaw of Indianapolis. Jacobs Brothers Westside Chapel is handling arrangements.

Mrs. Lillian Martin

Mrs. Lillian F. Martin, 66, 3433 North Dequincy Street, widow of Frank W. Martin, died yesterday at home. A lifelong Indianapolis resident, she worked 40 years as a domestic for the Harold West family. She was a member of First Baptist Church of North Indianapolis, where services will be held at 1 p.m. Saturday, with burial in Crown Hill Cemetery. Friends may call after 3 p.m. Friday in Summers Northeast Chapel.

Grain

Chicago (AP) — Soybean futures tumbled nearly 16c a bushel on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday, setting new lows in all options.

Soybean oil fell the allowable limit for one session, 1c a pound. Oil set several contract lows. New crop wheat also set new contract lows.

Wheat futures were down 10c a bushel, corn more than 4c and oats nearly 2c. Soybean meal fell $3 a ton.

Iced broilers lost a half cent a pound in a very lightly traded session.

Prices had been mostly irregular on the opening, but when the buying eased rather active selling took over. It appeared that when commercial interests and commission houses began to sell the buyer interest dried up. After the first 30 minutes of trade, the pace fell off considerably.

A dominant influence on the market was the big production figure expected in wheat, corn and soybeans. Final figures in wheat show a record already and the Agriculture Department

DOW OFF 1.42

Stock Market Declines

New York (AP) —Profit takers cut short an early advance in the stock market yesterday and pushed prices down a bit from Monday's four-month closing peak.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average, up more than 5 points in the early going, finished with a 1.42 loss at 855.24.

LOSERS AMONG THE 1,875 issues changing hands on the New York Stock Exchange outnumbered gainers 779 to 665.

Big Board volume rose to 20.76 million shares from 17.66 million Monday.

The session's strong opening was ascribed to continuing hopes for an agreement between New York and Washington leaders on plans to stave off a financial collapse of New York City.

The market seemed to turn cautious, however, at about the time reports reached Wall Street that the White House was expected to make an announcement later in the day relating to the city's situation.

GULF OIL WAS the day's most active issue, down ½ at 21¼ on 317,800 shares. A 201,800-share block traded at 21.

Xerox, also active, fell 2¾ at 49⅞, touching a new low for the year of 49⅝ along the way. The stock, widely held by investing institutions, has been under pressure lately since the company announced reductions on the rental prices of four of its copiers.

In addition, IBM filed suit recently charging Xerox with infringement on some IBM photocopier patents.

STOCK PRICES also moved lower on the American Exchange and over-the-counter market

The Amex market value index dropped 0.20 to 85.40, with losers among the 966 stocks traded outnumbering gainers 353 to 284. Volume was 1.81 million shares.

Prices of bonds and notes issued by New York City, New York State and the Municipal Assistance Corporation climbed for the fourth consecutive trading session in anticipation of Federal aid to the city.

OTHER MUNICIPAL issues were mostly steady in quiet trading.

Corporate bond prices lost ground, largely a reflection of a heavy new supply of issues coming to market this week which traders say could be hard to digest. Treasury bills edged up, but other Federal government issues declined.

Auto Fabrics Turned Into Stylish Clothes

The Ford Motor Company's high fashion show, originally put on at the company's 1976 preview of new models and presented in several cities before a nondealer audience, delighted members of the Indianapolis Press Club and their friends yesterday.

The noon style show presented 11 different creations, all made from fabrics and leather used in Ford's 1976 cars.

NANCY KENNEDY, fashion editor of Ford Times and Continental magazines, told the audience, "Today's Ford interiors are in the mainstream of fashion and the look today in fashions and home is for soft, rich fabrics whether in bold plaids, rich velvety velours or supple real leather."

Five models, three women and two men, displayed the clothing, which included a real leather cape in lipstick red, the material used as an accent strip on the Mark IV and the Thunderbird.

The plaid dinner dress modeled was made from a Halston Original pattern in Deering-Milliken Alpine cloth. Miss Kennedy said that this fabric is available in four color combinations in the Pinto, Mercury Bobcat, Maverick and Comet. One of the creations was made from houndstooth-like checked fabric, a material available in both the Pinto and the Bobcat. The color combination is red, black and white.

The entire group of costumes and leather styles was made from McCall's Patterns. An over-the-shoulder bag was

Manufactured Housing Seen Key To Need

Manufactured housing is the solution to the national housing problem at a time when the average American family cannot afford to buy a home, John Martin, president of Manufactured Housing Institue, said at a briefing for members of the media, government and financial community yesterday.

Only about 15 per cent of American families can afford single family homes, according to a survey taken recently by Paine Webber Inc. of New York.

IT ALSO WAS pointed out that, while site-built construction costs have soared, manufactured housing producers have been able to hold the line on rising costs during the inflationary period and still produce quality homes at

DOW OFF 1.42

Stock Market Declines

New York (AP) —Profit takers cut short an early advance in the stock market yesterday and pushed prices down a bit from Monday's four-month closing peak.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average, up more than 5 points in the early going, finished with a 1.42 loss at 855.24.

LOSERS AMONG THE 1,875 issues changing hands on the New York Stock Exchange outnumbered gainers 779 to 665.

Big Board volume rose to 20.76 million shares from 17.66 million Monday.

The session's strong opening was ascribed to continuing hopes for an agreement between New York and Washington leaders on plans to stave off a financial collapse of New York City.

The market seemed to turn cautious, however, at about the time reports reached Wall Street that the White House was expected to make an announcement later in the day relating to the city's situation.

GULF OIL WAS the day's most active issue, down ½ at 21¼ on 317,800 shares. A 201,800-share block traded at 21.

Xerox, also active, fell 2¾ at 49⅞, touching a new low for the year of 49⅝ along the way. The stock, widely held by investing institutions, has been under pressure lately since the company announced reductions on the rental prices of four of its copiers.

In addition, IBM filed suit recently charging Xerox with infringement on some IBM photocopier patents.

STOCK PRICES also moved lower on the American Exchange and over-the-counter market

The Amex market value index dropped 0.20 to 85.40, with losers among the 966 stocks traded outnumbering gainers 353 to 284. Volume was 1.81 million shares.

Prices of bonds and notes issued by New York City, New York State and the Municipal Assistance Corporation climbed for the fourth consecutive trading session in anticipation of Federal aid to the city.

OTHER MUNICIPAL issues were mostly steady in quiet trading.

Corporate bond prices lost ground, largely a reflection of a heavy new supply of issues coming to market this week which traders say could be hard to digest. Treasury bills edged up, but other Federal government issues declined.

LEGAL NOTICE
PUBLIC HEARING

Notice is hereby given that a public hearing will be held at 7:00 p.m. on Thursday, December 18, 1975, in the Eastlawn Wesleyan Church, 3400 North Post Road at Indianapolis, Indiana, for purpose of discussing currently proposed design plans for an improvement and upgrading of Post Road, located on the East side of the City of Indianapolis, in Marion County. Federal and State Relocation Assistance Programs and tentative timetables for right-of-way acquisition and construction will also be reviewed.

The proposed project begins approximately 80 feet north of Roy Road, then extends in a northwardly direction for a gross distance of approximately 1.64-miles, along the existing alignment of Post Road, and terminates at a point approximately 435 feet north of East 38th Street. As proposed, existing Post Road will be reconstructed to a total width of 64 feet, which will consist of two 12-foot Northbound lanes and two 12-foot South bound lanes separated by a 16-foot median with left turn lanes and median crossovers provided for all streets entering Post Road, except Neptune Drive and Fontenac Road. An average right-of-way width of approximately 110 feet will be required for construction of the proposed project.

Highway Commission personnel along with Indianapolis Department of Transportation Representatives, will be available on the date of the hearing from 2:00 P.M to 5:00 P.M. in the Eastlawn Wesleyan Church for individual explanations and relevant discussions with any interested citizen.

Detailed plans, a draft negative environmental declaration and draft design study report, along with written comments and views received from any source relative to the proposed project, are publicly available for inspection and copying at any time in the Drafting Room of the Indianapolis Department of Transportation, Room 2342, City-County Building, Indianapolis, Indiana, and in Room 1205 of the Indiana State Office Building, 100 North Senate Avenue, Indianapolis. Give away location sketches are on hand in the same offices.

All interested parties are invited and urged to be present or represented at either or both sessions of the meeting, including spokesmen for Federal, State, and local governmental agencies; agricultural, commercial, industrial, business, transportation, and utilities interests; civic, social, economic, environmental, and ecological concerns; and private citizens or property owners. All parties will be afforded full opportunity to express their views and furnish specific data on matters pertinent to the project.

Written statements and exhibits will also be accepted for purpose of the official record in the Office of the Indiana State Highway Commission's Planning Information Manager at the aforementioned Indianapolis address any time from this date and for a period of two weeks following the public hearing, or may be handed to the presiding officer at the meeting.

This notice is published in compliance with Title 23, U. S. Code, Federal Road Acts of 1958, and the Federal Highway Administration's Federal-Aid Highway Program Manual, Volume 7, Chapter 7, Section 5, dated December 30, 1974, and the Indiana State Highway Commission's approved Action Plan.

5 In Memoriams

ALLISON—In loving memory of
WILLIAM M. ALLISON
Who passed away Nov. 19, 1973.
The pearly gates were opened,
A gentle voice said, "Come."
And with farewells unspoken,
He gently entered home.
You left me a beautiful memory,
But a sorrow too great to be told.
To me who loved you and lost you
Your memory will never grow old.
—Wife Juanita

ELDER—In loving memory of LEONA R. ELDER
Who passed away Nov. 19, 1972.
Our eyes are dimmed with tears at times,
We cannot see your loving fac
But memory is a gift of God, that even death cannot erase.
And someday when this life is past, and time shall be no more,
We hope to see you up in heaven, and live with God forevermore.
Sadly missed by,
—Son, Daughter-in-law and Grandson, Phil, Joan and Chuck Elder

HARRISON—In loving memory of,
ROY HARRISON SR.
Who passed away Nov. 19, 1972.
Sunshine passes, shadows fall,
Love's remembrance outlasts all,
Though the years be many or few,
They are filled with remembrance dear of you.
—Sadly missed by Wife

VINCI—In loving memory of
FRANK J. VINCI
Who passed away Nov. 19, 1972.
Sweet memories still linger forever.
Time cannot change them 'tis true,
Years that come cannot sever.
Our loving remembrance of you.
—Wife and Children

The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want.

He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: he leadeth me beside the still waters.

He restoreth my soul: he leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for his name's sake.

Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.

Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies: thou anointest my head with oil: my cup runneth over.

Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life; and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

wants him to call and straighten out the report.

The owner is reluctant to leave his car. "What if some dude drives it off while I'm off calling?" He solves the problem by taking a hand full of wires off the motor.

After the call to the auto desk, the car is released to the owner.

Back in service at 8:02.

In one alley there is a car with the hood and trunk open. It is parked at an odd angle.

Several police cars arrive on the scene. Officers check the house. The doors are locked and there is no sign of forced entry.

Neighbors are peeking from behind curtains.

Two men loading a stereo into the trunk of a car across the street are checked out. They have a receipt for the stereo and they are taking it in for repairs.

At 10:16 — In service.

At 10:37 — "See the woman. It's the scene of a previous burglary run.

MAY - 8 2002

The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want.

He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: he leadeth me beside the still waters.

He restoreth my soul: he leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for his name's sake.

Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.

Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies: thou anointest my head with oil: my cup runneth over.

Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life; and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want.

He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: he leadeth me beside the still waters.

He restoreth my soul: he leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for his name's sake.

Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.

Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies: thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.

Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life; and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

Miss Me, But Let Me Go

When I came to the end of the road and the sun has set for me, I want no rites in a gloom filled room, why cry for a soul set free?
Miss me a little, but not too long and not with your head bowed low.
Remember the love that we once shared,
Miss me - but let me go.
For this is a journey that we all must take and each must go alone. It's all a part of the Master's plan, a step on the road to home.
When you are lonely and sick of heart, Go to the friends we know, and bury your sorrows in doing good deeds,
Miss me - but let me go.

A death has occurred and everything is changed by this event. We are painfully aware that life can never be the same again, that yesterday is over, that relationships once rich have ended. But there is another way to look upon this truth. If life went on the same without the presence of the one who has died, we could only conclude that the life we here celebrate made no contribution, filled no space, meant nothing. The fact that this individual left behind a place that cannot be filled is a high tribute to this individual. Life can be the same after a trinket has been lost, but never after the loss of a treasure.

Terry Lee Butler
Indianapolis, died suddenly on Wednesday, September 23, 2009. Born November 24, 1941 to William and Helen Butler, Terry married high-school sweetheart, Sara Ellen Gilson, 48 years ago.

Whether it was grocery shopping or Colts games, Terry and Sara were together. As past President of Haverford Little League, he and Sara coached their daughters in softball at a time it was hard to get volunteers for girl's sports – and continued with his granddaughter's team. He was CYO football coach for his son's team at Christ the King.

A 1959 Lawrence Central graduate and Air Force veteran serving with Intelligence in cryptology, he worked for almost 2 decades at Chrysler as a machinist. After several positions at local tool and die shops, he retired from Reeder and Kline. Quiet and helpful, he was the neighborhood handyman – clearing snow and doing odd jobs. A natural green thumb who loved fishing, camping and the ocean, he was on the All Star Bowling League and a NASCAR fan.

Terry's grieving survivors include his dear Sara; daughters, Jennifer Lynne Russell, Amy Leigh Carpenter; son, Douglas Gilson Butler (Donna); siblings, Clarence, James and William, Sheila Burton and Starr Butler; grandchildren, Eric Joseph Russell, Alexis Marie and Terry Allen Carpenter, Tyler Gilson, Jack Douglas, Samuel Joseph and Ethan Thomas Butler and one great-grandchild.

"Papaw" had amazing reservoirs of patience, always enjoying the antics of his family and pets. His unconditional love will be missed by all. Terry continued his giving ways by being a donor.

Services: 11:00 a.m. Monday, September 28 at Flanner & Buchanan Funeral Center-Broad Ripple, Calling: 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday, September 27, Entombment: Lincoln Memory Gardens in Whitestown, IN.

In Loving Memory
Kimie Asatomi Coleman
Aug. 16, 1935 – Sept. 26, 2008
It is unbelievable that it has been a year since out beautiful Oriental Lady – Wife, Mother, Grandmother – passed away from our lives, but not from our hearts.
It seems like only yesterday that she mentored, nurtured and cared for us.
Her presence and love will live in our hearts forever.
She was the light of our lives.
Words we shared will ring in my heart always, "Don't you know, I have fallen in Love with you, for the rest of my whole life through?".
Much Loved – Constantly Missed

Sept. 26, 1970- Aug. 15, 2006
Nothing could be more beautiful than the memories we have of you. To us you are someone special, God must have thought so too. All our lives we will miss you, though the years may come and go. But in our hearts you will live forever,
Because we love you so.

Rayford Titus Blankenship

68, of Greenwood, In died Thursday, September 24, 2009. Ray was born to the late Troy and EluaMae Marks Blankenship in Loretta, TN on April 20, 1941.

After working in the field of Personnel Management and labor law, he founded Blankenship and Associates, a Greenwood labor and employment law company still in operation today by his son, Jim Blankenship. Ray received national attention for his work fo over 40 years in Labor law and became known among the unions as a professional union buster. Representing numerous large companies through negotiations and labor disputes he earned a reputation of being one of the best in the business. He was featured on the Good Morning America show as one of the most difficult labor specialist in the United States to defeat. His love for aviation continued and he did much of his business travel in a private plane.

Over the years he owned several twin engine airplanes, which he also enjoyed flying recreationally.

Alternative proposed for Lutherans

New 'free-standing synod' is advocated for foes of ELCA's same-sex policy

By Robert King
robert.king@indystar.com

The leader of a reform group within the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America said the denomination had "fallen into heresy" because of its acceptance of same-sex relationships, but he stopped short of calling for the formation of a new Lutheran church.

Instead, Rev. Paull Spring called upon more than 1,200 reformers meeting Friday in Fishers to form a new "free-standing synod" that he defined as an "alternative form of church."

Exactly what that will look like is a "work in progress," Spring said, but it will be a body of Lutherans, some still in the denomination, some outside it, who share a traditional view of marriage and biblical interpretation.

"I've had some difficulty describing it to others," he said.

The gathering of reformers, known as Lutheran CORE (Coalition for Reform), came together in response to the ELCA's decision last month to allow Lutherans in same-sex relationships to serve as clergy and to open the door to blessings of same-sex unions.

Spring said the "free-standing synod" would involve churches, reform groups and individual Lutherans who object to the new policy on gays.

Like himself, Spring said, many will have "paper-thin" relationships with the denomination, choosing to stay with their local church but making no contributions to Evangelical Lutheran Church in America.

But the new synod, whose constitution will be up for vote today, will help form new churches, train and assist pastors and engage in mission work — on its own.

He said he would not rule out a more complete break from the ELCA in the next two to five years.

Spring, who received a standing ovation from the crowd of Lutherans from 44 states at Holy Spirit Catholic Church in Geist, minced no words.

"God is calling us to do something," he said. "The ELCA has fallen into heresy."

Robert and Carol Larson, both in their 70s and lifelong Lutherans from South Bend, said they were "sorely disappointed" by the denomination's move on same-sex marriage.

Carol Larson's family has been part of the Lutheran Church since arriving from Sweden in the 19th century. Yet she expressed a "sinking feeling" about the future of the church.

"We just don't understand why the leadership did this," she said.

Don Boden, 54, Greenfield, was "very disappointed" in a decision that he said essentially declassifies a sin.

"I think it was a step away from biblical teaching," Boden said. "The church doesn't want to take a stand and is leaving it up to each individual. And I feel it's wrong."

Jesus was an opener of doors for all

Tom Ehrich

NEW YORK

Still wrestling with fatigue from a three-day business trip, I made the 13-block walk to the Church of St. Paul & St. Andrew, on Manhattan's Upper West Side, where my wife's English as a Second Language class was holding an end-of-term party.

I was greeted by Julia, an exuberant Salvadoran who, a year ago, could barely speak four words of English. Now she has a regular job that requires her to speak English, and she's planning to pursue a master's degree in teaching.

Then it was my turn to learn. She led me onto the dance floor, demonstrated merengue, the national dance of the Dominican Republic, and another Dominican dance called bachata. And off we went.

When I returned from my trip, waited in a taxi line managed by a surly attendant and made the bleak drive across Queens to Manhattan, I wondered to myself, "Why would anyone live here?" The party reminded me why.

Even as large sections of America turn viciously against immigrants and look for ways to deny them access to prosperity, New York maintains an open door.

In a city less tolerant (and welcoming) than New York, they might be scorned and excluded and viewed as a threat to "real Americans," just as earlier waves of immigrants were greeted with nativism on their arrivals.

Jesus, however, was an opener of doors. In a world where rules, borders and exclusions mattered intensely to people, Jesus cut through the scorn and superiority and welcomed all to his presence, especially the "last," the "least of these" and "little children."

Even though it was clearly against the will of God, as his people understood that will, he touched the untouchable and cast his lot with outcasts, sinners and the weak.

It is bizarre when modern Christians join this anti-immigration hysteria, trying to resurrect the very exclusions that Jesus broke through and then claiming to do so as Bible believers and true Christians.

Not only should door-closers read the Gospels, they should come to a party where people shout encouragement, speak proudly of former homes and rejoice in the promise of this new home.

Our library contains over 400 family histories ranging from manuscripts of only a few pages to large volumes which have been donated by researchers. JCGS is always eager to have patrons add their family histories to our collection.

Also available are extensive Jackson County records including census, birth, death, marriages and funeral homes. Many books and records are available for other Indiana counties and U. S. states.

HISTORY OF JCGS

The Jackson County Genealogical Society is a non-profit organization founded in 1982 by people interested in preserving their heritage and family histories. The purpose of the society is to find, preserve, record and make available to the public any and all documents and records of genealogical value. Our goal is to aid researchers in the search for their ancestors, especially those with Jackson County connections. A quarterly newsletter is published and mailed to the nearly 300 society members. A major project of the society has been locating and listing all cemeteries in Jackson County. Other projects include the compiling of census, marriage, birth and death records for Jackson County. In 1997 we moved to our present location in Brownstown. All work is done by volunteers including the staffing of the library.

James R. Mills I have the Pension papers for James R. Mills, Indiana, Company G, 140th Infantry. This Mills family does not relate to my Mills and would be happy to make copies for a descendant of James R. Mills. I obtained this file some 20 years ago from the National Archives. Some data found in this file is: James R. Mills was born 18 Mar 1835 Randolph County, Indiana. James R. Mills married Jemima Griffen/Griffin 29 Mar 1862 Randolph County, Indiana, Washington Township. He has never been married before. In the 1898 Bureau of Pension questionnaire, James states the he has 5 living children: Cloe A. Mills, born 22 Jan 1865; Thomas
S. Mills, born 28 Sep 1867; Owen A. Mills, born 26 Aug 1870; Ora M. Mills, born 7 Sep 1877 and Oliver A. Mills, born 12 Oct 1880. James R. also states that after leaving the service he resided in Tipton and Noblesville, Hamilton County, Indiana. He died 24 Nov 1912. Source for this information is Marysue Eulitz at email address marysueeulitz@prodigy.net

Granville Pearson Service: Civil War, 140th Regiment, Company H. Granville Pearson, Indiana Union Civil War Soldier. According to National Archive Records: he originally tried to join the 141st Regiment Indiana Volunteer Infantry but since it never completed, was transferred to the 140th Regiment, Company H, Indiana Volunteer Infantry. He was 20 years 2 months 14 days old at death. He died in battle at Nashville, Tennessee in 1863. He is listed as being buried in the Nashville National Cemetery but there is a Civil War headstone next to his parents in Indiana. He died 20 Jan 1865 at Nashville, TN according to headstone in Indiana. National Cemetery list has his death as Jan. 25, 1865. Headstone in Indiana has last name spelled PIERSON but his parent's last name is spelled PEARSON. He is buried beside his parents, James and Frances Pearson. KHS Mission Statement

The Kentucky Historical Society exists to engage all people in the discovery and interpretation of Kentucky's past.

The KHS Story

Since 1836, the Kentucky Historical Society has preserved and shared the history of the Commonwealth. Through onsite and offsite programming, KHS strives to reach and serve as many people and groups as possible within the state. The KHS community continues to expand through the KHS website and increased electronic access to the collections of the organization's library and research facilities.

Educational programs at KHS are based on a philosophy that learning about history should be an enjoyable experience for people of all ages. Both children and adults can take advantage of programs, materials, and services that increase awareness of and appreciation for Kentucky's heritage. All programs are kept free or low-cost.

The Kentucky History Center

This $29 million, 167,000-square-foot building houses the headquarters of the Kentucky Historical Society. It features the Thomas D. Clark Library; the Stewart Home School 1792 Store; the Keeneland Changing Exhibits Gallery; the Brown-Forman Kentucky Room; educational and publications programs; the permanent exhibit, A Kentucky Journey; and The Cralle Garden. Opened in 1999, the facility serves as the state's official home for Kentucky history.

Place Your Mark on Kentucky's History—Buy a Brick on the Pathway Through History

The Pathway Through History is a special, one-of-a-kind place. It consists of inscribed bricks donated by citizens of Kentucky and beyond to commemorate their families, their roots, and their own place in Kentucky's history.

For those who have always wanted to become a part of Kentucky's storied past, the Pathway Through History at the History Center offers a wonderful opportunity. For a gift of $100, you can join the many men, women, and children who have left a mark for future Kentuckians.

Show your support and become a permanent part of the Kentucky History Center!

PLEASE NOTE: The Kentucky Historical Society Foundation, Inc., is a 501(c)(3) organization. Gifts are tax-deductible as permitted by law.

How Will My Donation Be Used?

After deducting the costs of engraving and installing your brick, every dollar of your contribution will be used to benefit the programs and activities of the Kentucky Historical Society.

Location of Your Brick

The Pathway Through History is located in two places at the History Center:

- Entrance pathway
- Garden park

You may select either site for your brick on the tear-off order form in this brochure. You will receive advance notification of the next scheduled installation should you wish to be on hand for the event.

To Order Your Brick

Fill out the tear-off order form and mail it with your check to the Kentucky Historical Society Foundation, 100 West Broadway, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

Certificate of Ownership

For each brick you buy, a Certificate of Ownership will be sent to you, or to whomever you designate, once the order has been processed.

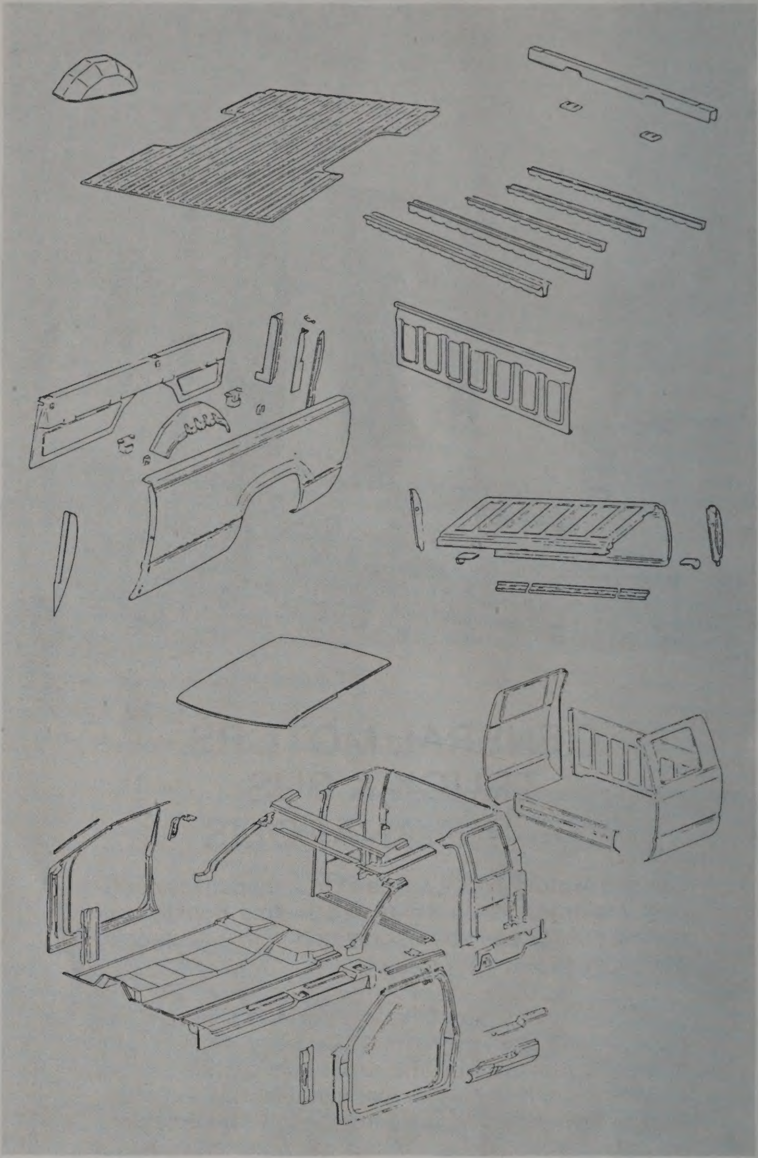
GENERAL MOTORS TRUCK & BUS OF INDIANAPOLIS

General Motors Truck & Bus of Indianapolis is confident the information contained in this booklet will permit you to become acquainted with our people, our facilities and our products.

In 1930 with the purchase of the Martin-Parry Carriage works, General Motors gradually replaced the original buildings with the expanded facilities in the present 2.1 million square foot metal fabricating plant. During the years we have continuously manufactured truck body components. No other automotive metal fabricator has produced the same product in the same plant for this length of time.

Also General Motors has attained an excellent reputation for active community involvement. Our people assist the efforts of local and state governments, youth and sports groups, schools and other civic and professional organizations.

The plant site occupies 98 acres.



Truck & Bus Indianapolis is a supplier of major sheet metal components for many Chevrolet and GMC trucks built in the United States, Canada and Mexico. The parts shown here are typical of our product line.

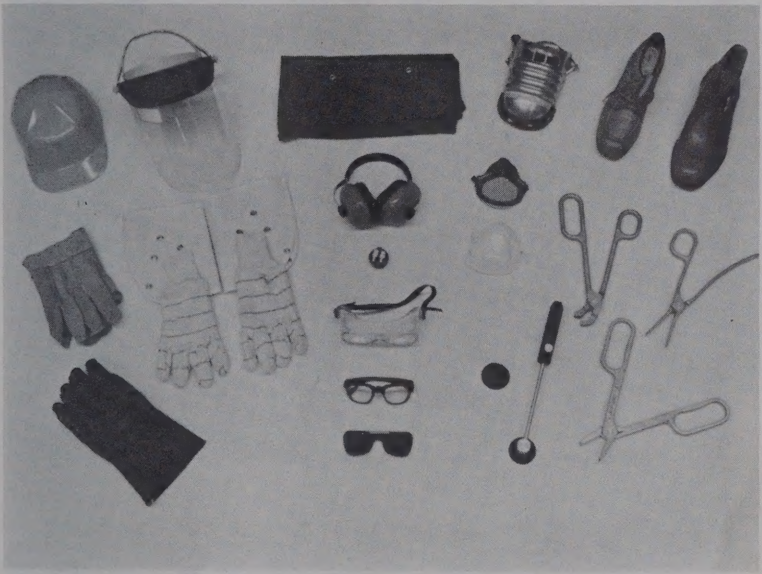
Powering our plant required 113 million kilowatt hours of electricity last year.

Since the Fall of 1972 and with the introduction of a completely restyled truck in 1987, the Indianapolis Plant has produced the equivalent of over 1 million trucks per model year.

Our men and women represent a typical cross section of the Hoosier Heartland. We commute from all surrounding counties, some as far as 70 miles, while others live within a few city blocks and arrive on foot.

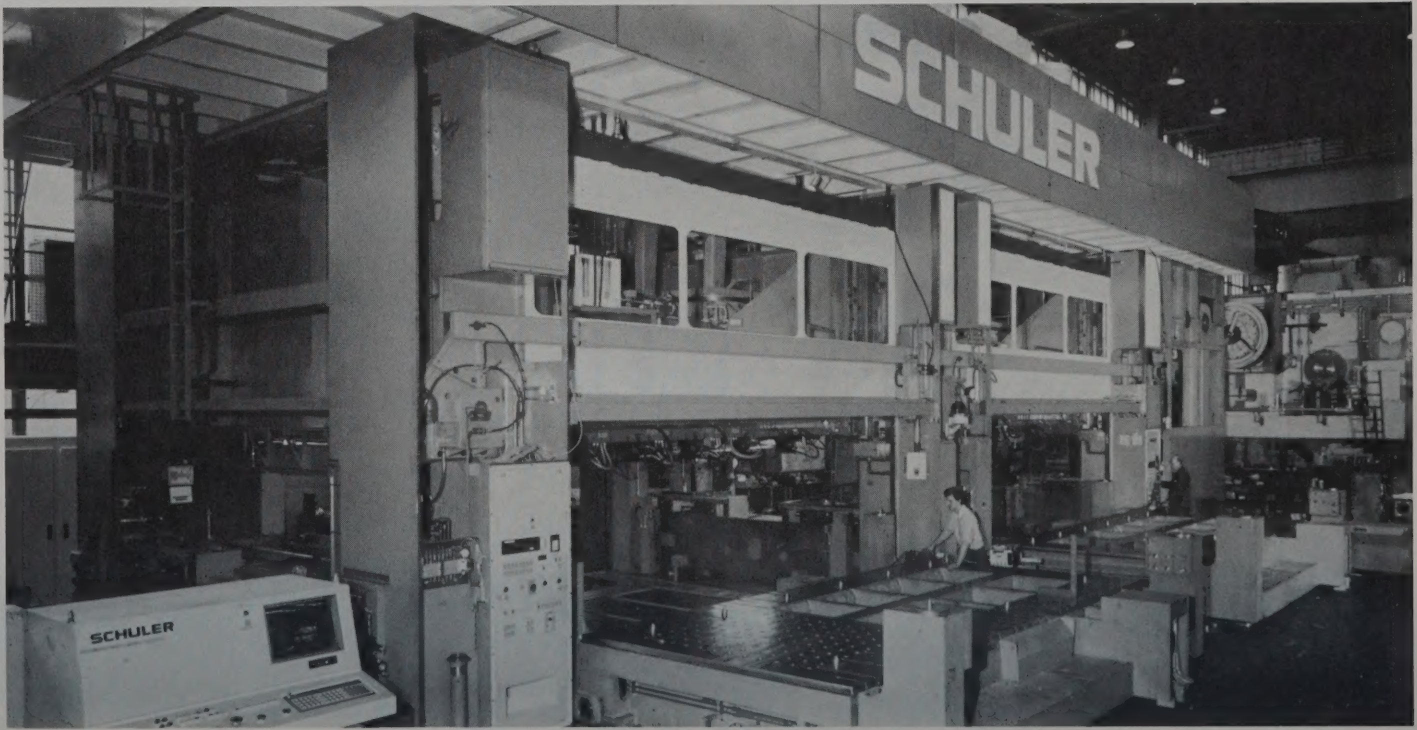
General Motors is an equal opportunity employer. Female and minority group employes are represented in numerous facets of our organizational structure.

Throughout the years the plant has established many safety records. We have worked extensive hours without a lost time accident. Our employes are 29 times safer on the job than any other place. Safety glasses, hearing devices, heavy duty gloves and arm guards are furnished each employe. Specialized equipment is distributed where required. Safety shoes are offered for sale.



SAFETY
is important to
EVERYONE!

This giant press, one of the largest in the automotive industry, exerts a force of 4,000 tons on a sheet of steel to form a pickup box side inner panel.



SCHULER

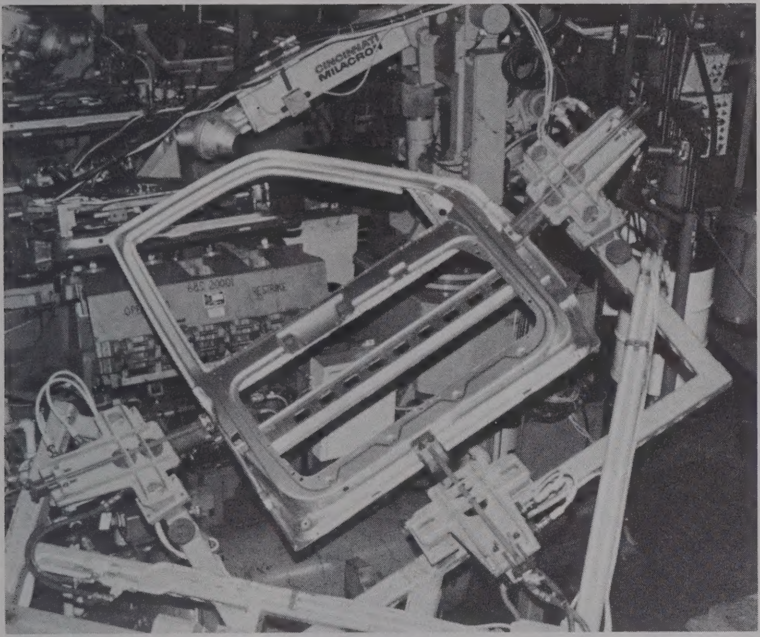
Automatic handling devices carry parts to each work station. Shown here is the process of joining doors using automated robotic equipment.

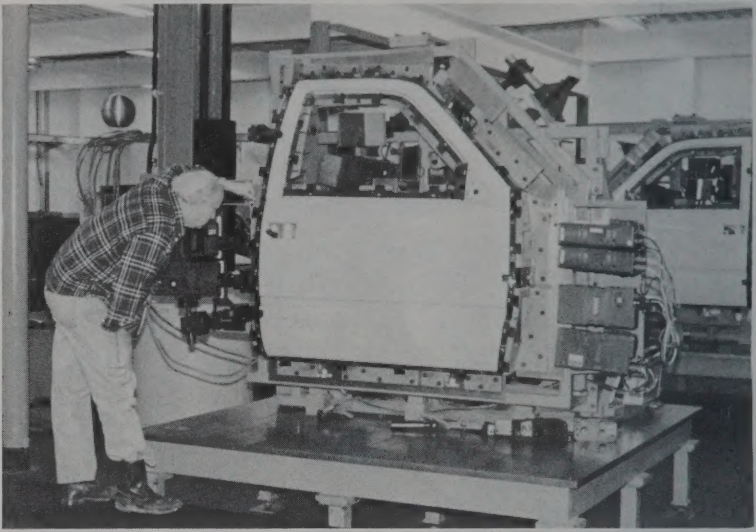


In addition to part handling, the robotic units are used to automatically apply sealants to improve rust corrosion protection.

1350 tons of steel are used daily in our stamping process.

Over 160 individual spotwelds are required to assemble a FLEETSIDE ASSEMBLY, thus insuring complete rigidity and integrity.

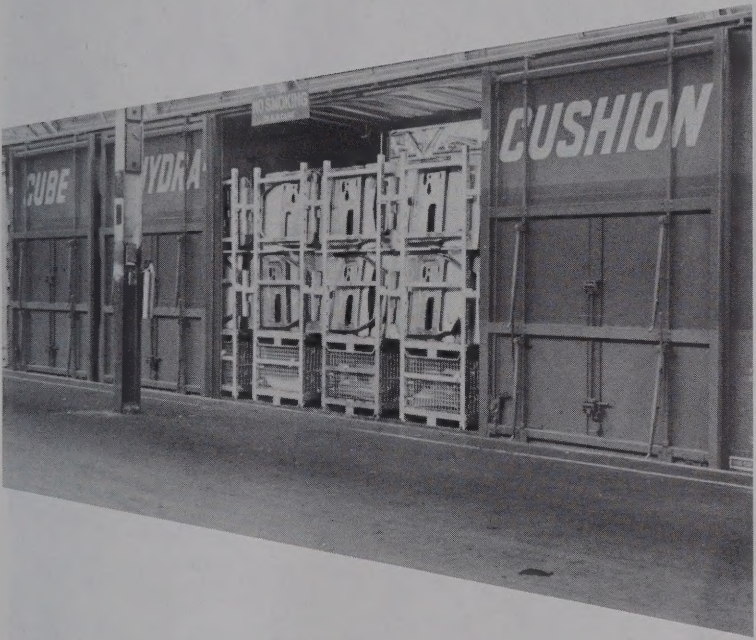
Control of quality is an integral and ongoing process in the manufacture of truck components. Here a door is checked by an inspector for adherence to critical dimensions.



A material handling device enables an operator to deftly handle and stack a 185 pound truck floor assembly for shipment.

85% of our annual 200,000,000 gallon water requirement comes from our own wells and much of this is recycled many times.

High-cube boxcar loads of sheet metal parts are shipped each day from our Distribution Center to various locations for assembly into finished vehicles. A nationwide computer system links all manufacturing and assembly plants so that the correct parts are available at the moment your custom ordered vehicle is being assembled.



Sheet metal parts are conveyed from the plant to the Distribution Center on a computerized Power and Free conveyor system.

An initial charge of 32,000 gallons of reservoir water is cooled and recirculated many times. 1,285,000 gallons of water are then circulated daily to cool all of our welders.

Every day 400 tons of trimmings and scrap steel from the stamping process is compressed into 300-pound bales and shipped to foundries for recycling into automotive castings. Nearly one mile of underfloor conveyors gather this metal and carry it to the Baler Building.

The Indianapolis Plant is actively involved in the preservation of our environment. A 300,000-gallon capacity clarifyer removes pollutants from our run-off water.

130 battery-powered forklift trucks, 67 material handling vehicles, 151 hand-operated transporters, 12 die handler trucks, and 960 batteries are required for heavy lifting and moving chores.

Our in-plant cafeterias serve hot meals. Vending areas throughout the plant provide a variety of food and beverages.

Conveniently located parking lots accommodate over 3,000 employe vehicles.

A trained Fire Brigade is ready at all times to assist our Plant Security Forces in the event of an emergency.

A modern Medical Facility including X-ray room, operating room, whirlpool baths and clinical laboratory are available at all times.

205 stamping presses and many underfloor and overhead conveyors are used throughout the plant.

Employe education and training are important functions at Truck & Bus Indianapolis. The General Motors Institute, College-Graduate-in-Training, Pre-Supervisory Training, GM Graduate Fellowship Plan, Tuition Assistance Program, Apprentice and Employe-in-Training programs are designed for employe development.

A fully equipped auditorium is used for many training programs and employe awareness meetings. The latest in audio visual aids assists program moderators in displaying agenda items and for interactive employe involvement.

Annually Truck & Bus Indianapolis spends over $77,000,000 with approximately 700 suppliers located in the Greater-Indianapolis area.

The Truck & Bus Indianapolis payroll exceeds $139,000,000 annually.

Today's IDEAS
Light
the Way
for a Better
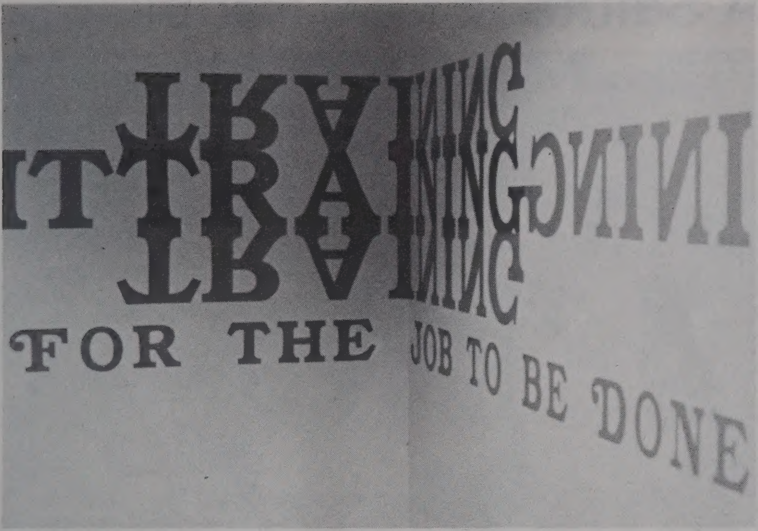
Tomorrow

Our suggestion plan, which is available to all employes, provides supplemental earnings of $25 up to $20,000 for accepted ideas.

Our plant is actively involved in community projects. Plant representatives oversee a number of programs as indicated here in an Applied Economics program at a local high school. Community involvement has always been one of our greatest assets.



As technology arrived, our plant was ready for the training of the job to be done. From robotics, to welding controls, to preventive maintenance, to positive leadership skills, the plant has involved itself in a massive educational program. The development and implementation of these necessary skills has been beneficial to our employes and is naturally reflected in the products delivered to our customers.

WELCOME TO MILWAUKEE, WISCONSIN

ETHNICITY

Place Names and People

Look at any listing of Wisconsin place names and you will be struck by the obvious variety in ethnic origins of residents of the Badger State. Menominee, Denmark, Brussels, Berlin, Oneida, New Glarus, Wales, Paoli, Pulaski, Oslo, Stockholm, Nashville, Abbotsford, Athens, Albany, Schleswig, New Paris, New Lisbon, New Haven, New Holstein, Pan Yan, Fond du Lac, New Richmond, even New Chicago! And of course we have not even touched on all the places beginning with Wau-. The names signal American Indians, Germans, Italian, New Yorkers and New Englanders, Cornish, Irish, Polish, African-Americans, Kentuckians, Slovenes, Dutch, Belgian, Swiss, the whole panoply of peoples from around the world who came to populate America's Thirtieth State. And more recently Hispanics and Southeast Asian groups have added to our exciting mix.

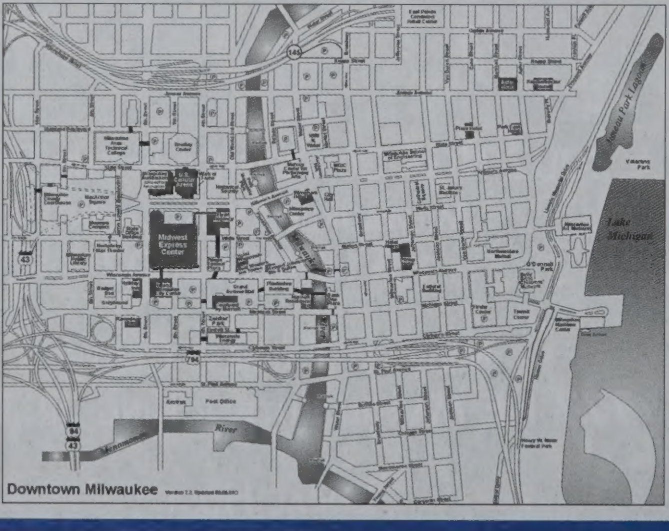
Genuine American

Yes, if you have an interest in ethnic backgrounds, you've come to the right place when you come to Wisconsin. And Milwaukee, the site of the 2002 NGS Conference in the States, An American Sampler, is in many ways a microcosm of the many ethnic groups you will find throughout the state. Not only does Milwaukee still have a number of ethnic neighborhoods centered on churches, cultural organizations, and restaurants, but there are eight ethnically-based genealogical societies active in the city or suburbs. When the Convention and Visitors Bureau identifies Milwaukee as "Genuine American" they're not kidding. In Milwaukee we've got 'em all, it truly is "An American Sampler!"

Culture

Back in the mid-nineteenth century when Milwaukee was largely populated by German immigrants with a strong interest in cultural activities, it was known as the "American Athens." That tradition still exists with the Florentine Opera, Milwaukee Symphony, the jewel-box Pabst Theater, the Milwaukee Ballet, Milwaukee Repertory Theater, and the celebrated African dance company, Ko-Thi. If you like museums there is the Milwaukee Public Museum with its fantastic Butterfly Wing, and you must see the newly expanded Milwaukee Art Museum which perches almost like a butterfly itself on the shore of Lake Michigan. Or perhaps you'd like to visit the fifteenth century reconstructed Joan of Arc Chapel, where daily Mass is still celebrated, or Miller Park where the Brewers play. How about the Harley-Davidson Motorcycle plant, or perhaps you'd prefer a brewery tour! All summer-long there is a succession of ethnic festivals. And we dare you to try to eat your way through Milwaukee! There is not only a wide variety of ethnic foods, but scores of restaurants in all price ranges and cuisine are within easy walking distance of the Convention Center.

Milwaukee weather in mid-May is usually delightful. Temperatures in the 60's to low 70's, although nights can feel pretty cool as can some days down along the lakefront. Light jackets and sweaters are a good bet. You will also find that Milwaukee, and Milwaukeeans, are a pretty relaxed bunch, so informal and casual attire is acceptable almost everywhere.



CONFERENCE FACILITIES

Venue and Hotels

Exhibits and seminars will take place at the Midwest Express Center in the heart of downtown Milwaukee, connected by skywalks to the Hilton Milwaukee City Center, the Hyatt Regency Milwaukee, Federal Plaza, Grand Avenue Mall shopping center, and close to the Bradley Center, Performing Arts Center and Entertainment District, and the scenic Riverwalk.

TRAVEL

Nancy Mettes of Damar Travel, our official conference travel agent, has arranged special fares for conference attendees. She will work with you to provide an economical travel plan. Please mention if you are a senior citizen. Contact Nancy at (800) 999-6101 or e-mail her at nancy.mettes@damartravel.com. Tell her you want to make your reservation for the 2002 NGS Conference in Milwaukee.

Transportation

General Mitchell International Airport can almost make you enjoy flying again (particularly if you travel by Midwest Express). If you don't mind changing your mode of travel, you can fly into Chicago and then take Amtrack to Milwaukee; the Amtrack Station is only 2 1/2 blocks from the Midwest Express Center.

Airport Shuttle

Contact Airport Connection, (800) 236-5450, for your shared-ride shuttle service to and from the General Mitchell International Airport.

Driving Directions

The General Mitchell International Airport is 20 minutes from downtown. Take I-94 North to downtown Milwaukee, Take I-43 North (towards Green Bay). On I-43 North, take far right lane to the first exit, the Civic Center/Kilbourn Avenue Tunnel.

To the Hilton
Once you have come out of the tunnel, turn right at the first set of lights (6th Street). Once on 6th Street turn left at the third set of lights (Michigan Street). Once on Michigan take the first left (5th Street). This will lead you to the Hilton Milwaukee City Center.

To the Hyatt Regency
At the end of the tunnel, continue straight on Kilbourn Avenue one long block to the Hyatt Regency on the right.

PROGRAM NOTES

Opening Session

The speaker for the opening session is Marsha Hoffman Rising, a certified genealogist and a certified genealogical lecturer as well be being a fellow of both the American Society of Genealogists and the Utah Genealogical Association. She is a former president of the Federation of Genealogical Societies and currently serves on the board of directors of the New England Historic Genealogical Society. Marsha is an experienced researcher, author and lecturer as well as being a founding member of the Genealogical Speakers' Guild.

Master Lectures

By the masters, not just for the masters. We've asked four of today's top genealogists/lecturers (Christine Rose, Helen Leary, Elizabeth Shown Mills, and John Philip Colletta) to each present a case study, on a topic of their own choosing, describing how they identified, researched, and presumably solved, a tough genealogical problem.

Laying a Solid Foundation

Guidance by many of the nation's top teachers and lecturers on the fundamentals of genealogical research—a series of seventeen presentations, running throughout the conference. An excellent foundation for the beginner and a solid review and update for the more-experienced.

Skillbuilding Track

NGS and the Board for Certification of Genealogists are proud to offer the latest edition of the Skillbuilding track, a series of presentations designed for those researchers who want to improve their research and analytical skills. The presentations in this track, based on the theme of "standards," will help improve the research and reporting skills of any serious genealogist.

And much, much more

The four-day conference offers more than 200 sessions (lectures and luncheons, workshops and labs) on virtually every aspect of genealogy. Because Milwaukee and the Midwest have historically drawn immigrants from many countries, ethnic and immigrant research (on both sides of the ocean) will be a major feature, but it won't be the only one. From Revolutionary War pensions to the 1930 census to research in Social Security records, from research in New York to research in California, from lighthouse families to Chicago cemeteries, from Salt Lake City to France on the Internet, there will be much to offer any genealogist.

Brass Band, Bratwurst and Brötchen

Milwaukee is renowned for its German heritage, and Wisconsin has a proud Civil War History. The two are combined on Thursday evening when "Brass Band, Bratwurst and Brötchen," a great German Dinner and Civil War-era band concert takes place on the mall at Marquette University. Join your hosts, the Wisconsin State Genealogical Society, for an evening of good food, good music, gemütlichkeit, and a good bit of nostalgia as the First Brigade Band takes us back to the 1860s with their authentic music and instruments. This will be an evening to sit back, relax, enjoy, and even learn a little about life in Civil War days.

A delicious Milwaukee German buffet dinner will satisfy everyone's hunger. Spinach salad with sweet and sour dressing, warm German potato salad, sausages and sauerkraut, braised round of beef with a fantastic tomato/mushroom sauce, brötchen (that's rolls) and butter, and luscious German desserts are all on the menu, and a full cash bar (including beer, of course). Hey! This is Milwaukee, you know!

Great weather is anticipated so the event will take place on the West Town Mall at Marquette University (but just in case, there will be plenty of room in the Alumni Memorial Union). Shuttle buses from the Midwest Express Center to the Marquette Campus will begin running at 6:00 P.M. and will be available for the return trip right after the concert, about 9:15 P.M. Or you might want to stick around for awhile to examine the instruments and talk to the musicians—they love to tell you about their music.

NGS Banquet

Enjoy fine dining at the Milwaukee Hilton. Then after dinner NGS President Curt Witcher will recognize individuals for their excellence in genealogy. The newest member of the National Genealogy Hall of Fame will be announced, the NGS Filby Prize winner, and others who have excelled in genealogical writing will receive their awards. Our banquet speaker, a Wisconsin native, describes how historical research brought meaning to her and her family.

Librarian Pre-Conference

Quickly becoming one of many exciting hallmarks of National Genealogical Society conferences, another Librarians Serving Genealogists Pre-Conference is being planned for Milwaukee. Coordinated by Pam Hall Cooper with the cooperation of the Milwaukee Public Library, this Tuesday, May 14th pre-conference will provide a forum for communication and networking between librarians interested in providing the best products and services to their genealogy patrons. Topics covered will deal with collection development issues and assisting genealogists in the digital age. Look for more information of the Librarians Serving Genealogists Listserv.

Computer Labs

If you are a beginner, learn about the genealogy software now available, and if you are an experienced computer genealogist, here's a chance to learn about the latest versions of genealogy programs and tools for genealogy. Instructors will introduce beginners to programs and demonstrate their features. Intermediate and advanced users will have an opportunity to advance their skills and learn special features of their software. Participants share a computer with Windows operating system. Those attending must be registered for the conference for at least the day of the lab and pay an extra $50.00 fee. Labs are limited with two persons to each computer.

NGS Learning Center

A computer learning center will be available in the exhibit hall. The offerings of this facility are still being determined, and it will be a worthwhile stop on your tour of the exhibit hall.

Exhibit Hall

The many exhibitors who fill the Exhibit Hall will bring many and varied products and services for genealogists. There will be software to assist not only in recording your genealogy, but also for using the Internet; CD-ROMs for researching an expanding series of publications, indexes and databases; preservation materials; books; maps and memorabilia. All in one place! What a great opportunity for hours of productive shopping!

At many of the exhibit booths you will find genealogical societies and organizations offering memberships as well as products, services, and free advice. International researchers and societies are a welcome addition to the Exhibit Hall. They seek clients and new members while offering information on research in their countries.

TRACK	8:00 A.M.	9:30 A.M.	11:00 A.M.
Skillbuilding	Background Information: An Overlooked Research Tool Kay Haviland Freilich F-115 Knowing the how and why of a record can help solve our problems and tell us more about our ancestors than "just the facts." Learn about sources that explain why various records exist.	Which Source is Right? Christine Rose F-126 Genealogists may be stymied when sources disagree. Analyzing, comparing, and weighing the evidence, however, often results in resolving the contradiction. Describes skills for accomplishing this.	Your Own Worst Enemy? Claire Mire Bettag F-137 Your own preconceived or unsound assumptions about ancestors and records can interfere with solving problems correctly. Will describe barriers to successful research created by incorrect assumptions. Also will provide suggestions for developing valid presumptions that result in sound conclusions.
European Ethnic	Norwegian bygdebøker—How to find them! How to use them! Can you trust them? Blaine Hedberg F-116 Presentation will include an overview of printed Norwegian local histories, US libraries with significant collections, suggestions for purchasing and current local history projects in Norway.	The Wealth of the Irish Poor Law-Its Origins, Its Records, and Its Riches George B. Handran F-127 A brief look at the history of the Irish Poor Law, the creation of the Poor Law Unions, their records, and the treasures spawned from it.	Swedish church records and what can be found in them Elisabeth Thorsell F-138 Swedish church records are among the best records for genealogy in the world. This lecture, by a native Swedish researcher, will explain them.
Ethnic in North America	Traps in Black Genealogy Tony Burroughs F-117 Both beginning and experienced genealogists fall into the same traps which often stifle their research, and many don't realize they've fallen into a trap until years later. Learn the tricks to improve your progress.	Jewish Genealogy on the Internet Gary Mokotoff F-128 A valuable research tool for Jewish genealogy is JewishGen—the principal Jewish genealogy presence on the Internet. This lecture will give an overview of JewishGen resources, update on the latest features and talk of future plans.	The Irish in the US and into Ireland: Let's Follow Their Trail Patricia Keeney Geyh F-139 Searching for the origins of your 19th-century (or earlier) immigrants? Using US and Canadian records (and a very few Irish sources), trace your ancestors back to their Irish townlands.
Urban	The Boston Immigrant Experience Maureen A. Taylor F-118 Learn how to plan a personalized trip to Boston based on your ethnicity. Use resources that provide genealogical, historical, and tourism related information.	Latest From Chicago—What's New (What's Not) in Chicago/Cook County Research Loretto Dennis Szucs F-129 Sources and strategies for overcoming difficulties of research in one of the nation's largest and most complex metropolitan areas.	The Italian-American Experience in Milwaukee and Chicago Jayare Roberts F-140 Sources and strategies for researching and understanding the life of an Italian-American. We will also take a slide tour of historical sites, villages, and record archives in the US and Italy.
Laying a Solid Foundation	Library/Archives Research: Census, Military, Newspapers and More Nancy J. Emmert F-119 It's not all in the courthouse, or on the Web. An overview of the many resources and services that libraries and archives have to offer the researcher-and how to get at them.	No Great Depression Here: The Wealth of the 1930 Census Kathleen W. Hinckley F-130 Learn how to convert 1930 addresses into supervisor and enumeration districts in order to locate your family in this newly released census.	Using Nineteenth-Century Newspapers for Family History John Philip Colletta F-141 An amazing amount of genealogical and biographical detail is waiting to be found in the old newspapers of your ancestral communities.
Research	Traditional Genealogists Don't Use the Web. . .Or Do They? Patricia Law Hatcher F-120 Explores when and how a traditional genealogist gets maximum benefit from the Internet in a minimum amount of time.	QuickSearch Sandra Hargreaves Luebking F-131 The quickest way to "survey" a family surname: find published or non-print family histories or locate people who share your interest in a particular surname. The "fabulous fourteen" references includes master indexes, catalogues, periodicals, CD-ROM, and on-line databases.	Finding Ancestral Places of Origin Paula Stuart Warren F-142 Still looking for grandma's place of origin? This lecture shares many records which may identify that place, whether US or foreign. Visuals demonstrate what these records contain and how to find and use them.
Land	Hands-On Land Platting Workshop Birdie Monk Holsclaw, Barbara Vines Little, Anita Anderson Lustenberger F-121 Land platting is a skill you can use at many levels! In this workshop, you'll learn the basics of drawing pictures, or plats, of your ancestor's land, and placing those plats on modern maps. This skill can then be extended to add context to your ancestors lives, and even to assist in solving your tough genealogical problems. This workshop costs $40.00. Please select F-121 under Labs and Workshop on the Registration Form
American Sampler	Building a Village-Based Community Megan Smolenyak F-122 Learn how doing this as an alternative to focusing exclusively on your own direct line-can advance your genealogical research and enhance your life in ways you never imagined. Talk will include guidance for getting started.	"But Your Honor, I Was Framed!" or, Finding Family History in Federal Court Records Peter W. Bunce F-133 Describes how genealogists can find ancestors in federal court records. Examines how individuals may have been involved in federal naturalization, bankruptcy, admiralty, civil, and criminal cases.	Investigating Your Ancestors Pamela Boyer Porter F-144 This lecture points out criminal investigation techniques that can be employed by genealogists to effectively search for and identify ancestors, record evidence, analyze and draw accurate conclusions, and write comprehensive but concise reports.
Technology	The Road Less Traveled: Mega Internet Sites for Genealogists "Off the Beaten Path" Curt B. Witcher F-123 Using the search keys of surname, geographic region, ethnicity, occupation, and religion, bibliographic databases and other large web sites will be explored.	The Internet: A Virtual Canvas for Your Ancestry Rhonda R. McClure F-134 Technical, artistic, and legal pointers for publishing your family history on the World Wide Web. This lecture looks at the software programs available for creating web pages.	The Geographical Foundation of Genealogy Gary Fitzpatrick F-145 Overview of basic principles of mapping, the body of maps that exist for various parts of the world, and the resources where genealogists can locate maps to assist in their research.

	8:00 A.M.-10:00 A.M.	10:30 A.M.-12:30 P.M.
Computer Lab 1	Techniques for Searching FamilySearch™ Internet Barbara Renick F-124 Learn how to access more information from this mega resource for genealogists.	The Master Genealogist for Advanced Users: Wholly Genes Software Bob Velke F-146 This session offers advanced instruction on the use of The Master Genealogist, addressing subjects like sentence construction, advanced source citations, and the Custom Report Writer for experienced users.
Computer Lab 2	Subscription Services: Ancestry.com Ancestry F-125 Attendees will have an opportunity for some "hands-on" experience exploring various databases available to subscribers of Ancestry's online service.	PowerPoint for Genealogists Suddie W. (Bill) Mumford F-147 Attendees will learn the basics of PowerPoint. While the examples used are specifically chosen to suggest use for sharing genealogical information, material will interest anyone interested in preparing presentations. Requirements: familiarity with use of a mouse and MicroSoft toolbars.

Computer Labs cost $50.00. Labs are limited to thirty-two participants with two persons to each computer.
One hour lab costs $25.00.

The Article Format-A Useful Format for Paper or Electronic Publishing
Patricia Law Hatcher F-164
This traditional format is ideal for exchanging information with other researchers and-as a bonus-can help solve tough problems.

Genealogical Research in the Czech Republic and Slovakia
Daniel Schlyter F-165
Sources for Bohemia, Moravia, Silesia, and Slovakia including early church records, civil transcripts of church, land, census, and other records, with the distinctive value of each-those available at the FHL and those that aren't.

"Genealogy, Not Guns or Glory": African Americans, The Union and The Civil War
Charles C. Brewer F-166
Union Civil War armed forces records useful for African American genealogical research.

Chicago's Ethnic Cemeteries
Helen A. Shaw F-167
Chicago is noted for strong ethnic neighborhoods. Ethnicity and religion determined where people lived and were buried. This talk will look at Chicago's ethnic cemeteries and provide guidelines for narrowing the search for an ancestor's resting place.

Identification of 19th Century Photographs
David L. Mishkin F-168
Lecture with slides, showing the differences between a daguerreotype, tintype, etc., teaching the different time periods when those processes were popular.

Five Ways to Prove Who Your Ancestor Was
Thomas W. Jones F-169
Case studies will be used to illustrate five ways-some reliable and others not reliable-that genealogists use in attempts to "prove" an ancestor's identity.

Where Did the Farm Go?
Michael John Neill F-170
Tracking how your ancestor disposed of real property is just as important as determining how it was obtained. This lecture discusses likely ways property left your ancestor's possession and how to obtain those records.

19th & 20th Century Adoption Research
Kathleen W. Hinckley F-171
Maureen Taylor
This panel of adoptive parents will discuss the methodology and sources used in 19th and 20th century adoption research.

Think Different: Genealogy on the Mac
Dawn M. Knauft F-172

SATURDAY SCHEDULE 18 MAY 2002

TRACK	8:00 A.M.	9:30 A.M.	11:00 A.M.
Skillbuilding	Modern Research Reports: Conventional and Electronic Elizabeth Shown Mills S-176 Research reports summarizing an investigation are an invaluable aid to advancing your research. This session will describe how to prepare clear, useful, and accurate reports for your own files and to share with others.	"In Conclusion, ... " (Proof Summaries) Helen F. M. Leary S-187 A proof summary creates a record of how a correct genealogical conclusion was achieved. Collectively, proof summaries serve as building blocks for genealogical compilations. The session describes the characteristics and uses of genealogical proof summaries.	Putting It Together: Compiling Genealogy Kay Haviland Freilich S-198 What do you need to include? What format is best for you? This session will describe the characteristics your genealogy should have to achieve the purpose of preserving your research.
European Ethnic	Irish Estate Records: Is Digging Through the Pile Really Worth It? David Rencher S-177 Learn usefulness of estate records, how to identify estate owners, and sources for availability of estate records, which may be the only record of the poor or landless prior to parish registers.	Tracing Your Ancestors in Finland and Denmark Liv H. Anderson S-188 How to use the emigration records, farm books, census and church records. We will also talk about records on the Internet and repositories in the US and in Scandinavia.	Dublin, 30 June 1922: Did Everything Blow up? Eileen M. O'Duill S-199 Discussion of the Four Courts, Dublin fire, with history of the Public Records of Ireland, documents lost and those which survived, and efforts made by National Archives to rebuild the collection.
Immigration	U.S. Immigrant Records Overview, Part I Marian Smith S-178 A broad review of US passenger lists and naturalization records from Colonial times to ca 1900, with practical research strategies.	Using the New Ellis Island Database and Old Filmed Records Jayare Roberts S-189 Passenger records provide information about ancestral homes for immigrant aliens and native-born passengers and crew. The LDS Church has automated all arrival records for New York, 1892-1924.	Canadian Border Crossing Records Kenneth G. Aitken S-200 With scarcely a ripple Americans moved north into Canada to settle. Beginning in 1908 the Canadian government has created records of these immigrants. Learn to locate and search the Canadian border crossing records, 1908-1935.
Frontier	Reconstructing Families On The Colonial Frontier John T. Humphrey S-179 An obstacle to researching colonial ancestors is the paucity of records kept during that period. This lecture explores strategies that creatively use data found in existing records.	Finding Females on the Frontier Sandra Hargreaves Luebking S-190 Pursue that most elusive of antecedents: the female. Focusing on 19th century Midwest research, this introduces four (or more) search strategies especially useful to research frontier women-can be used for other ancestors, areas, and time periods.	Old Northwest and Mississippi Valley "Private Land Claims" at NARA Claire Mire Bettag S-201 Land claims in seventeen states based on grants from England, France, Spain, and Mexico, before U.S. sovereignty, locate ancestors and provide much family information. Emphasis on claims in Old Northwest, Mississippi Valley and Midwest.
Laying a Solid Foundation	Documentation and Evidence for Electronic Sources Rhonda R. McClure S-180 The Internet and the many resources now available on CD-ROM are being used by genealogists in the compiling of their family history. Take a look at the unique aspects of citing electronic sources.	Mining City Directories: Case Studies Using Chicago Directories Helen A. Shaw S-191 Case studies using Chicago city directories will show how the limited information in directories can be overcome to successfully track city residents and locate other sources of information about them.	Traditional vs. Computer Based Genealogical Research: Not 'Either/Or' but BOTH John W. Konvalinka S-202 Successful genealogical research today involves skillfully using traditional sources and computer based tools. We will examine several ways of using both forms of research together.
Repositories	Online Wisconsin!: The Web Resources of the Wisconsin Historical Society Lori Bessler S-181 The Wisconsin Historical Society has a variety of digital images and online services available on its web site—and more to come! This lecture leads you on a virtual tour.	Hunting in the Ivory Tower: Academic Libraries for Family History Research Beth A. Stahr S-192 Explore the wealth of information found in the archives, special collections, government depositories, serials and local history collections in academic libraries. Consider how you might use these collections for your research.	Resources and Services of the Historical Genealogy Department of the Allen County Public Library Curt B. Witcher S-203 A look at this national collection, a discussion of practical research tips, and a detailing of services provided.
Managing Information	MASTER LECTURE Resolving Research Dilemmas: Case Studies in Logical Analysis and Successful Methodology John Philip Colletta S-182 Specific examples demonstrate, step-by-step, how to analyze research problems and exploit available resources to solve them.	Writing Your Family History in Small, Manageable Pieces James W. Warren S-193 This session offers ideas, inspiration, and practical formats to help "non-writers" preserve and share their research using small time blocks. Write your family history as you research, not after you're "finished" researching!	Tables, Charts, and Spreadsheets-Valuable Genealogical Tools Patricia Law Hatcher S-204 Information mapping-the visual organization of data-helps researchers view and comprehend large amounts of information. Examples demonstrate using tabular formats to help with our research-and the analysis of what we find.
Military	Revolutionary War Records: More Than Just Pensions Christine Rose S-183 Discusses the many important and unused records for the soldiers who fought for independence.	Pension Records: You Stopped Too Soon Craig Roberts Scott S-194 Go beyond the pension application files to learn about ledgers, settled accounts, payment cards, and more.	Do I Have a Loyalist Ancestor? Brenda Dougall Merriman S-205 Learn how to begin and pursue your quest for a Loyalist ancestor and which sources will provide documentary evidence.
Internet	The Dark Side of Computer Genealogy Michael John Neill S-184 The sunshine of technology brightens genealogical research. Every ray of sun creates possible shadows that may hinder research efforts.	Locating English Records on the World Wide Web Dean J. Hunter S-195 Will discuss how to use the World Wide Web to locate details about the various repositories that hold English records and what you can learn from your home and how to locate those records you need to solve your English problems.	Conquering Internet Search Engines Cyndi Howells S-206 Searching the Internet shouldn't be frustrating. Fine-tuning your requests can turn up some terrific results for your genealogical research. Learn the ins and outs of controlling the output from a variety of popular search engines.

	8:00 A.M.-10:00 A.M.	10:30 A.M.-12:30 P.M.
Computer Lab 1	How to Search the Family History Catalog Barbara Renick S-185 Participants will learn how to find information in this massive catalog through a variety of searches.	Share Your Family History with Adobe Acrobat® Carla & Dennis Ridenour S-207 This lab will explore features of Adobe Acrobat® that can be combined with a genealogy database enabling genealogists the opportunity to share their family history
Computer Lab 2	Working With GEDCOM Suddie W. (Bill) Mumford S-186 Attendees of this lab will learn how to prepare a GEDCOM file for export, how to import one, and how to interpret exception reports, as well as how to read and edit a GEDCOM file. Requirements: Familiarity with a genealogical software program.	Online services-Census Records and Sanborn Maps: ProQuest Andrea Eastman-Mullins Thomas Jay Kemp S-208 Lab attendees will learn how to use a powerful range of tools to search online census records, obituary notices, Sanborn maps and more.

Computer Labs cost $50.00. Labs are limited to thirty-two participants with two persons to each computer.
One hour lab costs $25.00.

BCG WORKSHOP Measuring Yourself Against Standards Jones, Reisinger, Bettag, Stahr S-214 In this interactive workshop, participants will learn the nature and purposes of certification, the application requirements for each certification category, how to prepare an application package, and how it will be evaluated.	Seven Habits of Highly Effective Genealogists Thomas W. Jones S-225 Describes the benefits of the following-documentation; original sources; breadth of research; analysis of findings; organization; sharing; continuous learning;
CD-ROM for British Isles Research Paul Milner S-215 British Isles-made CD-ROM are much more powerful research tools than those available in North America, yet are rarely seen here. This will highlight differences, show what is available plus give details on how and where to access them.	I Think My Ancestor is in Griffith's Valuation-Now What Do I Do? George B. Handran S-226 Richard Griffith's Primary Valuation of Tenements (1847-1864)-how is it organized, how do I find my ancestor there, prove it is my ancestor, and what do I do next?
U.S. Immigrant Records Overview, Part II Marian Smith S-216 A sweeping review of US passenger lists, naturalization, and other immigrant records from ca 1900 through World War II, with practical research strategies and advice.	Passenger Arrival Records: How Automation Has Changed Research Forever John Philip Colletta S-227 How to use ever-multiplying Internet web sites and CD-ROM materials, along with the traditional resources and tried-and-true methodology, to find an ancestor's ship.
Voyageurs and Habitants: Tracing the Early French in the Midwest James L. Hansen S-217 An exploration of the special sources and techniques necessary to trace these early French traders and settlers and connect them to their ancestors in Louisiana and Canada.	Migration Trails West Sheila Benedict S-228 Migrations to the western USA occurred within many differing groups and for various reasons. This presentation discusses why they took place, where they began or ended, using historical and/or topographical data, migration patterns, and available record sources.
Documentation Myths Birdie Monk Holsclaw S-218 It's easy to misunderstand "rules" about documentation that can lead to less effective research, exchange, and publishing. Takes a frank look at some common misconceptions about documentation, and suggests some techniques to avoid those documentation pitfalls.	Getting The Most Out of FamilySearch™ Bob Heck S-229 This will explore the FamilySearch web site introducing us to a powerful research and educational tool available on the Internet. Effective exploration techniques will be explored in a simple non-technical manner
Researching Catholic Records in the Midwest Tim Cary, Carl Baehr S-219 Many genealogists find Catholic sacramental records useful. Session explains records that Catholic parishes maintain. Dioceses in the United States don't have standard access policies. Also access policies of Midwestern dioceses.	Genealogical Resources at the Newberry Library Rhonda Frevert S-230 Learn more about one of the country's top genealogical libraries. Discover insider tips for using the library. Hear about the latest changes and ways to benefit from the library's collection without ever leaving home.
Organizing and Time Management: Keys to Research Success Liz Kelley Kerstens S-220 A discussion of family record organization methods and time management principals designed to assist the researcher in locating information contained within their personal collection, and maximizing research time.	Word Processing Tricks for the Genealogist Pamela Boyer Porter S-231 Make your word processor work for you! Learn to customize quickly with templates, styles, and graphics. Use your Windows-based or Macintosh word processor's automatic features to make your genealogical research faster and more efficient.
Passport Records and World War I Draft Records Eileen Polakoff S-221 Passport records from 1795-1924 provide vital information—physical descriptions, photographs, travel plans, letters from employers, etc. Also, draft registrations provide basics, physical descriptions, employers, family contacts, and more.	The Korean Repatriation Project Megan Smolenyak S-232 A researcher for this military project talks about the effort to trace the families of servicemen who were MIA in Korea 50+ years ago, the use of DNA-testing for identification purposes, and how you can help.
FGS LECTURE Using the Web Effectively for Records Preservation and Access: the FGS Web Site Dean J. Hunter S-222 This lecture will discuss how the joint FGS/NGS Record Preservation and Access Committee is working at using the WWW as a focal point for record concerns and information dissemination.	The Moving and Storage of Genealogical Information Barbara Renick S-233 In the past, genealogists shared via floppies and e-mail. With increasing use of images and the growing size of GEDCOM files, genealogists today need to know how to store files via a variety of media.

TOURS AND TRIPS

Wisconsin State Genealogical Society has made arrangements for the following tours on Tuesday, 14 May.

RESEARCH AT THE WISCONSIN HISTORICAL SOCIETY LIBRARY

The Library of the Wisconsin Historical Society at Madison offers one of the finest collections of genealogical and historical resources for North America north of the Rio Grande. The Library collections began in 1849, and now include in excess of 3.5 million bound volumes and more than 2 million microform titles. The Library holds the population schedules for all U.S. decennial censuses from 1790 through 1920. Indexes are available for most of them, including the complete 1920 Soundex. The library also holds all Canadian enumerations from 1666 through 1901. There are also passenger lists for all major ports, and the second largest collection of newspapers in the country (the Library of Congress has the largest). State, county and local histories for all states are very well represented. There is a large collection of church histories seldom found in other libraries, and a huge collection of printed genealogies. For additional information we recommend searching the Library Web site at http://www.shsw.wisc.edu/library/, and also suggest doing some homework with the online catalog (accessed from the Library pages).

The Wisconsin State Genealogical Society has arranged for a bus trip from the Midwest Express Center to the WHS Library on Tuesday, 14 May. The bus will depart at 8:00 A.M. and return by 6:00 P.M., allowing for six full hours of research. Volunteers from WSGS will be available at the library to assist researchers. Cost: $18.00 per person, including box lunch. There is no fee for research at the library. Limited to 55 persons.

RESEARCH AT THE AMERICAN GEOGRAPHICAL SOCIETY COLLECTION

Housed at the Golda Meir Library of the University of Wisconsin–Milwaukee, the AGS Collection includes maps, atlases and gazetteers covering virtually every country and time frame in which genealogists have an interest. The collection is fully cataloged and there is a variety of finding aids, plus a very competent staff to assist researchers.

The research trip to the AGS Collection includes bus transportation from the Midwest Express Center to the Golda Meir Library, orientation to the collection, and approximately two hours of research time. In order to maximize opportunities for each researcher there is a limitation of 25 persons per trip; two trips are scheduled, the first departing the Midwest Express Center on Tuesday at 9:30 A.M. and returning by noon, and the second departing at 1:00 P.M., returning by 3:30 P.M. Cost: $8.50 per person.

OLD WORLD WISCONSIN TOUR

Located in the Kettle Moraine State Forest southwest of Milwaukee, Old World Wisconsin is the largest outdoor living history museum in the world devoted to the history of rural life. Its ten farms, crossroads village and African-American pioneer area with a total of 69 historic structures represent thirteen ethnic groups. To visit Old World Wisconsin is to experience life as rural residents of Wisconsin, and much of the upper Midwest, did during the mid-Nineteenth Century.

This tour includes deluxe motor-coach transportation, a special introduction to the site, lunch in the Clausing Barn Restaurant, and entry to all exhibits. All-day tram service is included within the tour, but visitors are still advised to wear comfortable walking shoes. With use of the tram, the grounds, store and restaurant are accessible to almost everyone, but handicap access to many of the historic buildings is limited. The tour departs the Midwest Express Center at 10:00 A.M., returning by about 5:00 or 5:30 P.M., depending on traffic. Cost: $34.00 per person.
